LEE! (my baby)

To a REAL Sweet Kid, Hey listen this summer were gonna run CAUSING RAGGED. WE COULDN'T MAKE IT WORK BEFORE, but maybe we will have another chance OK? Listen Kid I'm Really glad I met you, And that's no kidding. IT Really is to bad that we couldn't make it work before, I guess maybe it was my fault. I'm sorry for all the trouble I've caused you, but listen baby I'll make up for it this summer. Always Remember Senior night even if we couldn't spend it together. I'll never forget the time we went to the scene, flat tire + all. Hey beautiful stay as sweet as you are wow, and you'll never have any trouble with the guys, especially me. HA HA! I'm pretty sure ya want it that way. Oh well I guess I'll get by. See ya Round like a doughnut.

Love ya always (and that's the truth) the faculty. Their time starts early each day as they enter the school; their time is spent pursuing the career they chose—teaching. In the course of a day they face many new problems. There are always questions from students, tests to grade, lectures to give, and discussions to lead. After school, their time is spent coaching teams, helping confused students, and directing play and musical rehearsals. Nights are filled with countless papers to correct, lessons to prepare, games to attend, and clubs to advise. As time goes on they see many students pass by, and soon realize their importance as members of ...

Just clowning around ...

the Faculty.

In the time that Mr. Don Johnson has been principal at Eastern, many improvements have been made. Here he examines plans for the newest addition to the school which will be completed sometime in the early fall.

Administrators guide the operation of Eastern

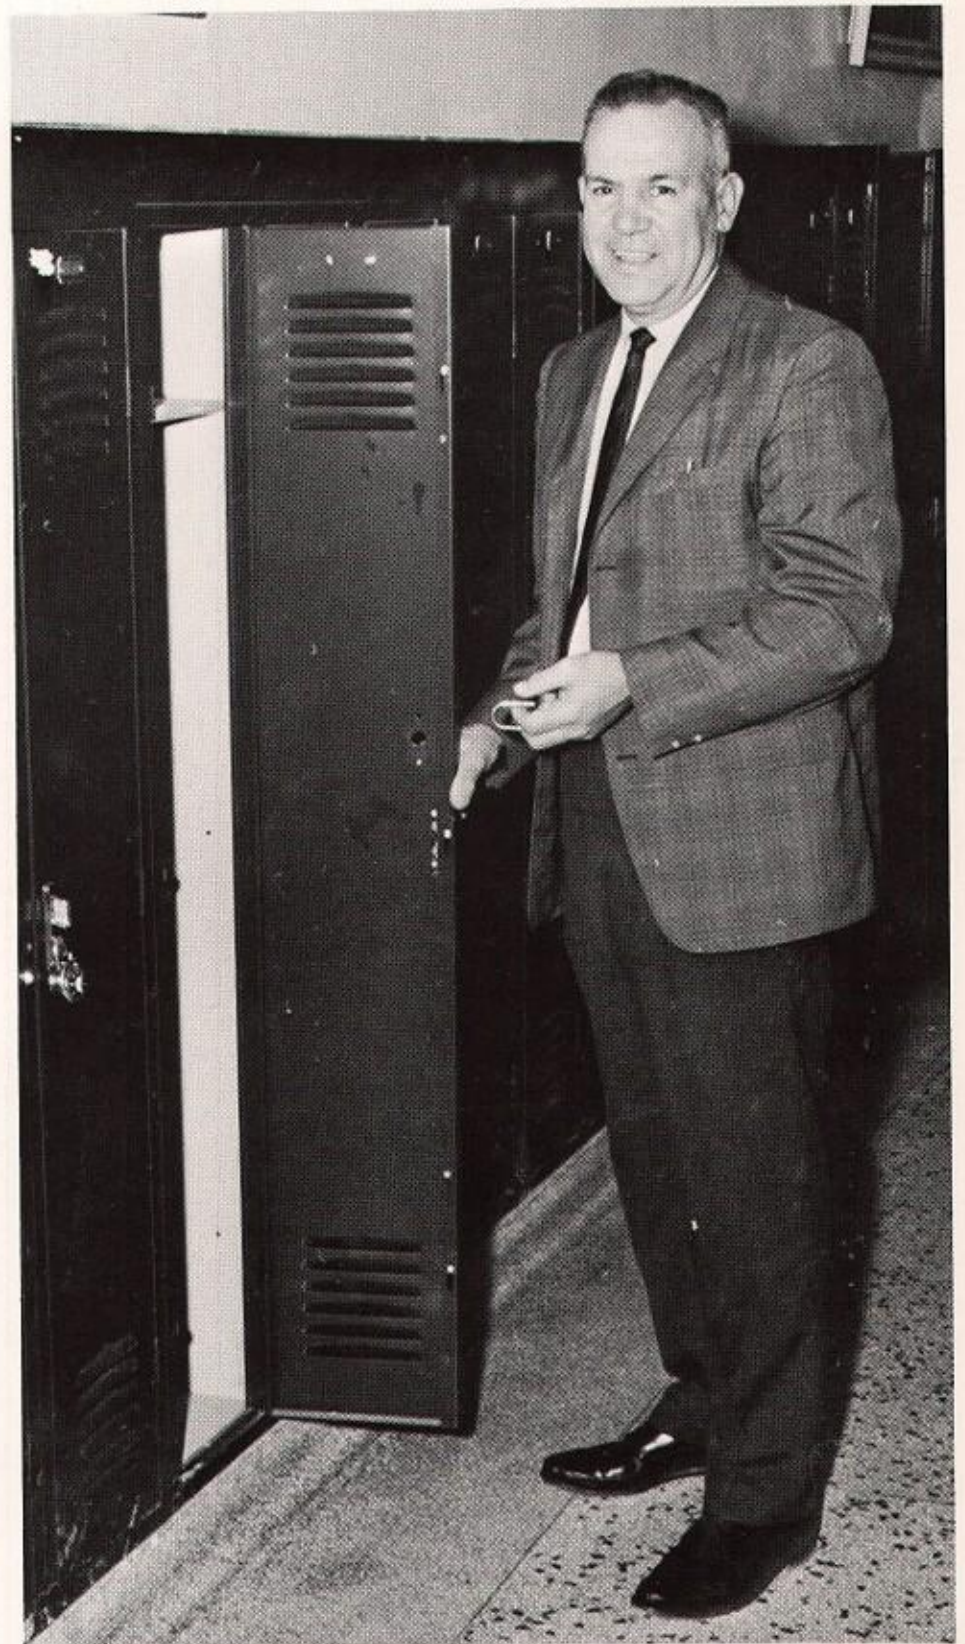

The trio authorizing and directing the administration and functioning of Eastern High School consists of Mr. Don F. Johnson, Mr. Joseph Rousseau, and Miss Eleanor Doersam. Their abilities in guiding and leading Eastern is shown through many facets of their duties.

Mr. Johnson, principal at Eastern High School, included in his range of experience the positions of assistant principal for five years and of wrestling coach for ten years. Observing classes, attending curriculum and Board of Education meetings, and supervising the day-to-day functioning of the school exemplified the diversification of the principal's duties.

Mr. Rousseau has now held the position of assistant principal for five years. Dealing with student attendance and issuing permits required much diligence and perseverance of character which Mr. Rousseau has certainly maintained. In his advisor capacity, Mr. Rousseau has advised Student Council and the Junior Board of Education.

Miss Doersam, assistant principal, previously a counselor and physical education teacher, managed a busy and varied schedule daily. Miss Doersam's wide range of activities included supervising club activities, advising Eastern's chapter of the National Honor Society, and participating in this year's musical, "Oklahoma."

From the appearance of the many papers on her desk, Miss Doersam proves that an administrator's job never ends.

Don't let this picture deceive you—Mr. Rousseau isn't actually raiding a student's locker but merely inspecting it.

learning. This is the main function of Eastern; to teach varied subjects to different students. Many courses are offered in varying fields, with requirements of four semesters of English, U.S. history, American government, and physical education. Students broaden their horizons by taking sciences, mathematics, music, and art. Besides academic subjects, vocational, co-op, and day trade students learn a skill which will be useful in the future. Those interested in the world around them can take humanities, world history, and world literature. Some take business, homemaking, and secretarial courses. There is something for everyone, each student spending time pursuing . . .

Academics.

Communication — the tool of modern life

At Eastern, the English Department taught the art of communication through grammar, reading, and independent writing.

Grammar has been the foundation of effective communication. These rules enabled the student to analyze and improve his writing, and aided in his greater appreciation of good reading. Reading American and English literature brought the student in contact with some of the greatest ideas and best minds of our English-speaking heritage. The ancient literatures of Greece and Rome comprised a new course in World Literature this year. For those students entering different areas of study, General English was offered. This course developed the habit of reading, increased writing skill needed for practical expression, and stressed the development of critical thinking. They also read modern literature and various paperbacks. Students practiced writing as the third essential skill. Advanced Composition emphasized this skill where students sharpened the tools of writing and combined all knowledge acquired in the past to develop their writing talent.

Whichever English program the student selected, General or College Preparatory, the goals were the same: the development of writing skills, the understanding of new ideas, and the attainment of a better vocabulary. These were all important in establishing the greatest tool of modern life—communication.

What character is this garbed in Medieval England apparel? None other than Geoffrey Chaucer, alias Larry Casler.

Advanced Composition students cheerfully line up to receive some weekend reading from Miss Lowrey.

Capable librarians keep library functioning

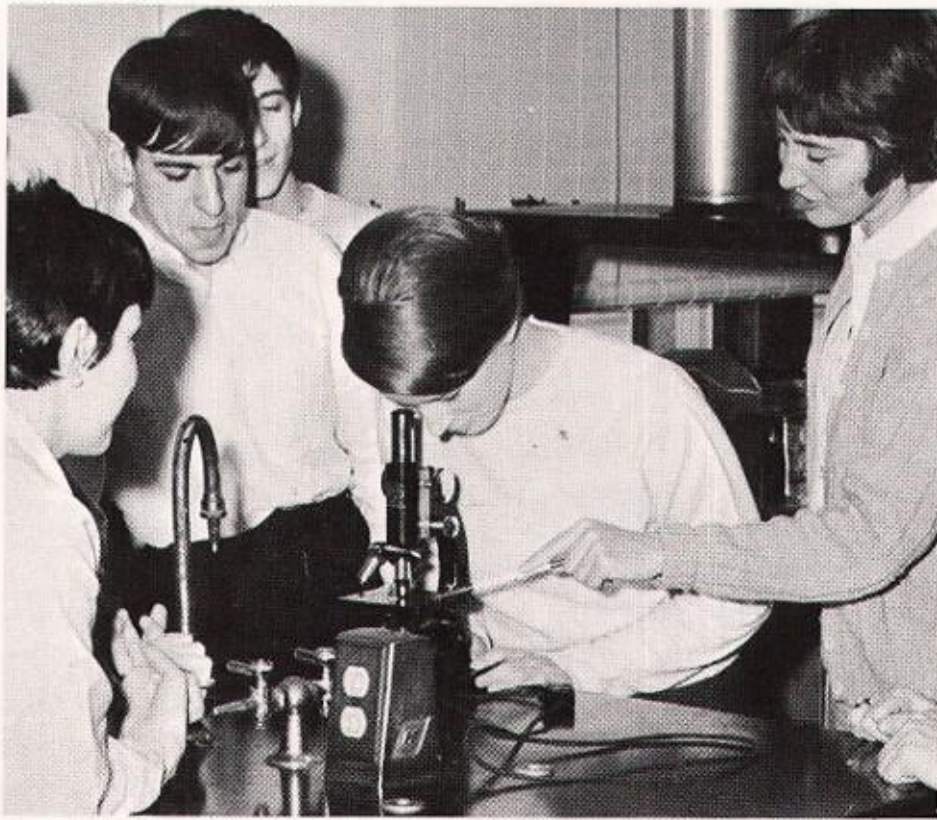

"Where is the atlas? ... Where can I find a book on the Aztecs? ... I can't find this book!" These represented some of the varied and humorous questions asked of our two librarians. Without the services rendered by Mrs. Arnell and Miss French, the library would soon be a center of confusion. With their guiding hands and with efficient library facilities, the constant reports, research papers, and the discovery of an enjoyable book was made easier.

The methodical hands of Mrs. Arnell sort endlessly through cards and files, keeping organization in the library.

Library assistant Carolyn Brown aids Miss French in helping students check out books.

Science classes give insight into future

"If I didn't know better, I'd think that was a pencil on that molecule." Claudia Haines seems very interested as she tries to figure out what she's observing.

The Science Department included Natural Science, Biology, Chemistry, Physics, and Advanced Biology. Biology, a college preparatory course introducing the field of science to students, mainly consisted of the study of living things. The second course taken by students majoring in science, chemistry, covered the structure of all matter and the basics of chemistry. Combining the studies of science and math, physics built upon the previous chemistry background. Measuring the halls of Eastern became one of the first projects the physics classes completed. The advanced biology class was set up for students having a special interest in the field of science. Natural science gave students a general idea of every science field, including biology, chemistry, physics, earth science, and ecology.

Craig Miller appears very disgusted with the results of his experiment, but Ron McCallum seems to have discovered a new law in science, proving to be another Albert Einstein.

Patti Riest tries not to inhale too hard during a biology experiment, while Pam Burris keeps her fingers crossed.

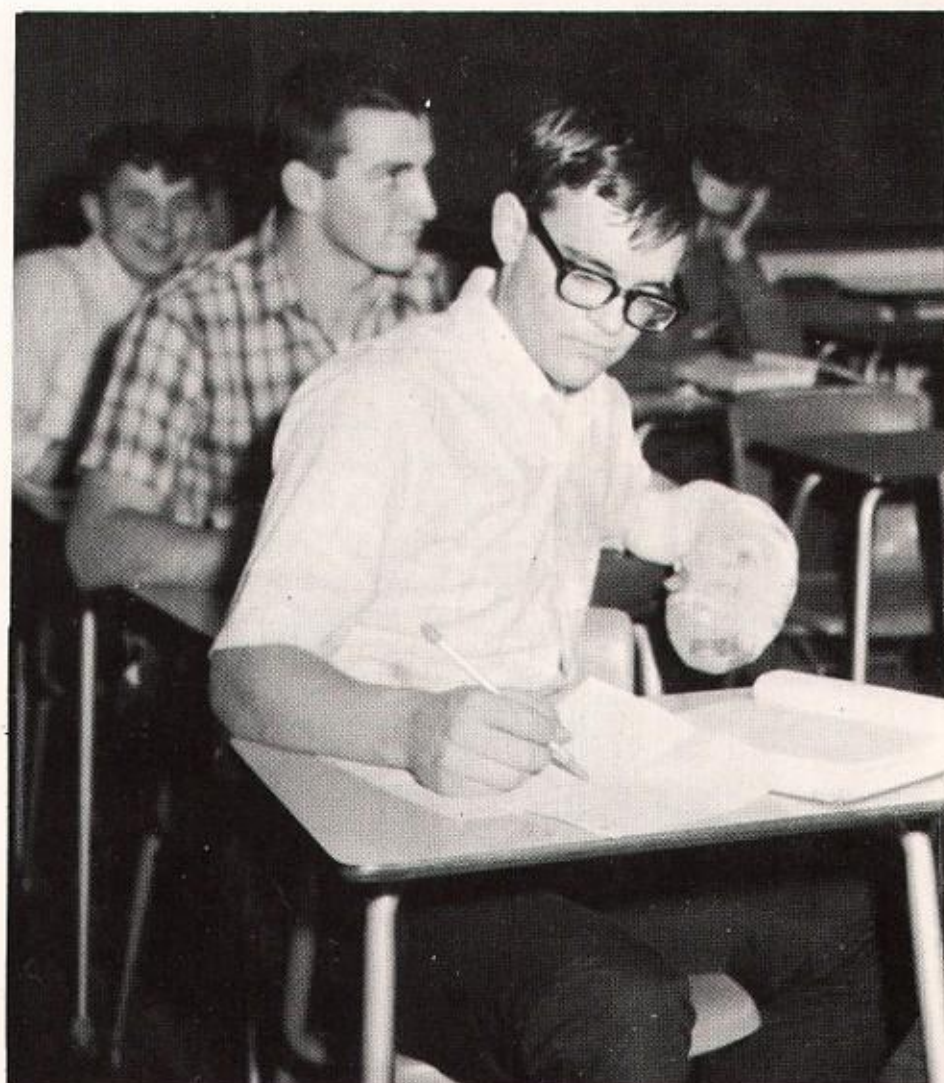

While Carl Fish consults Miss Richards about a problem in Algebra IV, Andy Goldstein, Tom Bernitt and Mike Case strain to compare answers with Mike Moody.

New math classes added to curriculum

Besides the regular classes of Algebra, Trigonometry, Geometry, and general and business math, two new senior math classes were added to the curriculum this year. Algebra IV and Probability were geared to those students planning to enter professions, while Analysis was a math course offered for those entering the fields of science. In all the math classes, students found it fun but sometimes difficult to remember the Pythagorean theorem, the Quadratic formula, sine and cosine laws, and the several other laws and theorems necessary in the understanding and using of Mathematics.

Unhindered by his bandaged hand, Jim Barber works diligently at his homework for Analysis.

Business students adjust to new equipment

In all business transactions, much skill and experience is required. The Business Education courses offered at Eastern High School have prepared students to meet the ever-increasing and demanding business world.

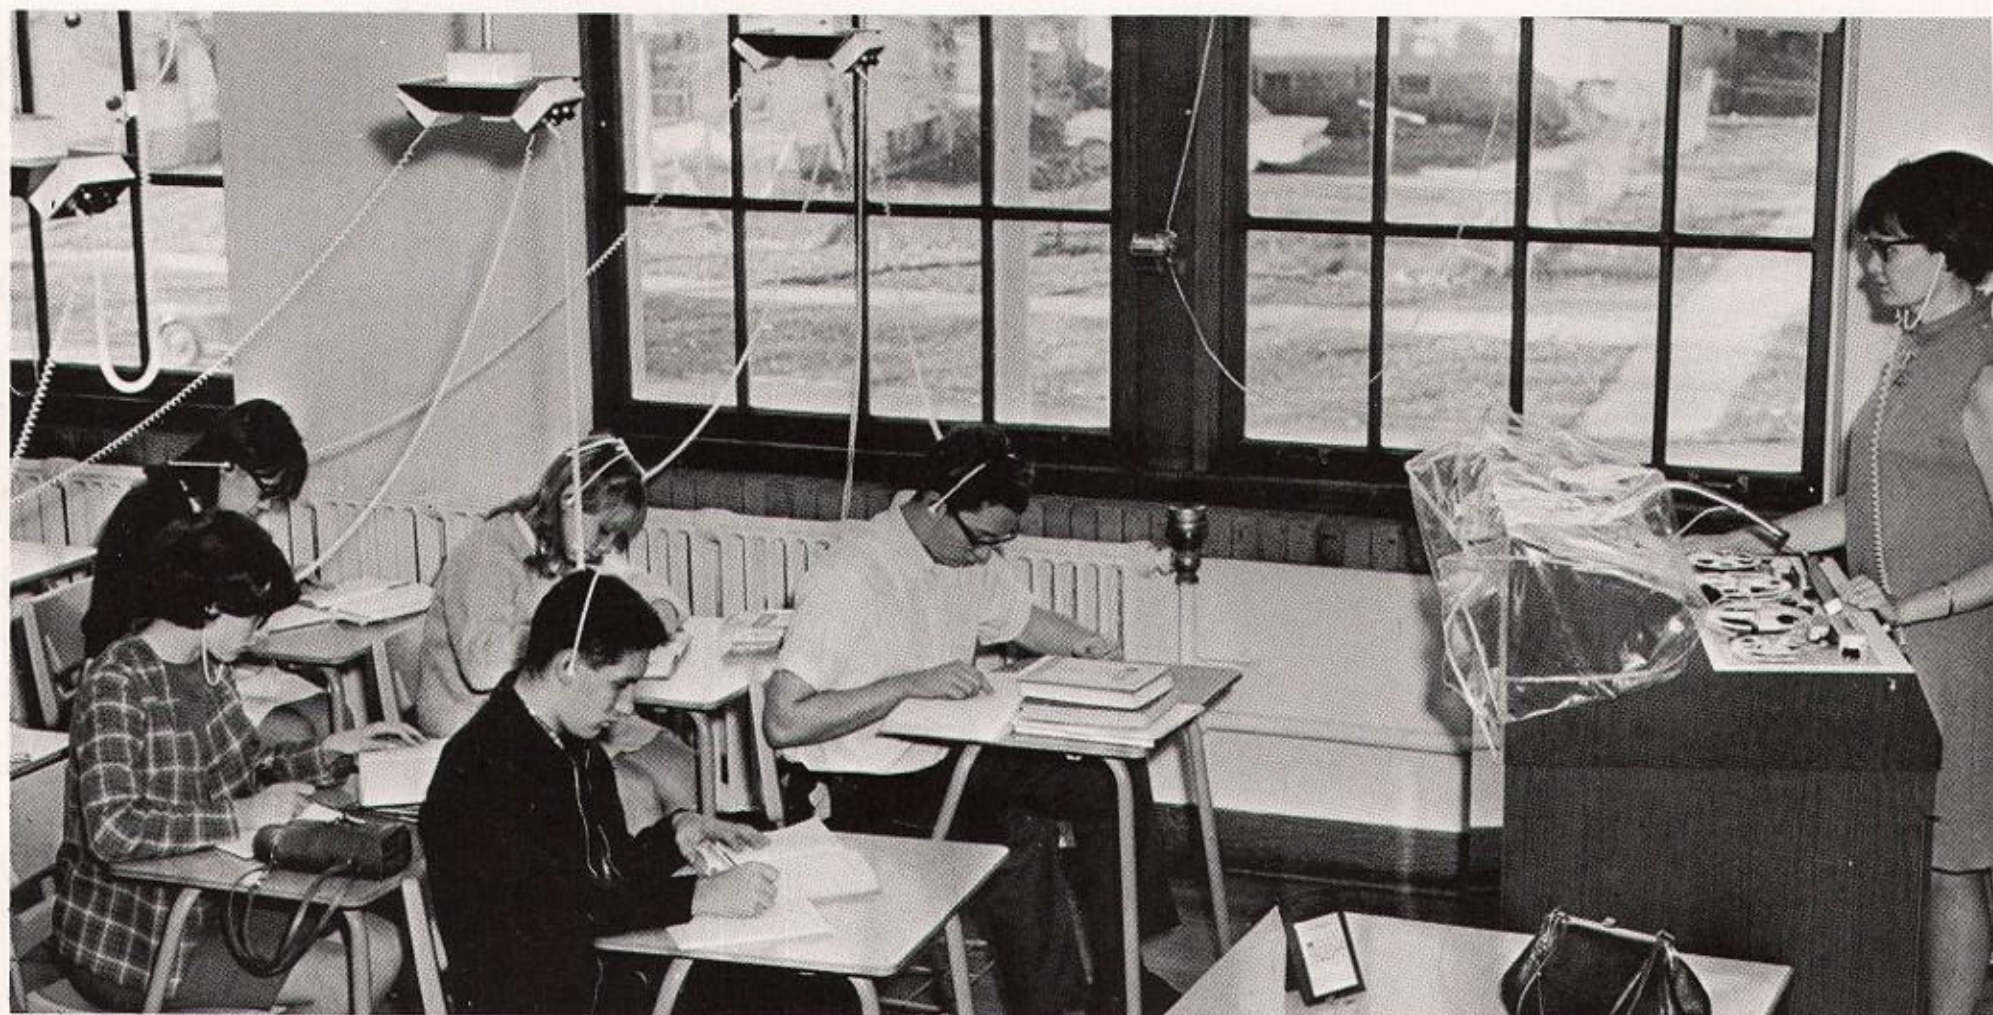

In Bookkeeping, accounting and the cycle of bookkeeping were emphasized. The Business English, Business Mathematics, General Business, and Business Law courses confirmed and taught students the fundamental duties and obligations to be expected of them later. A basic understanding of the principles of data processing systems was achieved in Data Processing Principles. Office Machines presented the necessary mechanization business students would utilize. Varied shorthand courses were offered, each involving the mastering of the art of rapid writing. The use of typewriting has become limitless, due to its great popularity with students on all programs. Students majoring in retailing found the Merchandising course helpful, where they learned to comprehend marketing and merchandising methods. Retailing offered the advantageous experience of combining class instruction with on-the-job training to retail majors. Another course presented, Hospitality Services Technology, also linked the job and the school together. Office Techniques supplemented the business skills developed in office training courses and bridged the gap between school preparation for business and actual initial employment.

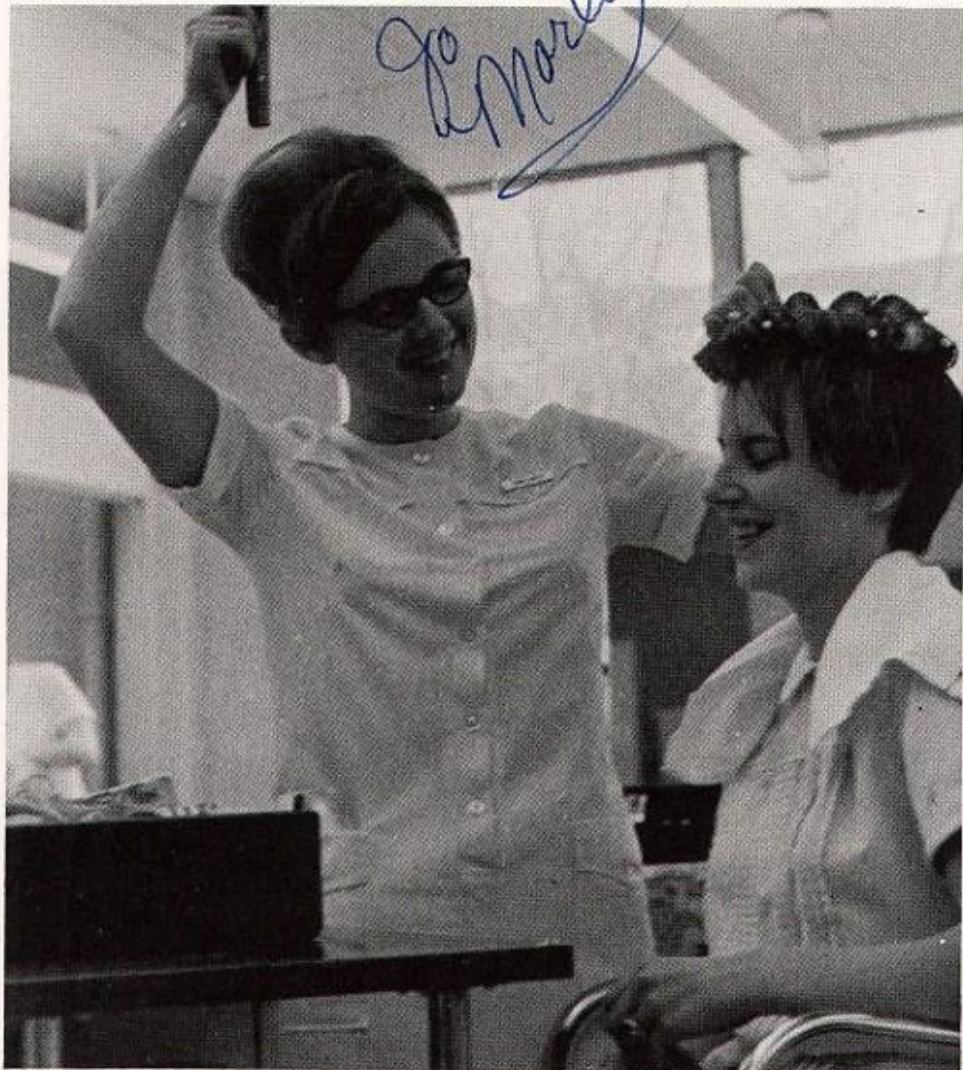

Industriously taking dictation from the new machines installed this year, Andrea Haase, Sharon Baird, Gail Gollach, Billy Brown, and

Mr. Schrader seems confident as he utilizes an adding machine calculate a list of figures. Judy Vickers, however, seems rather as to the complexities of the machine.

Charles Brainard receive instructions from Mrs. Goad.

Joanne Morely attempts originality while setting Melody Potter's hair.

Karen Uebberroth seems disappointed in the way her customer's hair is responding to her treatment.

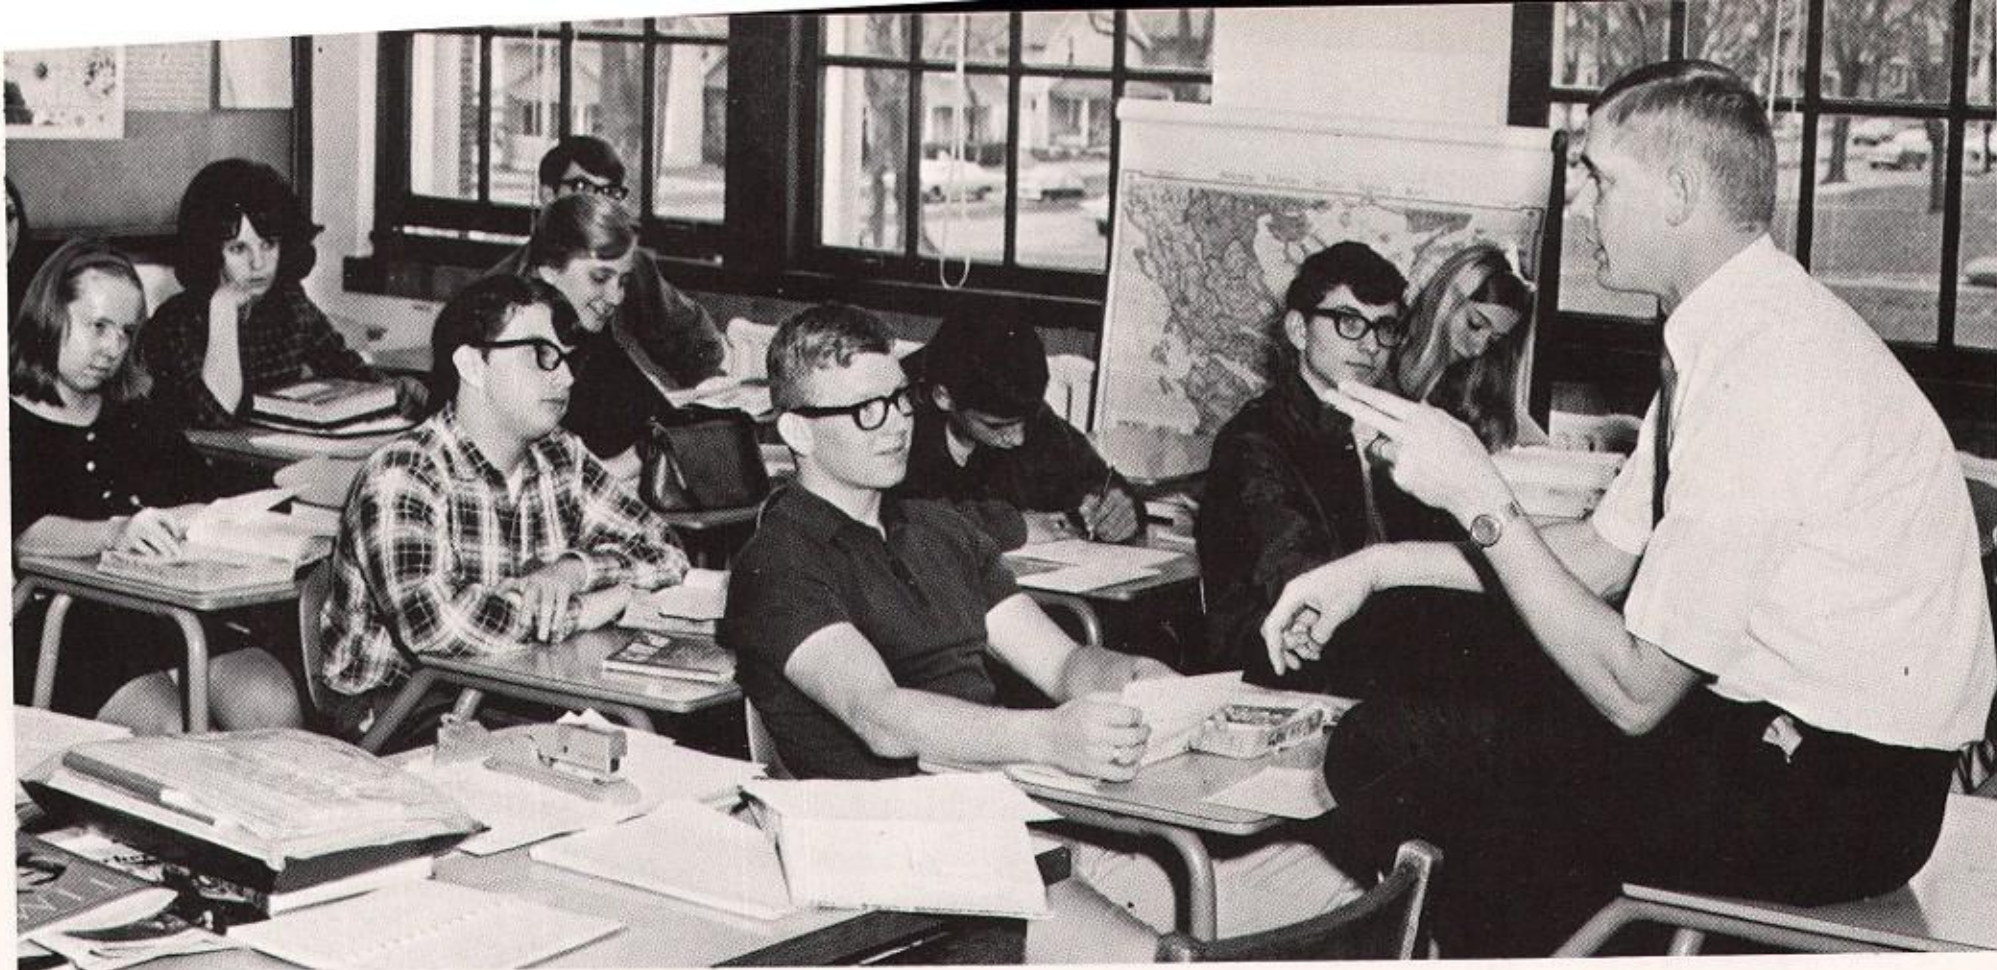

Vocational education stresses future

Vocational educational courses aided students from Eastern, Everett, and Sexton to prepare for the many skilled jobs awaiting them after graduation. Boys participated in the technical drafting, machine shop, or the printing classes that were available. The shop classes lasted for three hours a day and were taken for two years. The skills obtained by the students were utilized in their last semester of school when the boys went on the Co-op program, which enabled them to get a job using their acquired skill.

This year, for the second successful year, the cosmetology classes enabled girls to take part in a vocational course. For three hours in the morning, the junior girls engaged in the course, while seniors participated for three hours in the afternoon, plus extra time spent on Saturdays. After graduation, the cosmetology students took the required exams, Pre-State and State, which enabled them to work as apprentice beauticians for one year.

With helpful instructions from Mr. Barnes, Warren Hyde attempts to operate the complicated machines in machine shop.

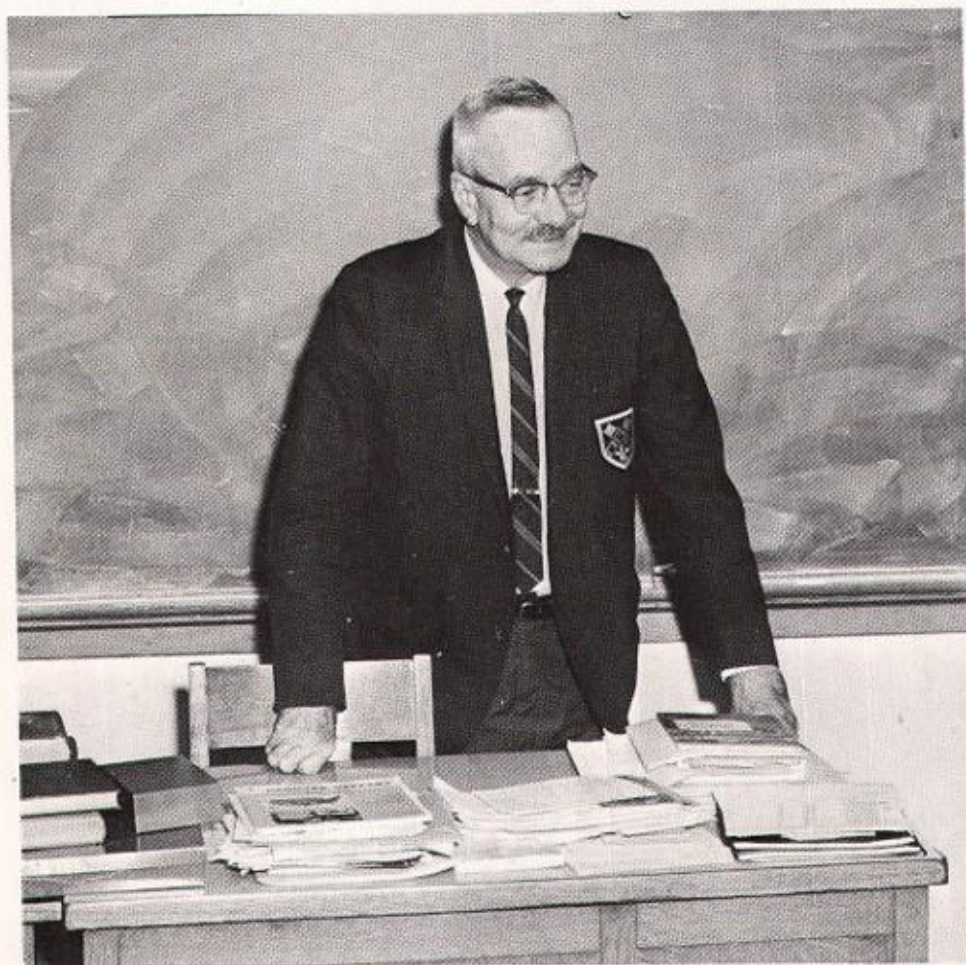

Students listen intently as Mr. Jenkins informally discusses various aspects of the Civil War during United States History class.

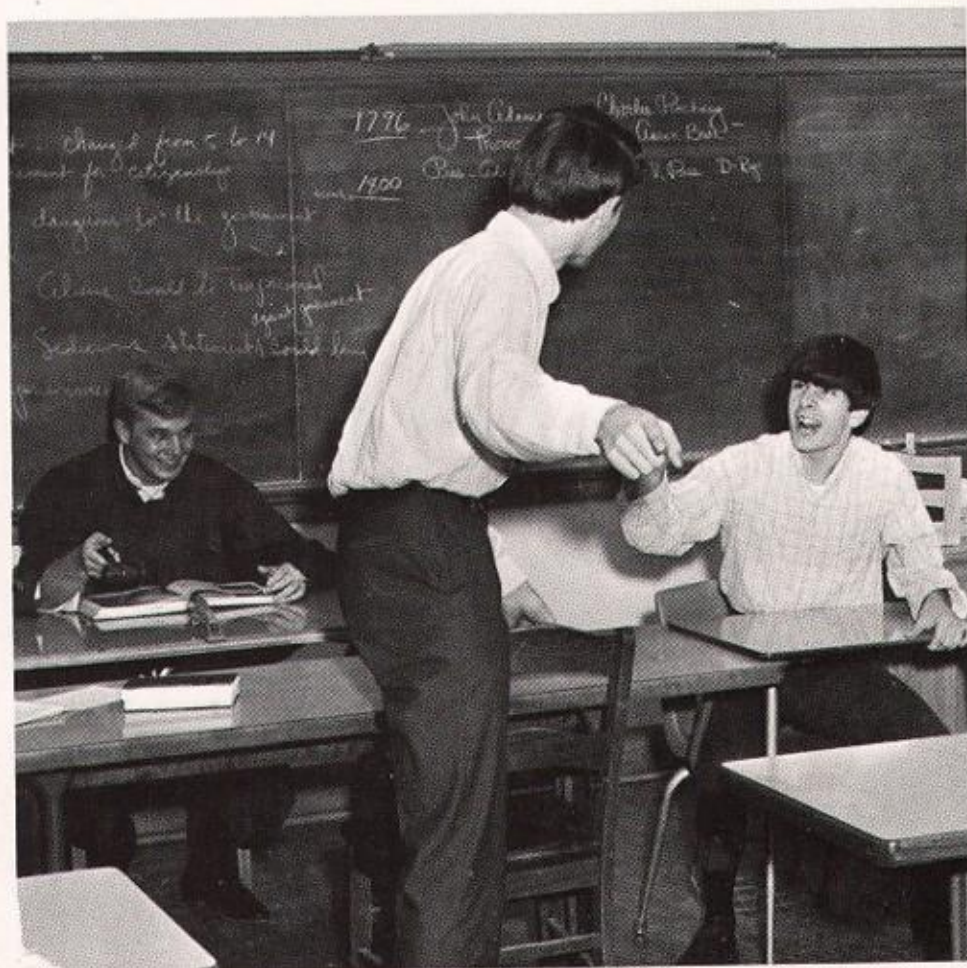

History — key to world understanding

By studying the history of the United States, of the World, and of Mankind, students gained better understanding of the world about them. U.S. History and World History students relived the past of the seven continents through movies, reports, and lectures. In American Government, students experienced the functioning of our government by participating in mock jury trials and legislative sessions. The World Understanding and Comparative Cultures class stressed the study of foreign cultures to promote world understanding. Humanities provided the basis for understanding ourselves by studying the history of man through philosophy and ancient cultures.

Mr. Brisbin has been a favorite history teacher at Eastern for thirty years. Not only will the students miss him when he retires this year, but the Social Studies Department will lose its fine chairman.

"You can't accuse me of that!" screams Bob Killips to Prosecutor David Jones, while Judge Rick Benedict views the argument with pure delight during a mock trial in American Government class.

Mr. Asumaa, a strong believer in visual aids, prepares to show a movie to his Humanities Class. Sandy Nichols, Diane Helton, Jim Smalley, Randy Ralph, and Jon Hayden wait anxiously for the movie to begin.

Students from area high schools attend Eastern for a session in the new World Understanding and Comparative Cultures Class.

Paul Palmer of Eastern seems to be receiving special attention from the teacher, Mr. Mott.

Languages introduce students to new cultures and Spending a useful and interesting class period, Russian students browse through books illustrating Russian architecture.

Foreign languages at Eastern endeavored to accomplish the objectives of mastering a language and obtaining a knowledge of the culture behind it. Through French, Latin, Spanish, German, and Russian classes, Eastern's students were offered a wide curriculum in foreign languages with additional practice available in the language laboratory.

Short dramatizations in beginning French emphasized comprehension and pronunciation of the language. French grammatical structure was studied, in addition to the culture and history of French speaking nations. Latin is not dead, even though many students dubbed it as the "dead language." Any Latin student will confirm that it proved an asset in studying English, History, and other foreign languages. Spanish provided a wide range of learning experiences including instruction in the principles of syntax, and a study of contemporary Spanish culture. The mastery of German increased through an emphasis on oral work. Combining classroom assignments which stressed pronunciation, German history and culture were discussed with supplementary reading and composition. The conversational aspect continued to be stressed in Russian also. Students came in contact with cultural materials, with the added advantage of filmstrips and slides of the Soviet Union which were viewed periodically.

Both bewilderment and understanding demonstrates themselves to be part of a German class' expression as Mrs. Hageman goes over form an intricate part of school curriculum

The introduction of Roman lethal weapons in first year Latin sets off a strange reaction. Carried away by "Roman legend," the weapons of Steve Trimpe, Ken Gilton, and Wayne Mitchell come a little bit too close for comfort for Sharon Landon, who pleads with them with the aid of a sweet-sounding lyre. Fellow classmate Carol Hill amusingly looks on.

Mrs. Schimmel explains a new declension of nouns to Gina Westcott, as Albert Zamora offers his assistance and Judy Case assumes a "knowing" expression.

Miss Ferguson's second year French class listens attentively to Elsbeth Frey, a Swiss student studying in the United States, as she discusses a painting depicting French culture.

Music department provides outlet for talent

Terri Colthrop raises the roof in the orchestra class with her high-flying bass as Tod Colthrop and Jill Scott stare in amazement.

A high school isn't complete unless it has the spirit of the Music Department to back it up. Students interested in vocal music participated in many different activities, including the Mixed Chorus, Madrigal Choir, Girls Glee Club, Girls Choir, and the Quakerettes. Members of these gifted groups took part in school assemblies, with the Easter and Christmas assemblies being the highlights of the year. The Vocal Music department also staged a musical, "Oklahoma." Newly added to the vocal music department this year were the Quaker Singers. Displaying their talents at the Civic Center in a presentation called "A Day With The Arts" proved an honor for the new group.

The band aided in keeping Quaker spirits high this year, and they managed to keep their ratings on top at State Competition. Arousing spirits during football games, pep rallies, city parades, and school assemblies, the band culminated a very successful year.

Under the direction of Mr. Smith, the band works diligently during one of their daily practice sessions.

The new floral creations made this year from crepe paper brought delight to both teacher and students as Mrs. Shideler aided Gaylord Rumzek, Sue Anderson, Jana Hollandsworth, and Dana Spatrisano in arranging them.

Art draws creativity

Academic subjects have always developed the intellectual side of the student, but what of the student's other side, the side of creativity? By electing some type of art course, the student had an opportunity to develop this area of his talents. The main goal of the Art Department was to give the student experiences to help him develop a criterion for evaluating a thing of beauty. They experimented with as many media as possible, including painting, sculpture, ceramics, graphics, and drawing, using the history of art for a background.

Knowing what makes the car go is an important part of the Driver Education program. Mr. Deeghan points out the cylinder block where the "piston-pushing trio" (fuel, air, and ignition) meet to provide power.

Expanding cities bring more new drivers

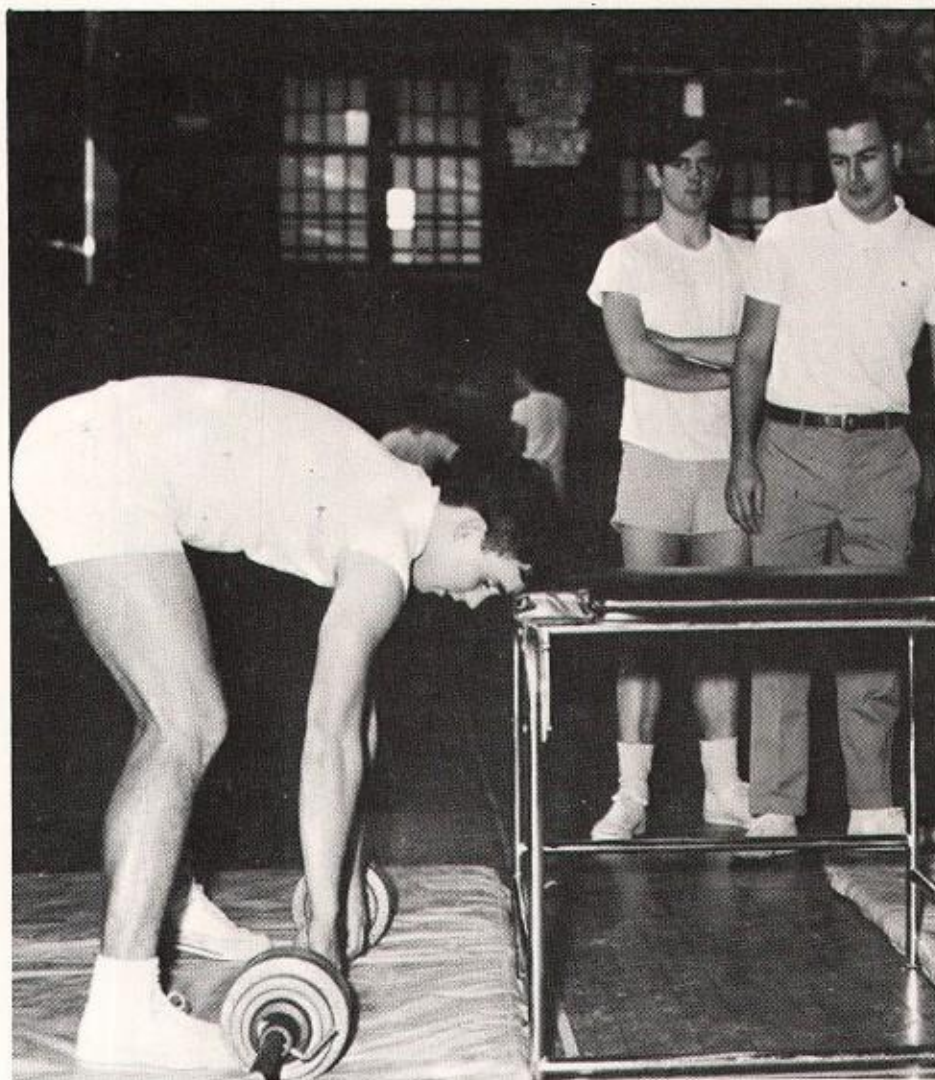

Because of the vast urbanization and expansion of our cities, it has become progressively vital to know how to drive. However, it has become even more important to know the proper way to drive. This "hazardous", but most important task, faced Mr. Deeghan, Mr. Schneider, and Mr. Schleicher, Eastern's Driver Education instructors. Through classwork supplemented by movies, the Driver Education program taught road regulations and the basic car components. For "behind the wheel" experience in the classroom, the model DOT cars aided the students in shifting gears and working signals. Finally there was the final test in actual traffic and highway driving. After completing this course, the student received a learner's permit which allowed him to practice the techniques learned in the class before applying for his license.

Dave Cook engineers his DOT car according to the instructions of Mr. Schleicher.

Gym classes stressed increased skill and sportsmanship

Physical education classes not only provided a break in the regular academic subjects at Eastern, but also helped the student to develop skills and a first hand knowledge of sports and sportsmanship. Gym classes included a wide variety of sports and recreational skills, including soccer, volleyball, basketball, archery, tumbling, swimming, tennis, and track and field, with additional instruction for boys in football and wrestling. Physical education courses emphasized body co-ordination, increased skill, sportsmanship, and above all—a willingness to try.

Home Economics prepares students for future

Gail Griffin, Carol Seeger, Chris Jones, Tammy Keenan, and Barb Maddon carefully cut out their patterns, hoping that the final product will be as perfect in its creation as in their imagination.

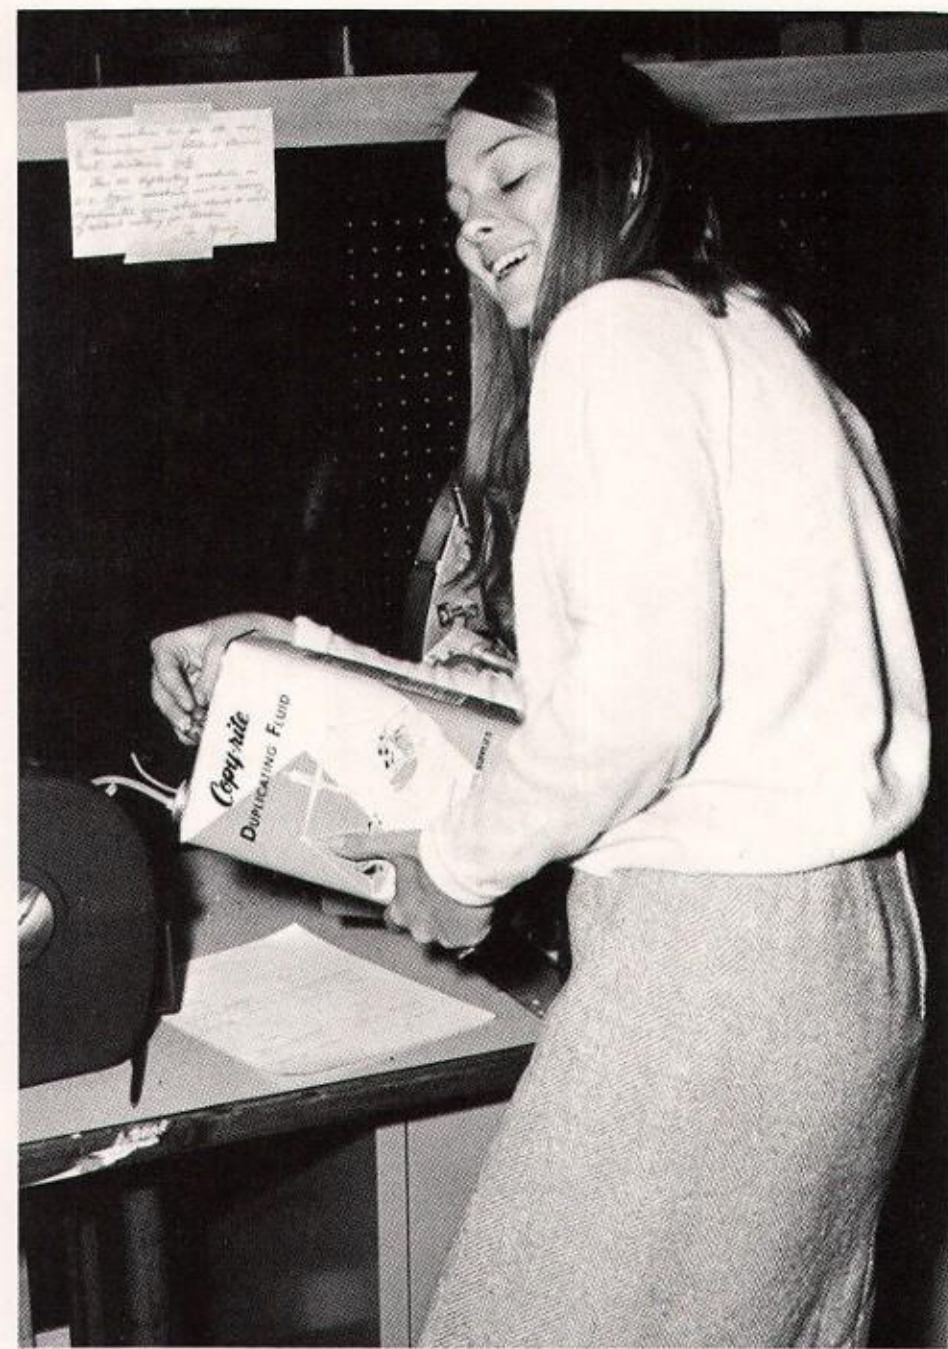

Through the learning of various subjects involving the home, Home Economics students prepared for future application of these techniques. Varied courses were offered which provided a diversified curriculum in home care and management.

In Clothing, topics ranged from wardrobe planning on a limited amount of money to the care and storage of the family wardrobe. Also required for this course was a sewing construction project. The nutritional needs of the individual and the planning, preparing, and serving of food were stressed in Foods and Nutrition. Students also developed managerial skill which helped them become better informed consumers. The Home Management course helped girls learn how to budget their money and time. The development of values and goals in life was a chief objective achieved in Social Problems. Social Economics, a one-semester course designed to meet the personal needs of senior boys, stressed the areas of personal development and money management. Another one-semester course, Family Living, was designed to prepare young people for a satisfying family life.

Counselors offer helpful assistance

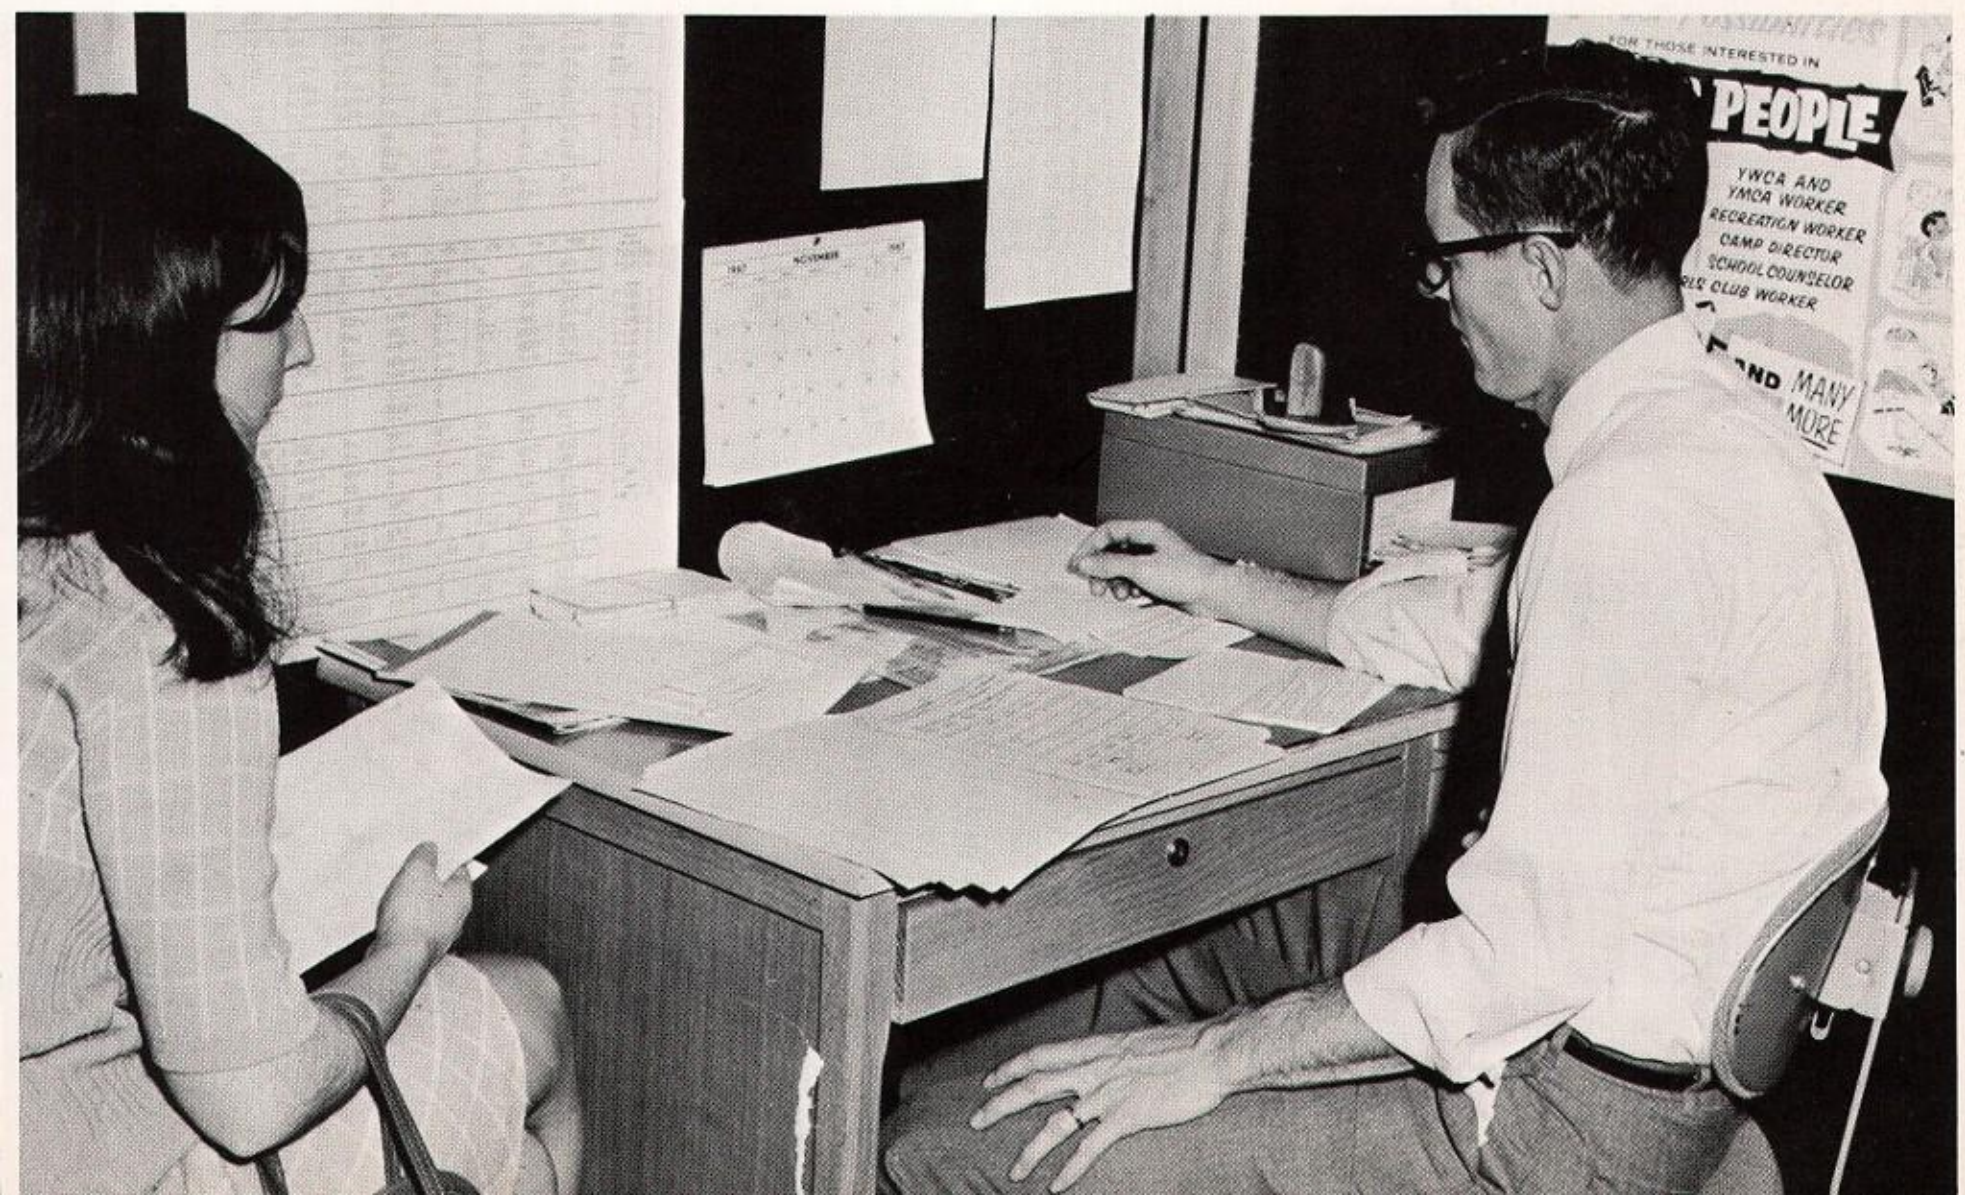

Students at Eastern used the services of the guidance counselors for answering all types of questions. The counselors helped to solve problems dealing with such things as vocational plans, college plans, and class scheduling. The teachers available to answer these questions and others have acquired a Master's Degree in guidance training.

Besides furnishing understanding, counselors concerned with the welfare of Eastern's students, the Student Services Department also furnished pamphlets to help the students. The pamphlets dealt with vocations, colleges, armed forces, and many other items of interest. Representatives from the armed forces, different professions, various colleges, and many fields of business were sponsored by the Student Services Department to speak to students at special assemblies. They also sponsored several tests for upperclassmen concerning college entrance. The counselors, in every possible way, helped all the students at Eastern.

"Maybe if I try it with my eyes closed, I can keep from spilling it," says Julie Landon, as she tries for the last time to fill the duplicating machine.

Cafeteria staff and custodians keep E.H.S. operating efficiently

Eastern's custodians and cafeteria staff were indispensable in the operation of our school. The custodians, responsible for the maintenance of our school, not only kept our school clean, but also replaced broken windows, prepared stage sets, and performed various other duties necessary in the functioning of the school. The cooks had an even greater task; satisfying the huge appetites of Eastern's students. To the delight of the students, they accepted the challenge and came up with a variety of interesting menus.

EASTERN'S CUSTODIANS: M. C. Griffith, Harold Harmon, Charley Brawner, Barry Holcomb, Mike Magnotta, Frank Mann, and Dick Schueller all chip in to hold the ladder for Dick Lintz while he replaces a light.

While Mrs. Wing attempts to open a can of honey, Mrs. Duhan waits to give assistance if necessary.

Meals at Eastern require a great deal of time and effort from our Cafeteria Staff. Mrs. Corville and Mrs. Yarger prepare the salad for the day's meal.

Miss Faye Rich offers her freshly sharpened pencils to Mrs. Joyce Huffman, but Miss Teri Hoke exclaims, "I have first choice!"

Dependence on secretaries daily requirement

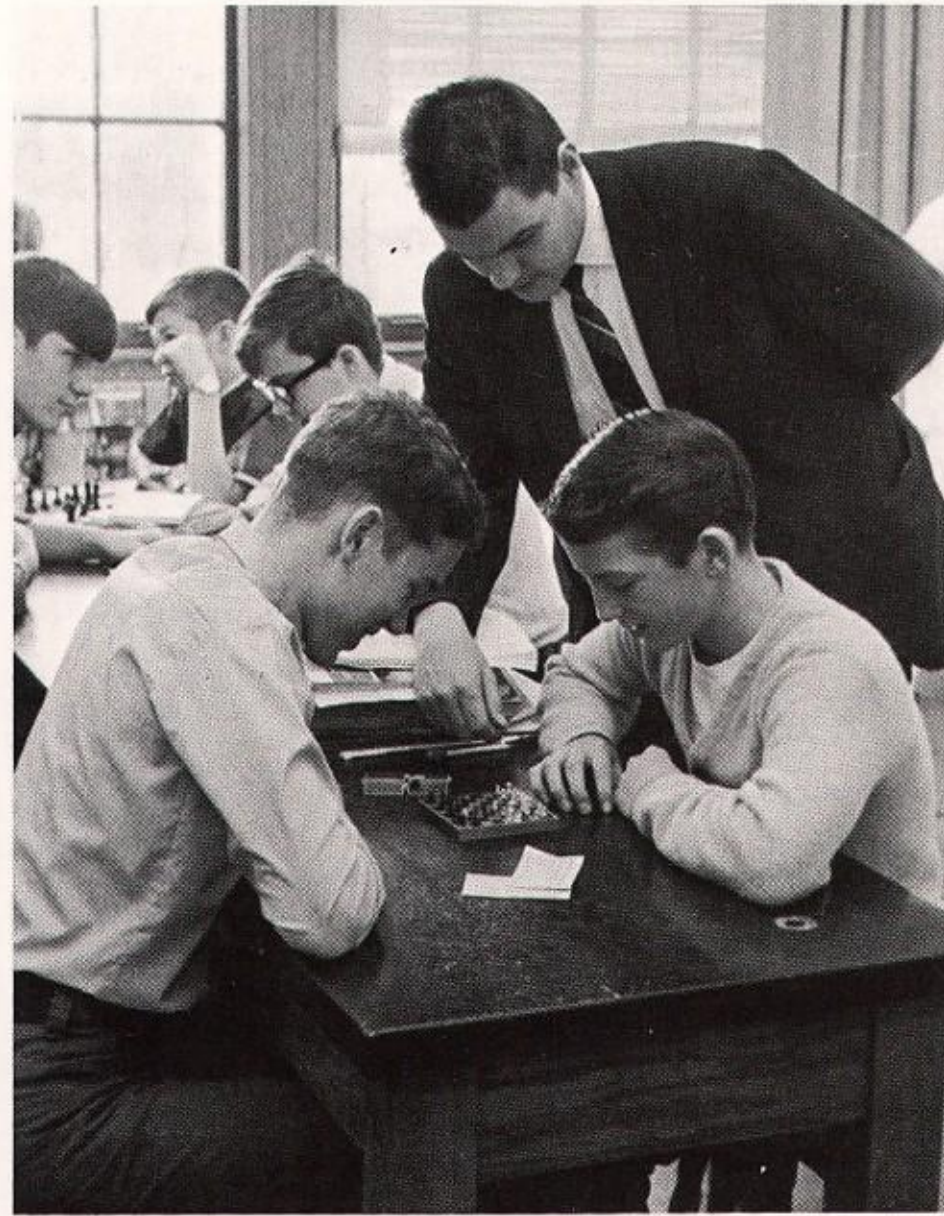

The efficient performance of secretarial duties was necessary to keep Eastern running smoothly behind the scenes. The endless demands required of Eastern's secretaries were met with a cheerful and helpful disposition, whatever the request. Daily, they performed a variety of duties to assist administrators, faculty, and students, including answering telephone calls, compiling records, distributing supplies, checking attendance records, and selling tickets. Always needed and always available were the ever-dependable persons behind the scenes—the secretaries.

activities. Through activities, students are given additional opportunities not offered in the curriculum to develop their interests. The Wednesday Activity Period offers students extra time to join one of the many clubs, to work on the LANTERN or the EASTERNER, or to work on Student Council projects. Honor Society members find time to serve their school and community with worthwhile endeavors. Other students in the band, orchestra, and choirs spend time practicing for their annual concerts. Choir members also participate in the musical, while other students display their acting talents in plays. Though academic subjects require and demand a great part of students' lives during school, somehow they manage to find time for . . .

Treasurer Alan VerPlanck and Vice President Jim Smalley argue over a technicality in the Student Council constitution, both confident that their interpretation is the right one. President Jon Hayden finds it impossible to get a word in edgewise. Recording Secretary Nancy Ferris and Corresponding Secretary Suzi Medlock laugh amusingly at the whole incident.

Student Council leads pride through Eastern

Christmas baskets were distributed this year but not without some interference from Student Council officers. Jim Smalley seems indecisive over which toy to choose while Jon Hayden and Alan VerPlanck clutch teddy bears as evidence of their wise choice.

Led by Student Council, the problem of Eastern's appearance was met by students with tremendous response. The regeneration of Pride in Eastern was accomplished only by the deep awareness and concern of those who felt "true pride." With the combined efforts of Student Council and the student body, Eastern again became what it should be, a school with pride in its traditions.

Through the year, Student Council initiated many unique features, including an initial board signed by seniors in the spring, Christmas and Pride Weeks, and the most valuable boy and girl of Student Council during the semester. Also, a Constitutional Committee was established to revise the constitution of Student Council. Eastern's participation in the Toys for Tots Campaign brought them out on top of other area schools. Following precedents set in the past, Student Council sponsored the powder-puff football game, the winter homecoming, and a variety show assembly. This year, also, Student Council established a close relationship with the new Quaker Parents Organization which also aided the stimulation of pep and pride in Eastern.

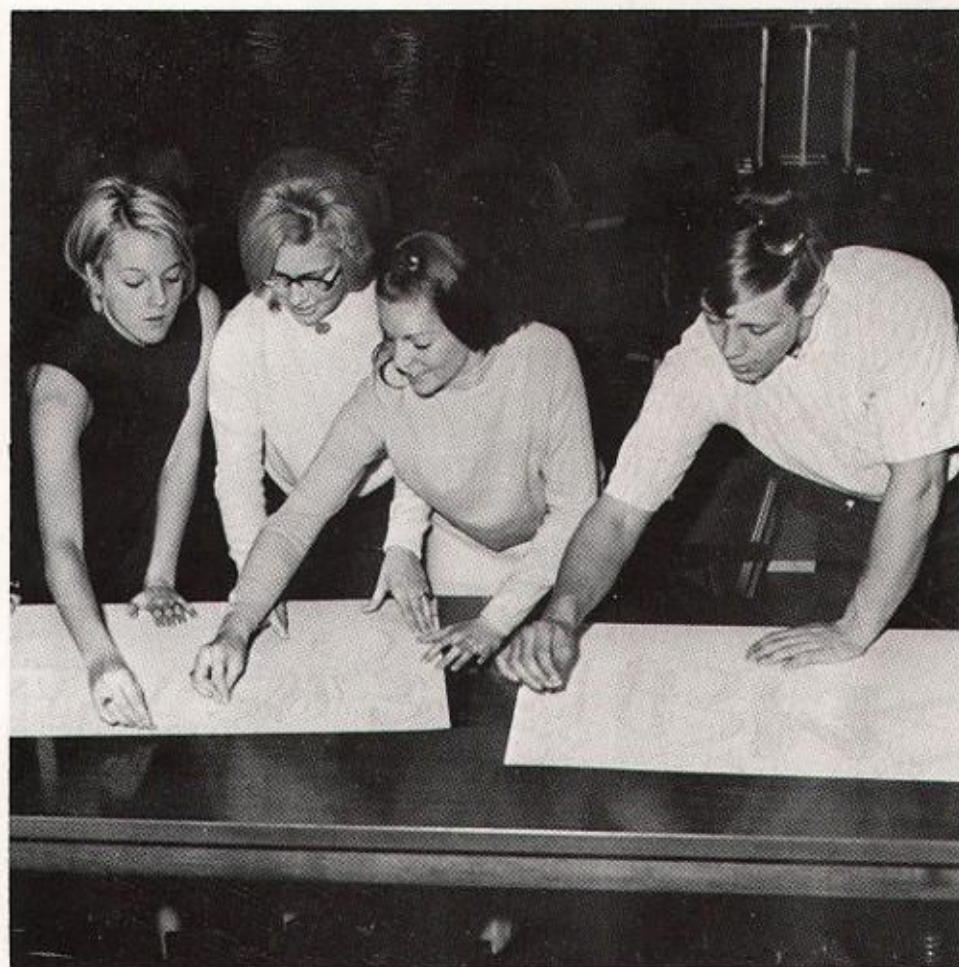

Student Council sees constitutional revision

"Where's the rest of Student Council?" seems the inquiry of second semester officers, Jon Hayden, Treasurer; Jim Smalley, President;

Debbie Barratt, Corresponding Secretary; Nancy Ferris, Recording Secretary; and Alan VerPlanck, Vice President.

Committees prove to be the backbone of Student Council activities. Chairman of the Finance Committee, Rick Wong, gives his report of the committee's progress on financial matters.

Pep and Athletics members Karen Oakes, Debbie Barratt, Jill Tyler, and Gary Malec industriously utilize their artistic talent in making signs to boost Eastern's spirit.

Seriously contemplating the many projects for the second semester are the officers, Barb Stein, treasurer; Jon Hayden, president; Pat Oshel, vice president; Brenda Burgess, secretary.

Honor Society committees provide service

First semester Honor Society officers, Pat Oshel, secretary; Jon Hayden, vice president; Roger Bergh, president; Linda Dodson, treasurer; hit on a pleasant memory as they relive the past semester's accomplishments.

After the initiation of new members, whose selection was based on character, scholarship, leadership, and service, Honor Society began to organize various committees to aid the students, the school, and the community. The Tutor Committee provided tutoring services; the Honor Roll Committee supplied colorful homeroom honor rolls; the School Projects Committee posted the Teen Salute; and the Community Projects Committee sponsored the sending of Christmas cards to soldiers in Viet Nam. Honor Society also sponsored the Christmas Door Decoration Contest and donated funds towards the building of a school in India. Honor Society meetings centered around discussions of current projects or presentations by guest speakers.

New second semester senior Honor Society members were: Geoffrey Alderson, Candie Austin, James Barber, David Buell, Jo Ellen Cooley, Craig Dennis, Janis Dyer, Jeanne Glazier, David Hackney, Kenneth Hendges, Teresa Husbeck, Sandra Jesko, Julie Landon, Diane Leeman, Peter Martinat, Ronald Meck, Michael Moody, Joanne Morley, Sandra Nichols, Barbara Osborne, Sue Peterson, Gretchen Pfotenbauer, Ross Rapaport, Carliejo Redman, Kelvin St. John, and Jaime Torres. The advisor for Honor Society was Miss Eleanor Doersam.

Christmas cheer abounds as Dennis Smith and Sophie Golchoff prepare their door for Honor Society's annual Christmas door decoration contest.

Besides all its own activities, Eastern's Honor Society enjoys the pleasures of Sexton's Christmas party along with Jim Smalley's whimsical humor.

As new Honor Society members, Nancy Eubank, Sue Lindsay, Vicki Alling, and Diane Anderson light their candles, they begin their active service in Eastern's Chapter of the National Honor Society.

Yearbook advisor Miss Aspgren "cracks her whip" on the cowering figures of Suzanne Baisel, Copy Editor; Ron McCallum, Assistant Editor; and Linda Linhart, Editor-in-Chief.

Hard working staff fills production demands

The 1968 Lantern Staff followed the traditional pattern of yearbook production with staff members in a frenzy, hastily trying to meet deadlines. The constant nudging of Editor-in-Chief Linda Linhart and Assistant Editor Ron McCallum combined with the judgement of faculty advisor Miss Aspgren kept the staff members on their toes. Many problems and near crises confronted the "Lantern Lamenters" as they diligently strove to fit the empty pieces of the yearbook puzzle into production. Though they faced numerous hardships, the 1968 staff proved themselves capable of executing the demands made on them by the publishing company and the editors.

Section Editors for the 1968 Lantern were: Administration, Judy Haskell; Activities, Diane Barrows; Sports, Jerry Fine; Seniors, Mary Wilson; Underclass, Carol Young; Advertising, Jan Dyer; and Photography, Vicki Selfo. Suzanne Baisel filled the new position of Copy Editor.

Through osmosis, Jane Crocker imposes her feminine views of sports on Jerry Fine, while Terry Nelson adds his inspiration.

Diligency defines competent LANTERN Staff

"Real wide!" "Extra tall!" "Have lots of smiling people!" Mr. Potter courageously tries to bar the stampede of suggestions offered by our extremely verbal Underclass section, Carol Young, Nancy Scott, and Elaine Pogoncheff.

Another member of this year's diligent Activities Section hits the chopping block. Revengefully grinning, Diane Barrows and Yvonne Jackson deliver the blow as Ron Sipka, cringing in fear, prepares for the impact.

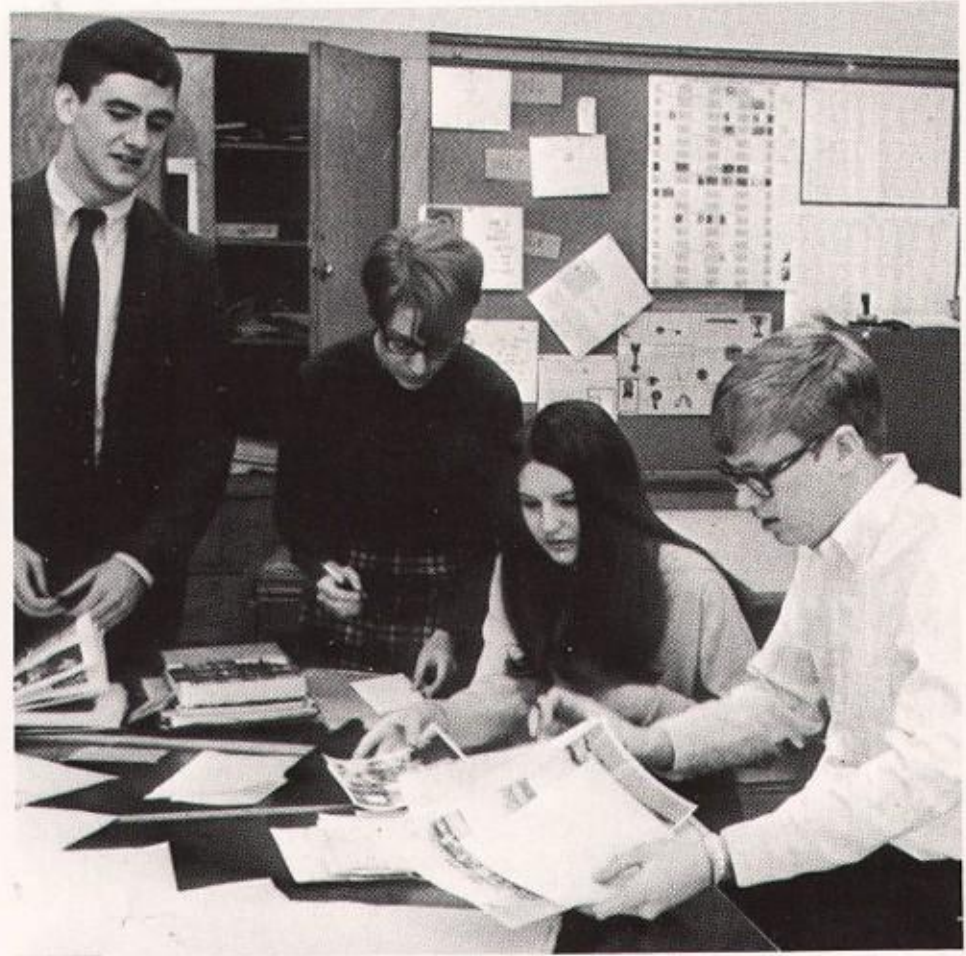

The task of hunting through index cards and keeping records in order is shown by our industrious Senior section members, Sophie Golchoff, Mary Wilson, Sue Stadnyk, and Nancy Gieger.

Sue Sussex and Vicki Selfo exhibit a very organized Photography Section as they sort the plethora of negatives into their notebook.

After being called on the "carpet" by the supreme ruling body of the Lantern Staff, the Advertising Section, consisting of Tom Ley, Jan Dyer, Jackie Gleason, and Paul Premo return to the busy work necessary for yearbook completion.

Yearbook comes out despite many hardships

Brenda Burgess, Judy Haskell, and Wanda Baker, Administration Section, typify the hard working Lantern Staff.

The first semester Easterner staff shows that the continuing cycle of work keeps them busy. Ann Whitford proofreads the copy while Mike Smith and Sue O'Connor prepare the paste-up. Margie

Caldwell pauses for a moment while writing headlines as Dave Brearly finishes typing another "hot Flash."

Small Easterner staff records events monthly

Possibly the smallest Easterner staff in the history of the school tackled the enormous task of publishing a newspaper the first semester. Five students enrolled in the journalism class which made efficient news coverage an almost complete impossibility. Only with the help of writers not in the journalism class could the Easterner survive.

No one editor was elected this year. Three different members of the class took the lead for each of the first semester papers. Margie Caldwell, Ann Whitford, and Sue O'Connor all acted as editors for one edition. Things looked a little brighter the second semester as the size of the journalism class doubled. These students spent more time working on the fundamentals of writing. They constantly looked for new, fresh ideas to liven up the newspaper.

The production of a newspaper involved a never ending cycle. Reporters searched out stories and typed them up. They sent them to the print shop where students set them in type and printed them up on a dummy. When the dummy returned to the journalism class, a paste-up took shape. This went back to the print shop and the final copy resulted. The cycle then repeated for the next issue. The four page newspaper distributed to homerooms each month does not fairly reflect the work necessary for its publication. Probably the only people who know this are the staff members and Mr. William Potter, the advisor.

Ann Voges, Helen Perry, Jo Morley, Jack Stein, Kathy Neff, Sue O'Connor, Craig Miller, Steve Ploehn and Bob Turcotte examine newspapers from other schools to find new ideas for the second semester Easterner.

Jill Tyler reigns as Homecoming Queen

Excitement radiates from Jill Tyler, 1968 Homecoming Queen, as she holds the traditional bouquet of red roses.

Attired in formal gowns, Jill Tyler, the newly crowned queen, and her court, consisting of Sue Grounds, Debbie Omer, Lynn Charland, Dana Spatrisano, and Arminda Presgrove, present a picturesque Homecoming Court for 1968.

Homecoming follows traditional pattern

The steady rains prior to the football game against Jackson had anything but a dampening effect on the crowd of enthusiastic spectators that turned out to see Jill Tyler crowned Homecoming Queen during half-time ceremonies. The members of her court were: Senior, Arminda Presgrove; Juniors, Lynn Charland and Dana Spatrisano; and Sophomores, Debbie Omer and Sue Grounds. A float representing each class was led around Memorial Stadium in honor of the newly crowned queen. The Senior float, "Eat Um Up", headed the procession followed by the Junior float, "Deliver Us To Victory", and the Sophomore float, "Leap To Victory". After the game, the crowd gathered at Eastern's gymnasium where the queen, her court, and their escorts entered the gym in the Grand March. Jill Tyler started the annual Homecoming Dance as she and her escort danced the first number with the rest of the couples joining in.

Seventeenth century France returns to Eastern

Molière's THE PHYSICIAN IN SPITE OF HIMSELF, a classic seventeenth century French play, was presented as the annual fall production in December. Over four hundred years old, the play's humor and wit showed that Molière's style still survives and served to make this production a truly memorable experience, both for the cast and the audience. Costumes for the production were constructed from nearly authentic seventeenth century patterns and colors and provided the unusually bare setting with a flood of brilliant hues. The actors delivered Molière's lines with a casual humor and moved at a fast, athletic pace, sometimes tumbling across the stage with gleeful abandon.

Drums boom, fanfare explodes, voices resound and the clatter of heels fill the stage as Dave Kostichuk, Brian McCall, Tim Barrus announce "A Play Tonight."

Geronte (Jack Guthrie) introduces the esteemed doctor (Larry Casler) to his daughter, the demure Lucinda (Nancy McCauley),

"Aw, come on" seems to be Moleire's (Larry Casler) plea in his attempt to reach peaceful grounds with his wife (Jeaneen Casper).

Although the tenseness and excitement of a performance shows on the faces of the cast, they somehow manage to receive last minute instructions from Miss Steegstra.

Enthusiastic students watch and bid their extra change as Warren Clark auctions Nancy Gilbert off for the slave day sale.

Annual Pep Week sparks Eastern student body

Another year, another game, and another Sexton dummy is hanged.

The task of stimulating the interest of the student body in preparation for another Eastern-Sexton battle was successfully carried out by Pep Week. Every day a different event was held, leading up to the pep assembly and the game with Sexton. Pep Week officially opened Monday with slave day. During noon hours, members of the Student Council were auctioned off as slaves. Tuesday, students collected bits of trash and placed them in containers with their favorite teacher's name on it. The titles of trash king and queen were bestowed upon Howard Cook and Fran Powell, who were crowned Friday at the pep assembly. Casual day went into effect on Wednesday when students were allowed to wear bermudas, slacks, and sweat shirts. Thursday brought a contrasting change from Wednesday with dress-up day. A dummy representing a Sexton player was hung amid a crowd of cheering students. Friday climaxed the week with color day. During the lunch hours, a spirit parade led by the marching band and cheerleaders, marched through the school while students cheered for victory.

King Howard Cook happily receives his title from last year's king Mr. Asumaa, who accepted the keys to all the trash barrels in Eastern, while the already crowned Queen Fran Powell carries away the title for a second consecutive year.

Marc Kibby, John Hepinstall, Basil Ellis, and Richard Hollenbeck clown in the halls in their casual day attire.

Joanne Morley and Helen Perry show their loyalty to Pep Week by participating in dress-up day.

1967 Synchronized Swimmers make

Lorie Preidis and Charmine Messenger predict good weather in "Rain to Stop. Rain Bows to Prevail."

The 1967 water show, put on by the Mermaid Club, was entitled "Headlines in Rhythm." Many different acts were presented corresponding to the sections of a newspaper. Kevin Hogan and Ed Thorpe, depicting roles of newspaper reporters, introduced the acts. Bright colorful costumes set off the pace of the synchronized swimmers as they performed their various stunts with grace and accuracy. Two solos highlighted the evening as Evelyn Huff and Patty Smith displayed their skills before an enthusiastic audience. The finale of the production, which included the entire cast, was headed "Hot off the Press." The 1967 Mermaid Club members were Jill Carpenter, Kathy Casterton, Barb Chamberlain, Linda Hatt, Doris Hazelton, Paula Keeler, Becky Kruger, Evelyn Huff, Pam Huff, Diane Leeman, Lorie Preidis, Derry Marble, Gloria Mayes, Charmine Messenger, Marg Roney, Patty Smith and Barb Stein.

Barb Chamberlain, Kathy Casterton, Pam Huff, Becky Kruger, Doris Hazelton and Jill Carpenter are shown gleefully celebrating their jail term for moonshining. Perky braids and bright costumes vividly offset the sombering thought of a prison term.

Winter Homecoming brings enchanting evening

During half time ceremonies of the Eastern-Sexton basketball game on January 26, the 1968 Winter Homecoming Court was introduced by Jim Smalley. The Court consisted of Sophomores, Jon Brauer, Sue Grounds, Mike Medlock, Sandy Gregg; Juniors, Tom Ley, Jill Lareau, Sam Davis, Connie Lotoszinski; Seniors, Ross Rapaport, Candy Austin, Kevin Hogan, and Sandy Nichols. After defeating Sexton, Eastern's excited spectators attended the annual Winter Homecoming Dance and viewed the coronation of Queen Sandy Nichols and King Kevin Hogan.

A charming queen, Sandy Nichols, and her proud escort, Kevin Hogan pose as the royal Winter Homecoming couple.

Winter Homecoming representatives were: Sophomores; Jon Brauer, Sue Grounds, Mike Medlock, and Sandy Gregg, Juniors; Tom Ley, Jill Laueau, Sam Davis, and Connie Lotoszinski, Seniors; Ross Rapaport, Candy Austin, Kevin and Sandy Nichols.

"Practice makes perfect," says Dave Dodson as he skillfully executes his stunt on the parallel bars, while Angie Espinoza, Carol Cyphers, Maria Villarreal, Patty Smith, Debbie McCreery, Denise Denning, Betty Lloyd, Char Isham, Paula Keeler, Cheryl Girvin, Laura Spangler, Kathy KarKau, Bonnie Crego, and Mrs. Schafer look on enviously.

"See, it's easy," explains Patty Smith as she gracefully clears the vaulting horse with a high leap.

Coed gymnastics bring interest to exercise

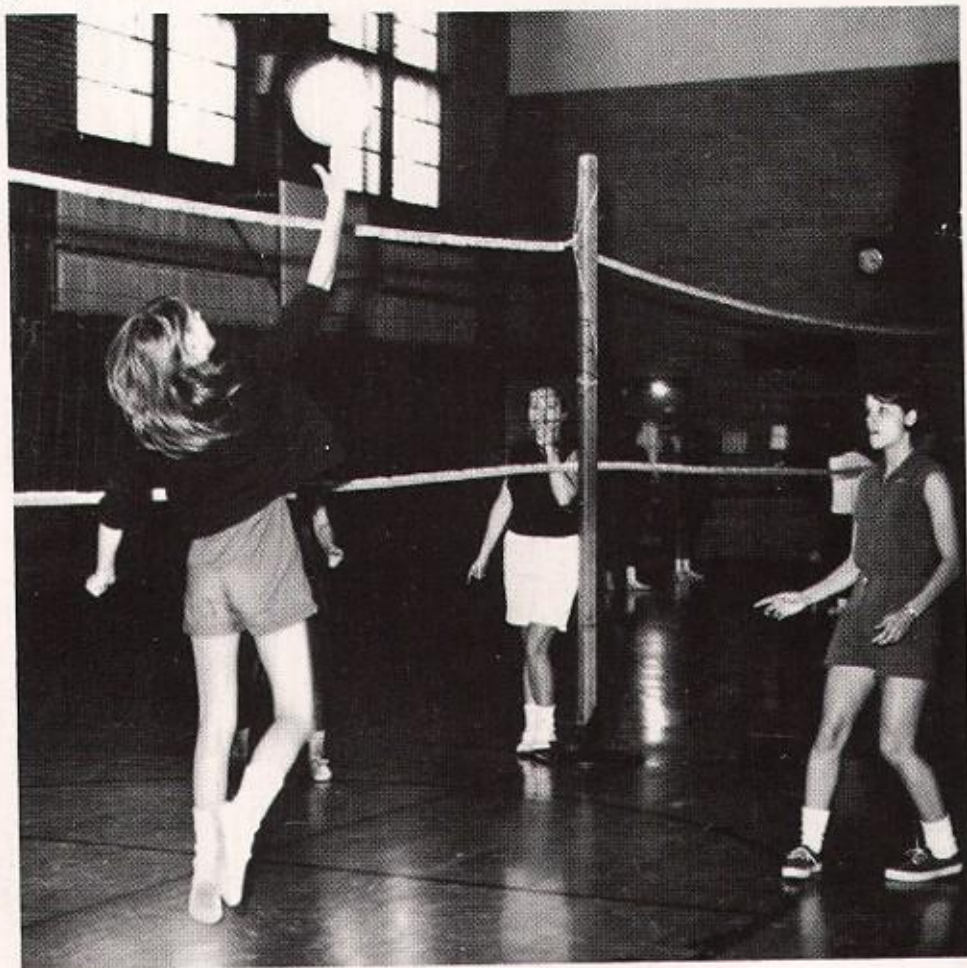

This year girls and boys tumbled, vaulted, and leaped in the bouncing new club of Coed Gymnastics. Mrs. Schafer and Mr. Pettit headed this new and exciting club. Included in the programs for the semester were tumbling, even and uneven parallel bars, balance beam, and the vaulting horse and box. It was a small wonder that a new interest developed in that tedious activity of exercise.

girls' interest in sports; builds character

The girls in G.A.A. have been involved in a variety of activities, both after school and on activity day. Some of the activities which the different groups participated in were: Archery, Volleyball, Bowling, and Mermaids. Mermaids held their annual water show, which took place at Otto Jr. High School. Bowling was held at Holiday Lanes. All of these activities began with an initiation which included the wearing of war paint for one day.

The special events that G.A.A. girls were involved in were: a style show, a bake sale, a mum sale for the Homecoming game, a mother and daughter banquet, and an All-City track meet. The club also participated in bike rides and horseback riding events. The club also encouraged the promotion of good sportsmanship and participation among the girls.

Girls crowd around the desk waiting their turn for G.A.A. sign-up.

Participants in the G.A.A. style show were: First row: Cris Rice, Carol Slate, Angela Espinoza, Paula Keeler, Sharon Brewer, Linda Dodson. Second row: Stephanie Redburn, Karen Oakes, Jill Tyler, Jamie Baldwin, Sophie Golchoff, Carmella Knapp, Marsha Schalow, Neva Frost, Debbie Barratt, Lenore Bolles, Elaine Hershey, Lorie Preidis, Pat Smith, Terry Fitzgerald, Shirley Fish, Cheryl Donahue, Jill Lareau, Tom Ley.

Canoe trip heads Varsity Club activities

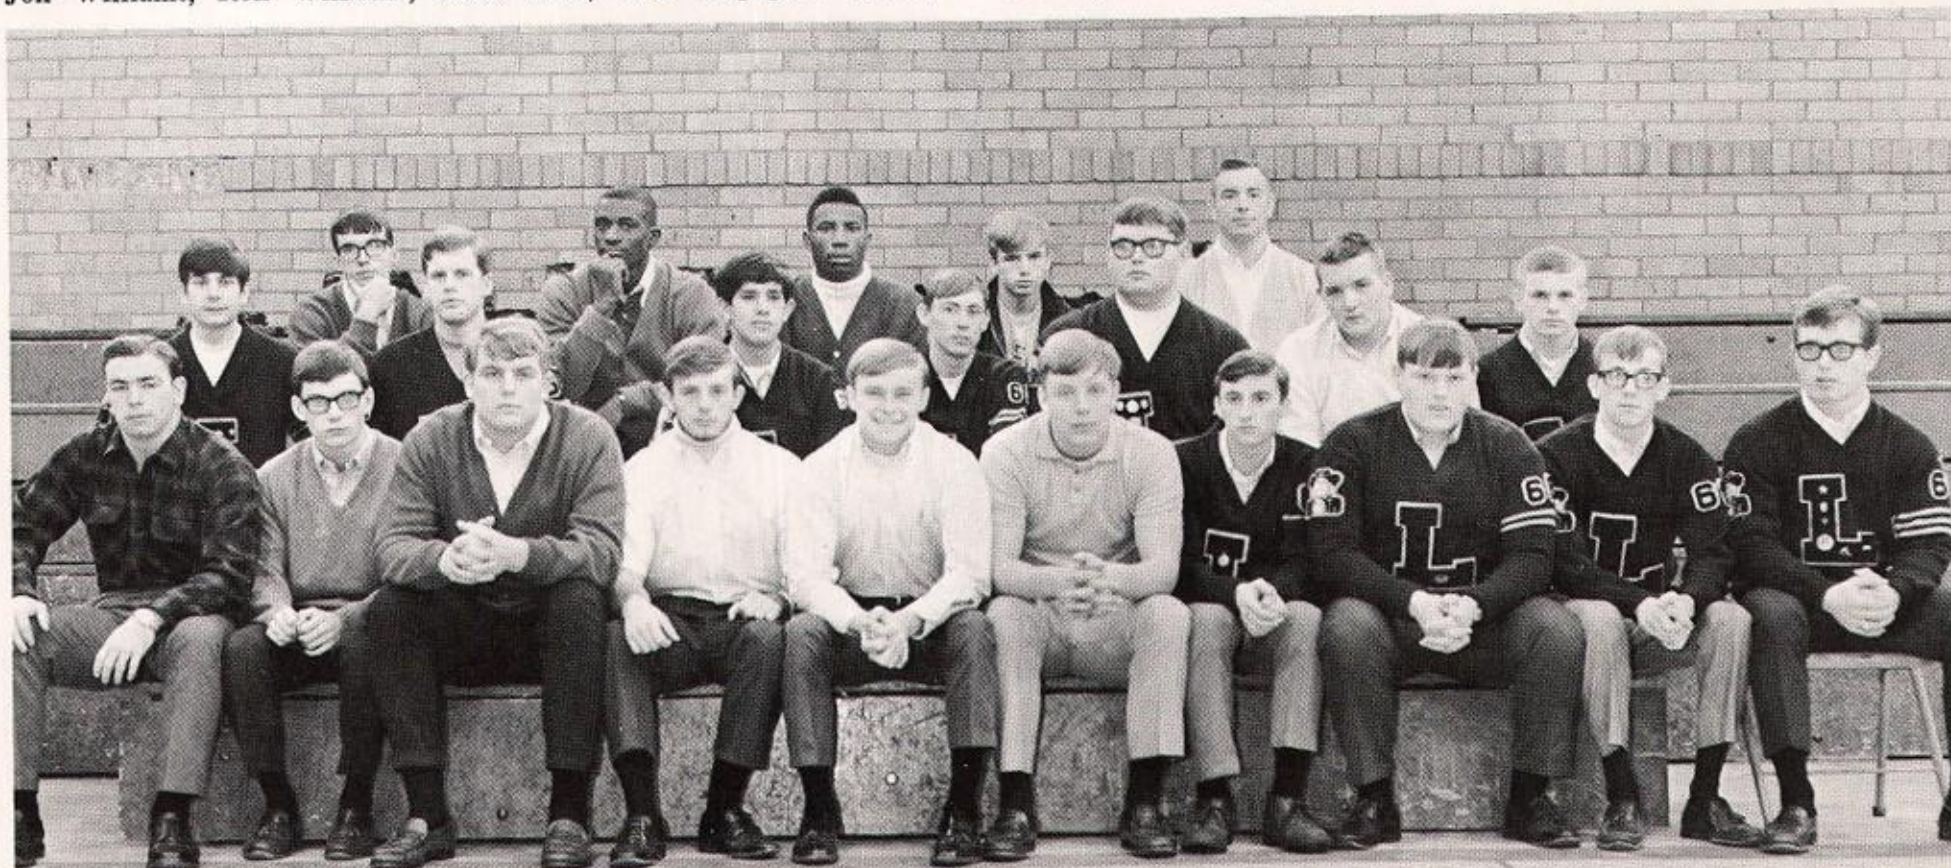

To aid in financing the canoe trip held on the Pine River, the Varsity Club sold popcorn and coke at the basketball games. Money was also raised by sponsoring a basketball game between the club members and Eastern's faculty. The faculty, who had been accused of "stretching the rules in their favor," were defeated by the honest Varsity Club team. Although the Varsity Club won by a narrow margin, 46 to 45, their honesty still triumphed. Varsity Club members also donated their time to the selling of the Old News-boy newspaper sold in December. The proceeds from the newspaper bought shoes and boots for the needy Lansing area children. Other activities included trips to different Michigan State University varsity athletic programs.

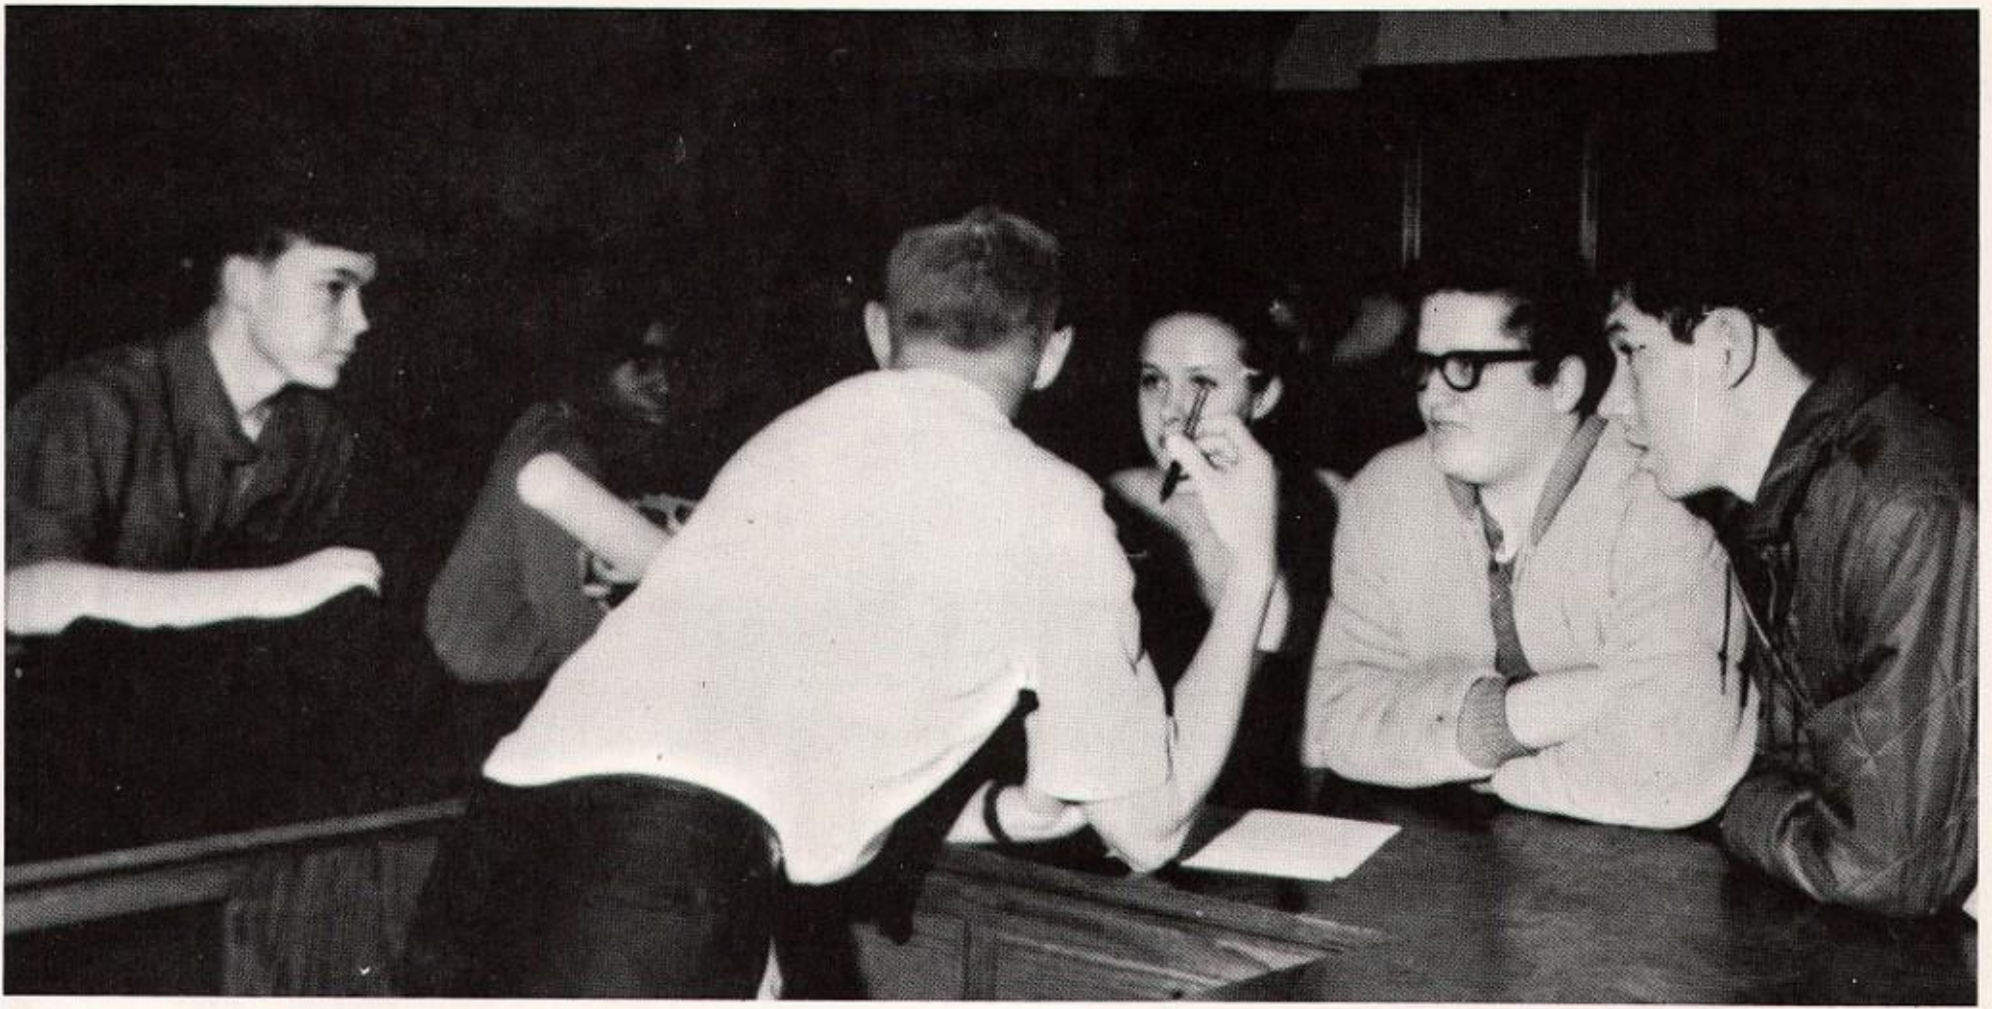

As Mr. Schneider attempts to pass the ball to another Faculty team member, Ron Williams jumps in to rescue Ed Brayton's defensive tactics.

The objective of Ski Club was to acquaint students with the exciting sport of skiing. The club was invited to a special showing of ski accessories at Knapp's after store hours. During the year, a representative of the store explained the quality levels of equipment at one of the regular meetings. Students learned vicariously the methods of handling the slopes through the viewing of films on skiing techniques. Advisors encouraged the members to experience the feel of skiing first-hand by joining The State Journal Ski School at Mt. Brighton. The club instituted several money-raising projects to provide funds for an inexpensive skiing trip. These included the selling of tickets to the annual ski movie put on by the Downtown Merchants and the raffling of a gigantic stuffed animal. With the proceeds from these projects, the club hoped to leave on several one-day trips and perhaps one skiing week-end before the slopes closed for the season.

Weight Lifting, Rifle Clubs develop abilities

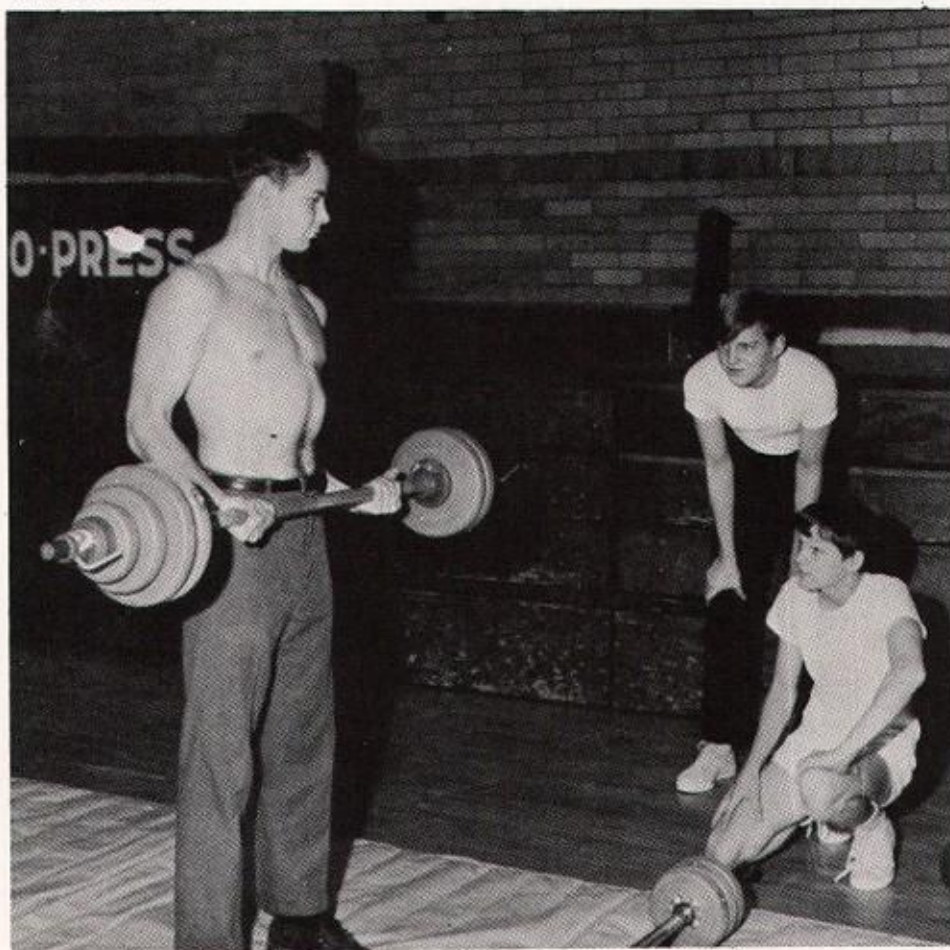

Rifle Club members take time for valuable practice in attaining accurate marksmanship.

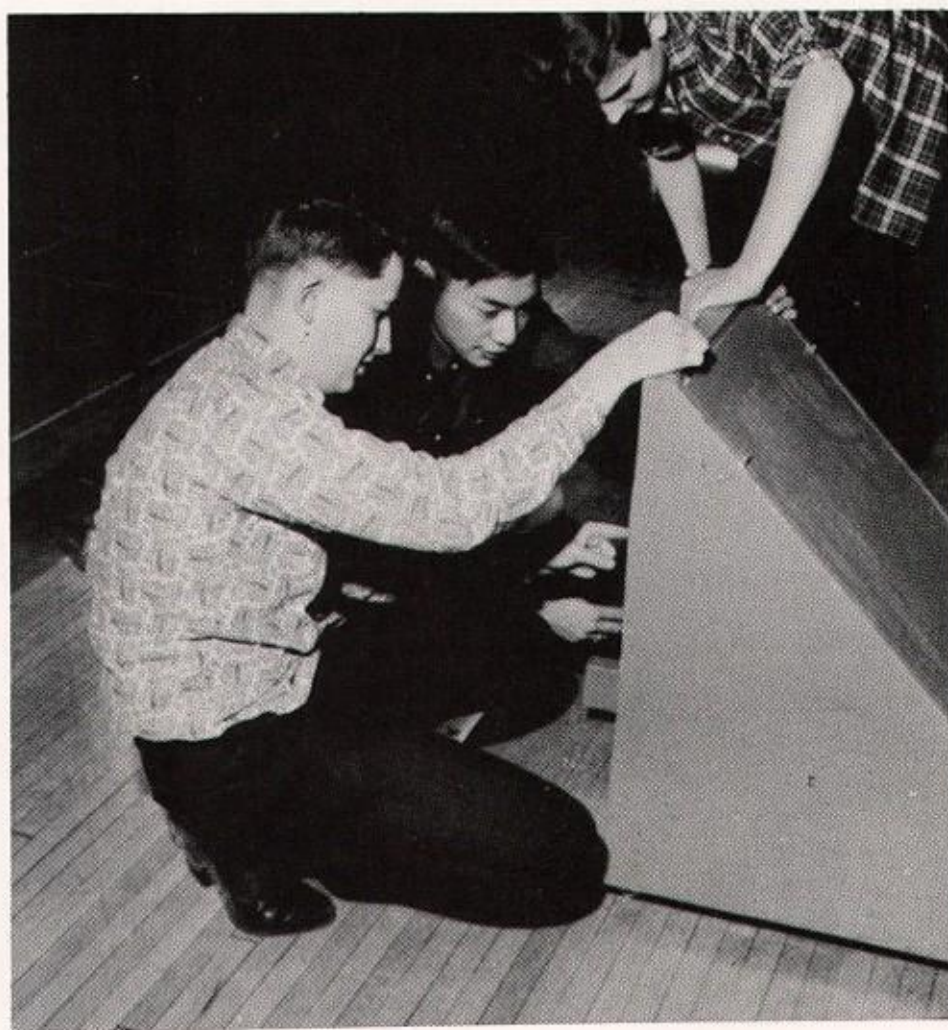

Rifle Club's goal—handling firearms with skill and safety instilled in members—the necessity of the proper care in using rifles. Positions from which firearms could be shot were standing, sitting, kneeling, and lying horizontally. Rifle Club “aimed” to develop these positions to perfection. This new club proved exciting to the various students who decided to tackle the sport. Planning to become affiliated with the National Rifle Association, Rifle Club hoped eventually to form a competitive rifle team representing Eastern that can participate in tournaments. Officers of the Rifle Club were: Kate Geiger, president; Jim Beattie, vice president; Steve Trimpe, executive officer; and Richard Evans, treasurer.

The Weight Lifters Club provided the boys with an opportunity to improve their physical fitness and develop their muscles. The weight lifting program extended to the gym classes. The advisor was Mr. Hoag.

Dave Yeoman demonstrates the proper weight lifting techniques to envious onlookers.

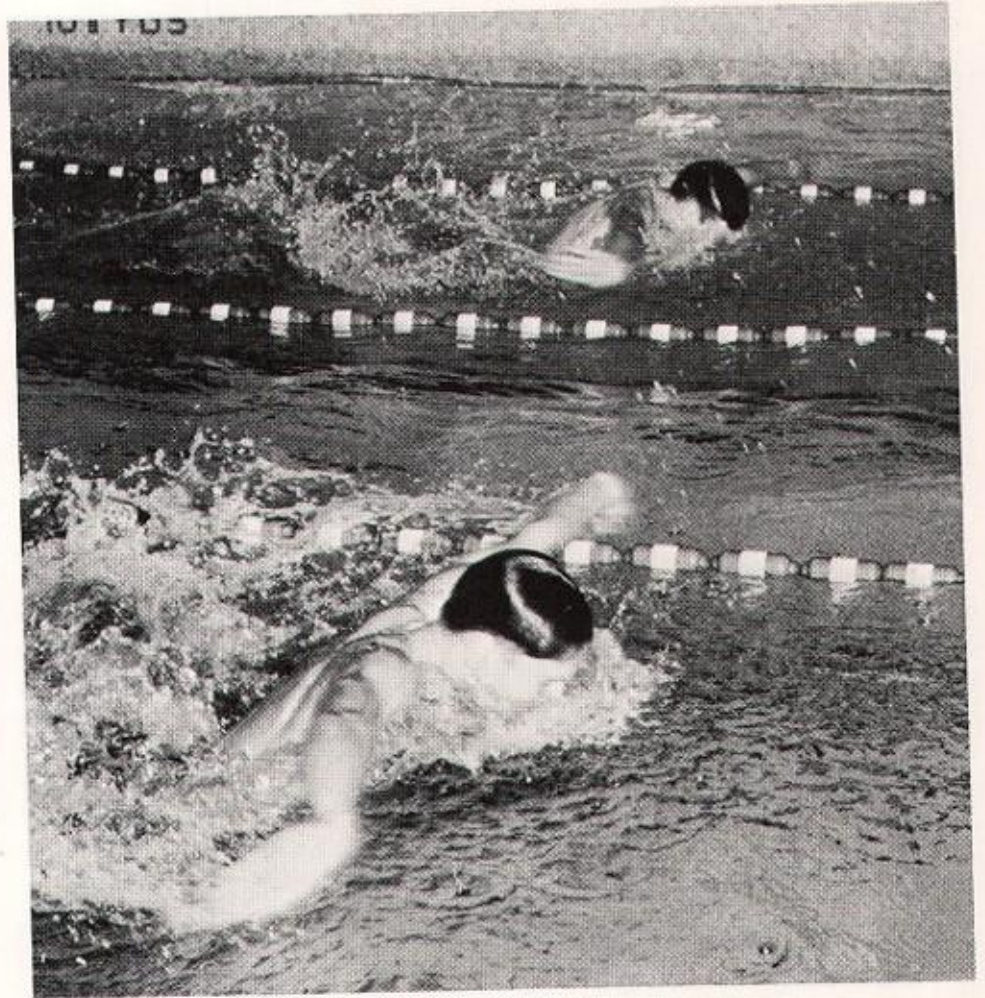

Checking their accuracy, Danny Mc Clain, Jim Wong, and Keith Florian examine the target.

Pigskin and Porpoise Clubs attract athletes

The Pigskin Club, organized for all boys interested in varsity football, had an interesting and informative year as they studied the technical and tactical aspects of the game. Films of various games were shown, and with explanations of the plays from Mr. Dingman, the club advisor, the group maintained football enthusiasm throughout the off-season.

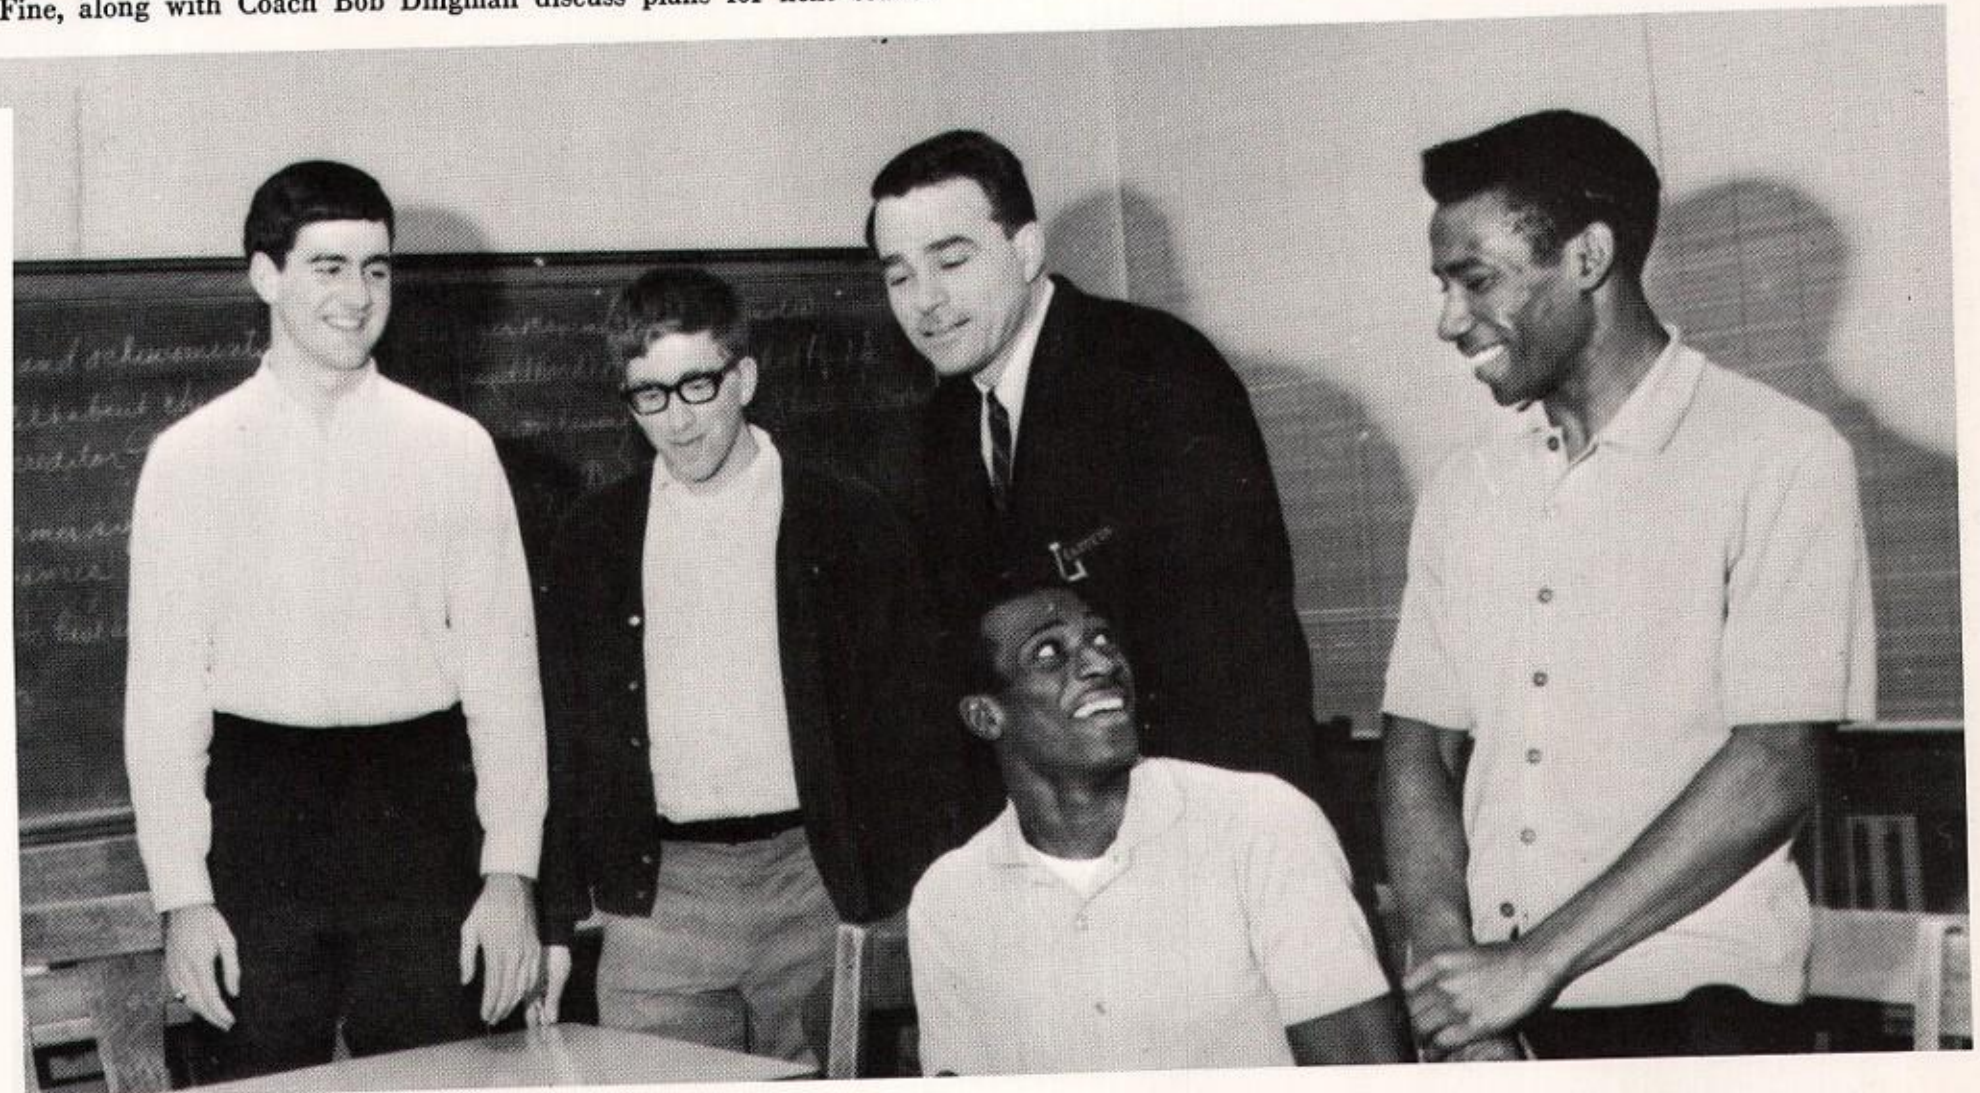

Although most Porpoise Club members were also members of the swimming team, the club was open to both veteran swimmers and those with less experience. The main purpose of the club was to help its members become stronger swimmers. The Porpoise Club, when not in the pool, discussed plans for their summer excursion, the swimming of the Straits of Mackinac. Under the supervision of Mr. Howard, the club advisor, the members will attempt the five mile straits in August.

F.C.A., Campus Life related, but goals differ

Members of F.C.A., Leonard Hunter, Kevin Hogan, Mike Moody, Charlie Cross, and Sam Davis plan future activities of the year with their advisor, Mr. Dingman.

The F.C.A., Fellowship of Christian Athletes, under the direction of Mr. Dingman, sponsored guest speakers and group discussions on the relationship of sports to Christian living. The most important objective of F.C.A., and the one Eastern's chapter worked hardest to achieve, was Christian growth, centering around two common interests, Christianity and athletics.

The Campus Life Club, open to students interested in its philosophy of the value of a balanced life, discussed the physical, emotional, and social aspects of life, placing the greatest emphasis on life's spiritual relationships. The club sponsored discussions which brought out these four aspects. Supplementing the discussions, the club enjoyed relevant speakers and films. The advisor for the club was Mr. Shade.

Steve Slater tries to quell the confusion of a Hi-Y meeting by calling it to order.

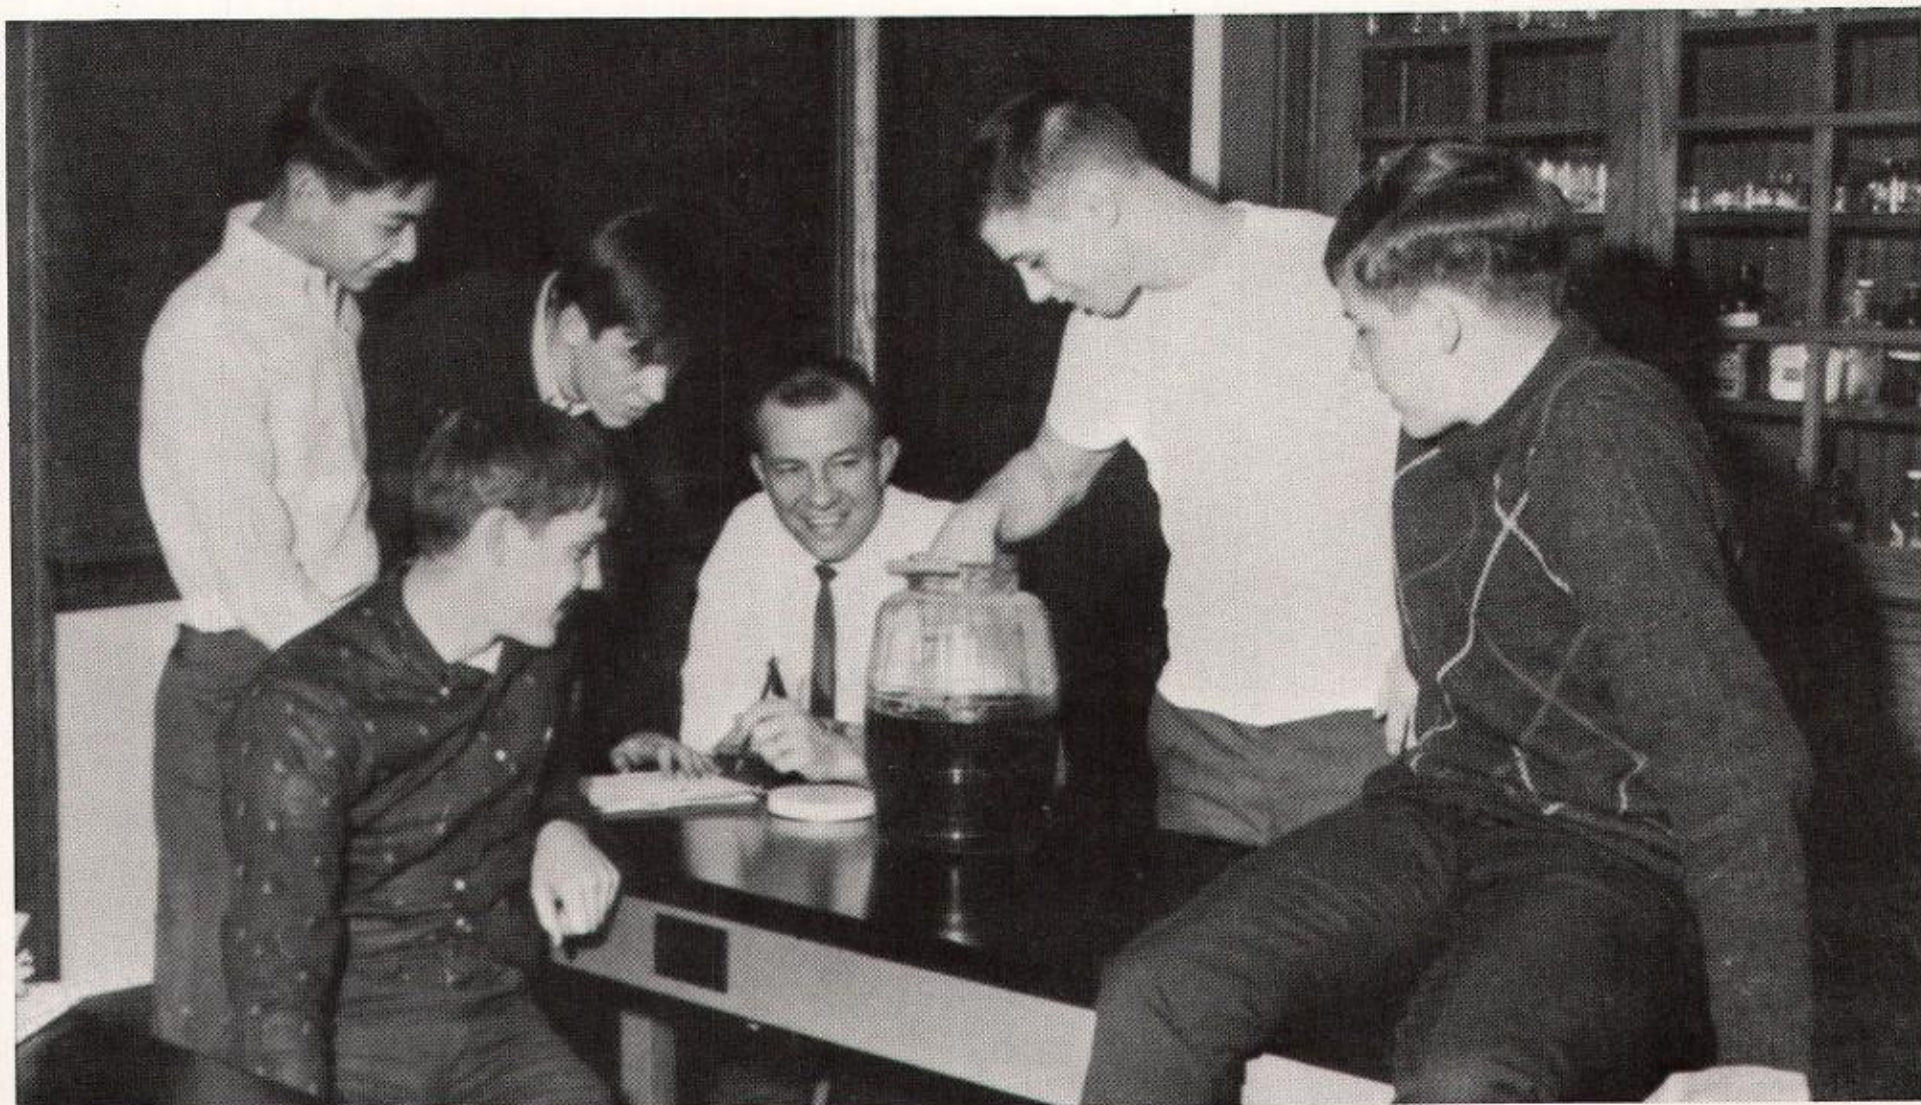

Hi-Y, Conservation Clubs enjoy community recreation

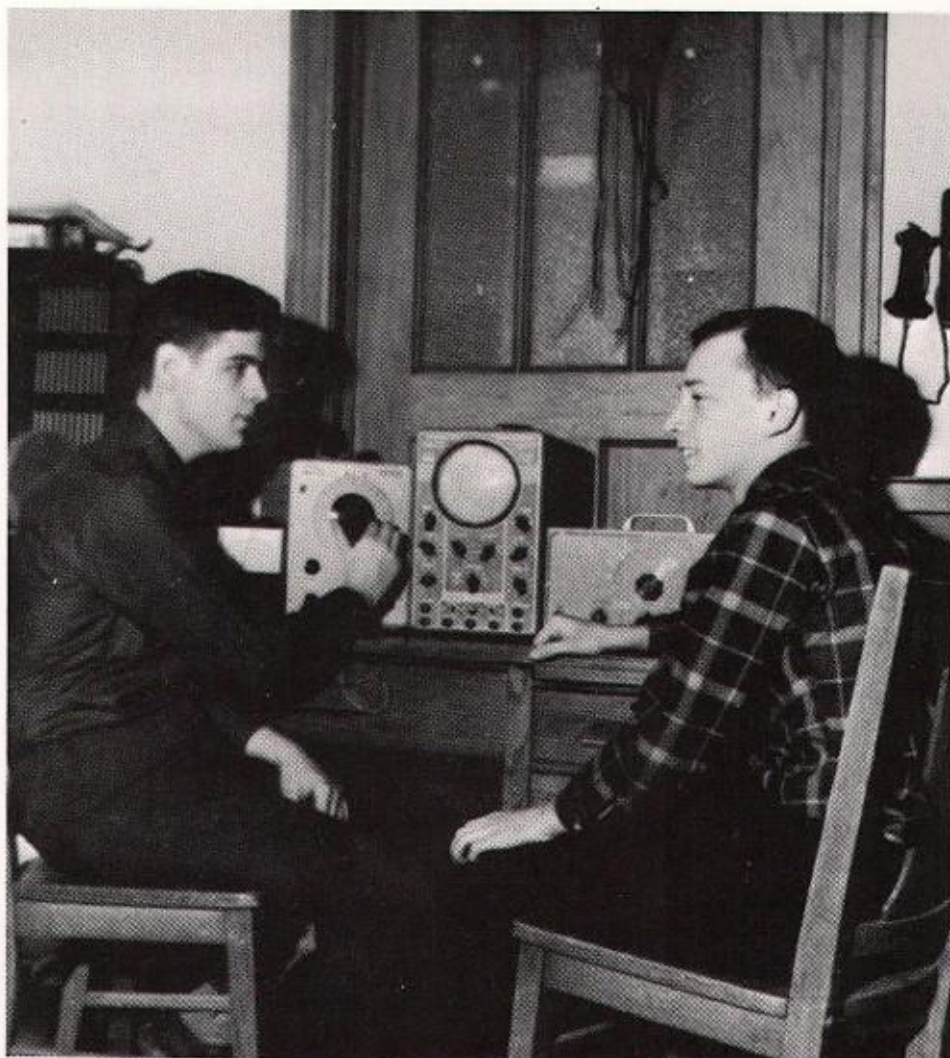

Under the direction of Mr. Deford, Coed Hi-Y, affiliated with the State YMCA, proved its use as a recreational and community service club. Members of the club participated in the Youth in Government Day. At this time, the Eastern Hi-Y club sponsored a piece of legislative and fought for its passage in the mock legislature comprised of other Hi-Y members all over the State. During the year a skating party, a canoe trip and a cute knee contest was sponsored by the club.

Acquainting members with all types of outdoor conservation served as the objective of Eastern's Quaker Conservation Club. During the year, speakers were invited to discuss outdoor sports and Michigan's conservation. Interesting field trips were taken to a rifle range, a fish hatchery, while hunting and canoeing showed themselves as captivating outdoor sports.

Mr. Howard laughs at the hesitancy of Dave Dodson to examine some preserved animals. Conservation Club members Jim Wong, Gary Smith, Tom Check, and Scott Leavitt await the outcome.

Chuck Harrington and Eugene Denslow listen intently as they "tune-in" on one of the Electronics Club meetings.

Electronics, Photography Clubs capture interest

Electronics Club, which is open to any Eastern student who is interested in the field of electronics and educated in that field, spent the year working on projects which interested them. Mr. Hobson, the advisor to the Electronics Club, gave the members the use of his Physics room to set up their projects.

Members of the Photography Club learned through their advisor, Mr. Pettit, many things about taking, processing, and finishing off pictures. Through their collection of pictures, taken by the members, they learned about the good and bad points in their photography. They had a darkroom installed in the print shop to use for developing and printing their pictures.

Art Club, Chess Club require talent, skills

Promoting awareness of everyday beauty was what the Art Club hoped to achieve this past year. They had an active year planning a trip to the Chicago Art Institute, scheduling guest-lecturers, and raising money to send a student to a summer work-shop at a university. Art Club officers were; Sheri Randall, president; Jan Sorrell, secretary; Richard Farlin, treasurer.

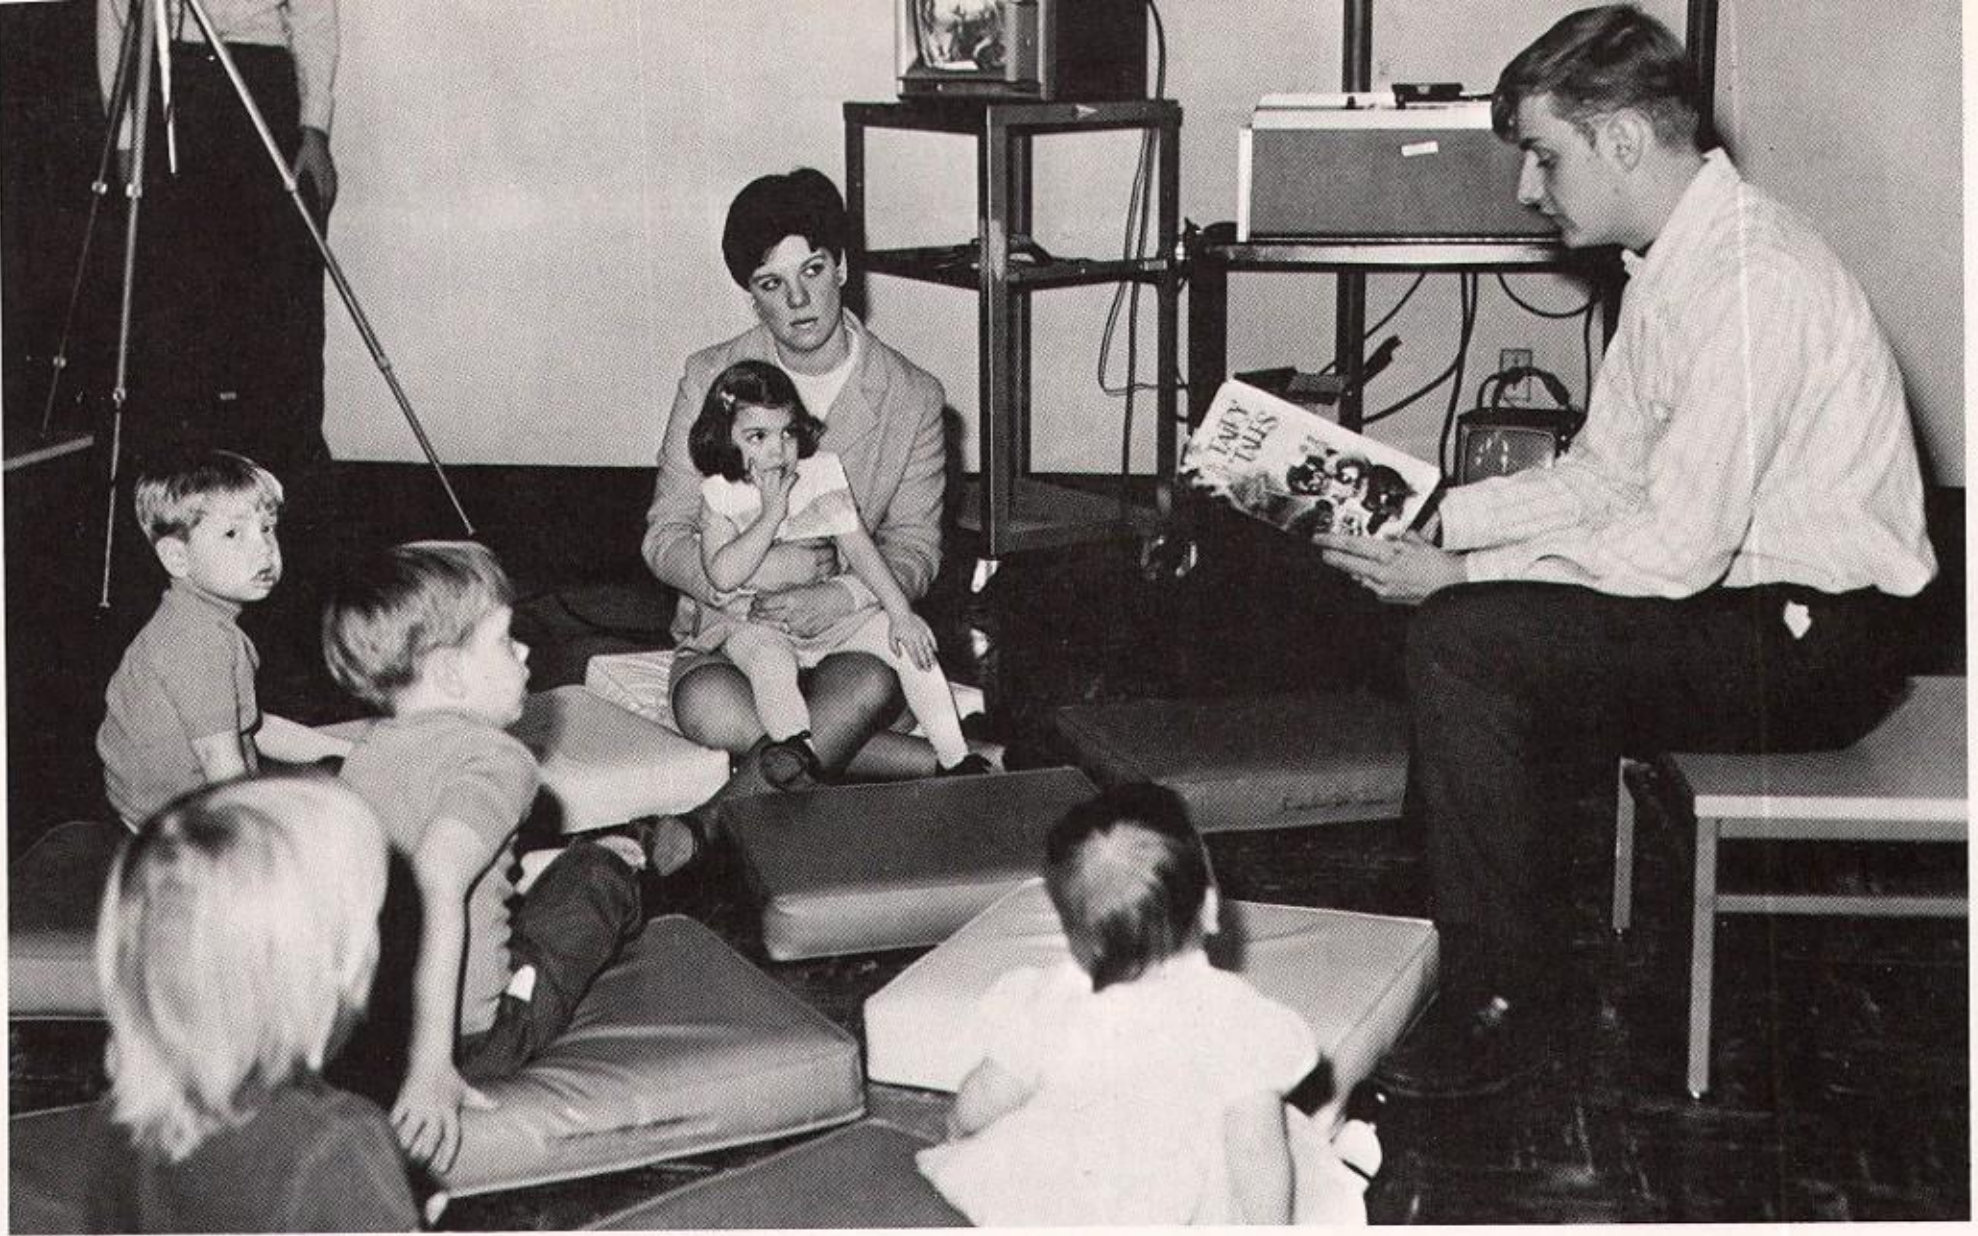

Chess Club skillfully competed at the Lansing area high schools, with our seven best players competing with the seven best players of the other schools in the Inter-City Chess league. The teams received one half point for each of their players who have a stalemate and one point for a win. The games had a three hour time limit and were held on Tuesday nights.

Quaker Players sell candy, view Pre-Broadway play

Under the direction of Miss Marilyn Steegstra, the Quaker Players encouraged development of school interest in Drama as a vehicle of entertainment, while providing a source of experience and pleasure for those participating in this activity. The sale of several hundred bars and boxes of candy composed the Quaker Players industrious money-making project. At a psychedelic Halloween party, in which everyone dressed as they pleased, prizes were given for the most imaginative costumes. Viewing a Pre-Broadway Play in Detroit proved one of the most pleasurable activities of the club. The members also attended a drama workshop at M.S.U. In the spring, a one-act play was presented to the student body.

The club officers for the past year were: Mike Skinner, president; Glenn Eisfelder, vice president; Jeaneen Casper, secretary; and Dana Spatrisano, treasurer.

Under the direction of Mrs. Goad and Mrs. Little, the Future Secretaries Association has been involved in many projects which help interested girls to obtain a better insight of the secretarial fields. During this time the F.S.A. met jointly with O'Raffery's F.S.A. and many interesting programs were planned. Demonstrations were given on grooming, how to apply for a job, and the Do's and Don'ts of an office. Speakers from the field of business and secretarial work were invited to speak on their occupations. Many interesting movies were shown to encourage the members to continue their desires in the secretarial field. In order to make money, the F.S.A. sold candy and had many bake sales. During National Secretaries Week, a field trip was taken in which each girl spent half a day in an office, finding the true meaning of being a secretary. A Senior Honor Banquet was held. A speaker from an employment agency spoke on the topic "What to look for in a prospective secretary." The officers for this year were: Vicki Alling, president; Diane Anderson, vice president; JoAnn Courville, corresponding secretary; Mary Koeppe, recording secretary; and Kathy Johnson, treasurer.

The Future Teachers Association, under the direction of Mrs. Palmer and Mr. Davis, opened its doors to any student considering teaching as a vocation. During the year, many speakers gave useful information to the members on the true meaning of being a professional teacher. In the spring, the F.T.A. attended Future Teachers Day at M.S.U. In general program sessions, the members spent time learning and discussing the different aspects of teaching.

Organizations serve in school and community

Mr. Schleicher shows club members, Mike Perry, John Briggs, Bill Brown, and Jack Perry the proper procedure of driving during one of the Safety Action Council meetings.

The Safety Action Council was organized on the concept that life can be made more fun and enjoyable by reducing the risks associated with everyday activities. Under the direction of Mr. Schleicher, the Safety Action Council worked in the areas of transportation, law enforcement, and home and community living. They rendered service to both the student and public. During the winter, the Safety Action Council volunteered to shovel the snow. They also held a city wide safety check to estimate how many cars were actually safe to drive on our streets. Field trips were taken to the city airport and the State Police Computer Department.

Under the direction of Mrs. Joan Snider, the Girls' Service Club served the school and community. This year the members ushered at all school dramatic and musical functions, hosted the Eastern High Creative Arts Open-House, helped decorate the school for the holidays, and raised money for their special service projects. These projects included making favors for local hospitals and nursing homes and making layettes which were presented to Family Helpers to distribute as the need arose. The club officers for this past year were: Sherry MacKenzie, president; Linda Sharp, vice president; Sue Luis, secretary; and Andrea Haase, treasurer.

After having a cup of water for luck, the Varsity Debate team consisting of Alan VerPlanck, Randy Ralph, Jeaneen Casper, and Andy Goldstein, began an outstanding year of competition under the direction of Miss Goldstein.

Debate students earn recognition for excellent performances

The Debate and Forensics Club, under the direction of Miss Golstein, exhibited an outstanding performance in '67-'68. The purpose of this club was to learn the art of effective speaking and critical listening. A new form of debating, Cross-X, was introduced. Each debater was given time to question the other team. Eastern's debaters participated in the Outstate league, the 6-A league, and the Capital City league. They received a Spartan invitation from Michigan State in which all high school debate teams in Michigan participated. In the Spring, individual speaking events were held for the debate team in Forensics.

The Varsity team for this past year was Jeaneen Casper and Andy Goldstein on affirmative and Randy Ralph and Alan Ver Planck on negative. The Junior Varsity teams were Craig Dennis, Jim Smalley, John Lohman, Martha Moorehouse, Rick Kaiser and Kathy Mullett, and Ann Voges.

The Junior Varsity Debate team, consisting of John Lohman, Martha Moorehouse, Anne Voges, and Craig Dennis were the proud winners of the Capital City debate tournament.

Informed students discuss current events

With the help of Mr. Asumaa, Mary Wilson, Brenda Burgess, Madelyn Wilson, and Jim Smalley read the constitution of the Kingdom of Lesotho.

Forum Club, under the direction of Mr. Hollister, offered great opportunities to Eastern students. The discussions on current events gave the club's participants a wider and more informative view of world happenings. This year's agenda included a discussion with councilman Ferguson on civil rights, a heated debate over the Viet Nam War, and frequent films on current event subjects.

Involved in the annual Michigan mock United Nations, Eastern's Kappa Iota again attended the meetings at Hillsdale College representing the small African Nation, Lesotho. The study of the United Nations and its purpose, the main function of Kappa Iota, promoted in a small way a better and more peaceful world for all. During meetings, movies and filmstrips on structure and problems of the United Nations were shown. Also, discussions and reviews of U.S. foreign policy and of major problems facing the world were held. As a public service, the club sponsored the Ugly Man contest. The winners, Roger Rappaport and Dave Van Artsdalen were crowned during the halftime activities at the annual Junior-Senior Powder Puff football game.

The officers of Kappa Iota this year were: Jim Smalley, president; Steve Hobbs, vice president; and Geoff Alderson, corresponding secretary.

During a typical Forum Club discussion, Mr. Hollister explains U.S. involvement in Viet Nam.

At the used book and record sale, sponsored by Canto, students and teachers swarmed to select bargains for reading and listening pleasure.

Canto staff members, Gretchen Pfotenhauer, Robin Jarbo, Rick Edwards, and Mark Hahn, ponder over the Canto signs to be used for their sales campaigns.

Student literary talent expressed in CANTO

Canto, the recently organized literary magazine, in its second year, displayed the literary and artistic talents that Eastern's students possessed. The club published two editions last year and this year worked on an issue which was released in the spring. The magazine contained a wide variety of literary work: poems, short stories, coplas, haiku, and maxims, with art work sprinkled throughout illustrating the works. To finance the publication, the club had a used book and record sale, and a "Canto Breakfast Bake Sale" featuring coffee and rolls. Mr. Spagnuolo served as club advisor.

Latin banquet falls on "Lupercalia" holiday

Randy Ralph and Tom Bernitt searchingly attempt to get the biggest piece of chicken from slave Teresa Boose at the Latin Banquet.

The annual banquet of the Latin Club has repeatedly proved the climax of the year. Falling on the Lupercalia holiday, a celebration honoring the wolf, the banquet's theme this year was concerned both with this festivity and Valentine's Day. The scene of the banquet was decorated in correspondence with the theme as the cave of a wolf. A traditional Roman meal was served, with hard-working slaves (first year students) serving their "masters." Entertainment included a skit, "Cupids et Psyche," a Greek dance by the slaves, and a special musical presentation by Alan VerPlanck.

The Junior Classical League composed a great part of the Latin Club's activities. Michigan, one of the largest and most energetic leagues on the state level, held its J.C.L. Convention at Ann Arbor in March. Activities included a Latin hootenanny and olympic games with chariot races. The National Junior League Convention was held this summer at Michigan State University.

Latin Club officers for the past year were: Consul primus, Jon Hayden; Consul secundus, Brenda Burgess; Praetor, Suzanne Baisel; Aedile, Jane Smith; Quastor, Vonda Coombs; Scriba, Madelyn Wilson; Censor, Elaine McCartney; Tribunus Sociorum, Mary Wilson; and Tribunus Plebis, Sharon Landon. Club Advisor was Mrs. Carol Walsh.

Culture studied and explored in French Club

French culture was studied and explored in French Club this year as members attended the movie, "Red Balloon" and heard different speakers share their experiences while traveling in France and Europe. Eastern's French Club, along with members of other French Clubs in the city, attended a Mardi Gras at Everett High School. Members gathered for an early morning French Breakfast and took a trip to Detroit and ate in a French restaurant there. Money projects included the sale of candy and the sponsoring of a dance. In order to help past students of Eastern, who now are in Viet Nam, members collected money from students and bought peanuts, boot laces, popcorn, and other luxuries which would be used by the service men.

Officers of the French Club were: president, Tom Marshall; vice-president, Nancy Eubanks; secretary, Gretchen Pfotenhauer; and treasurer, Dave VanArtsdalen. Club advisors were Miss Ferguson and Mrs. Norton.

Members of French Club watch slides brought by Terri Colthorp from her trip to France.

Robin Jarboe, Kim Minnicks and Sue Grounds go over the agenda of the year, reflecting many of the happy moments to come.

German Club members enjoy varied activities

Under the guidance of the first semester officers: president, Mike Skinner; vice president, Roy Waller; secretary, Pat Oshel; treasurer, Ron McCallum; and the guidance of faculty advisor, Mrs. Hageman, the German Club had a fun-filled semester. From decorating the German room with strings of popcorn to attending a Christmas party at one of the member's home, the German Club went all-out to celebrate Christmas and the coming of Weihnachtsmann (Santa Claus). After watching a Glockenspiel, a huge animated clock that depicted the story of "The Pied Piper," on an excursion to Frankenmuth, Michigan, they attended dinner at the Bavarian Inn. A Wanderung, which is a spring hike, was planned for the second semester members as they hoped to go through the woods in German tradition.

Ron McCallum and Marti Crandell discuss the future of German Club with Mrs. Hageman during club sign-up.

Mike Skinner gleefully raises his stein in a toast, "Long Live German Club", as the other members merrily add their support.

Mixed emotions are shown on the faces of these Spanish students as they hear about Spanish Club plans from Mrs. Shimmel.

La Alianza de Amigos have rewarding year

Spanish is a vivid, colorful, and exciting language, and the time to truly learn to understand and to appreciate it is during the meeting of its pledged allies in fun as well as in dedicated study, La Alianza de Amigos—The Alliance of Friends. During the first semester, club members worked to augment the treasury through bake sales, and as a result, members received a free night of Spanish entertainment. In addition, a Fiesta de Navidad gave friends the opportunity to practice traditional Spanish or modern dances. Club officers, Becky Reyes, president; Jaime Torres, vice-president; Steve King, secretary; and David Lopez, treasurer, made plans for a possible Spanish dinner and fiesta for members who participated in a rewarding year for La Alianza de Amigos—Spanish Club.

Vice-president of the Spanish Club, Jaime Torres, along with advisor Mrs. Shimmel, try to encourage Bob St. Claire and Jim Whitlock into joining Spanish Club.

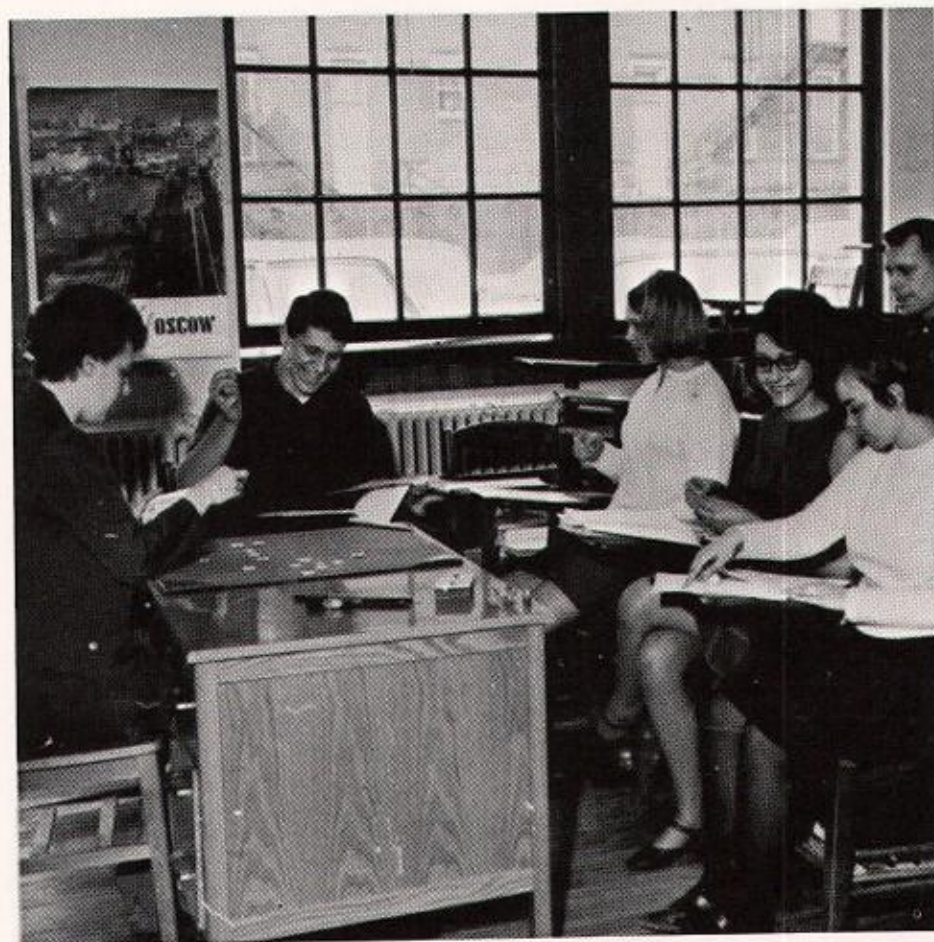

Russian Club members, Sophie Golchoff, Shirley Stevenson, Krisia Rosa, Dan Wilkins, Anna Reyes, Dave Dodson, Carl Evanoff, Gwen Gunnell, and Mrs. Ovenhouse, club advisor, discuss activities for the club.

While attending the All Language Club Christmas Party, Carl Evanoff attracted much attention modeling a typical Russian costume while two other Russian Club members, Krisia Rosa and Dave Dodson, admire him.

Activities varied, informative for Russian Club

This has been an active year for Eastern's Russian Club. Mr. Walker entertained the club with a stimulating talk on his recent trip to Russia. Slides taken by Mrs. Ovenhouse, the club advisor, during her visit to Russia were also enjoyed by the members. Some of the club time was used to learn Russian dances which were performed at the banquet in the spring. For this banquet, the highlight of the year, the students dressed in Russian costumes, prepared Russian food, danced, and sang Russian songs. Officers of the club were: Gwen Gunnell, president; Krisia Rosa, vice president; Sophie Golchoff, secretary-treasurer.

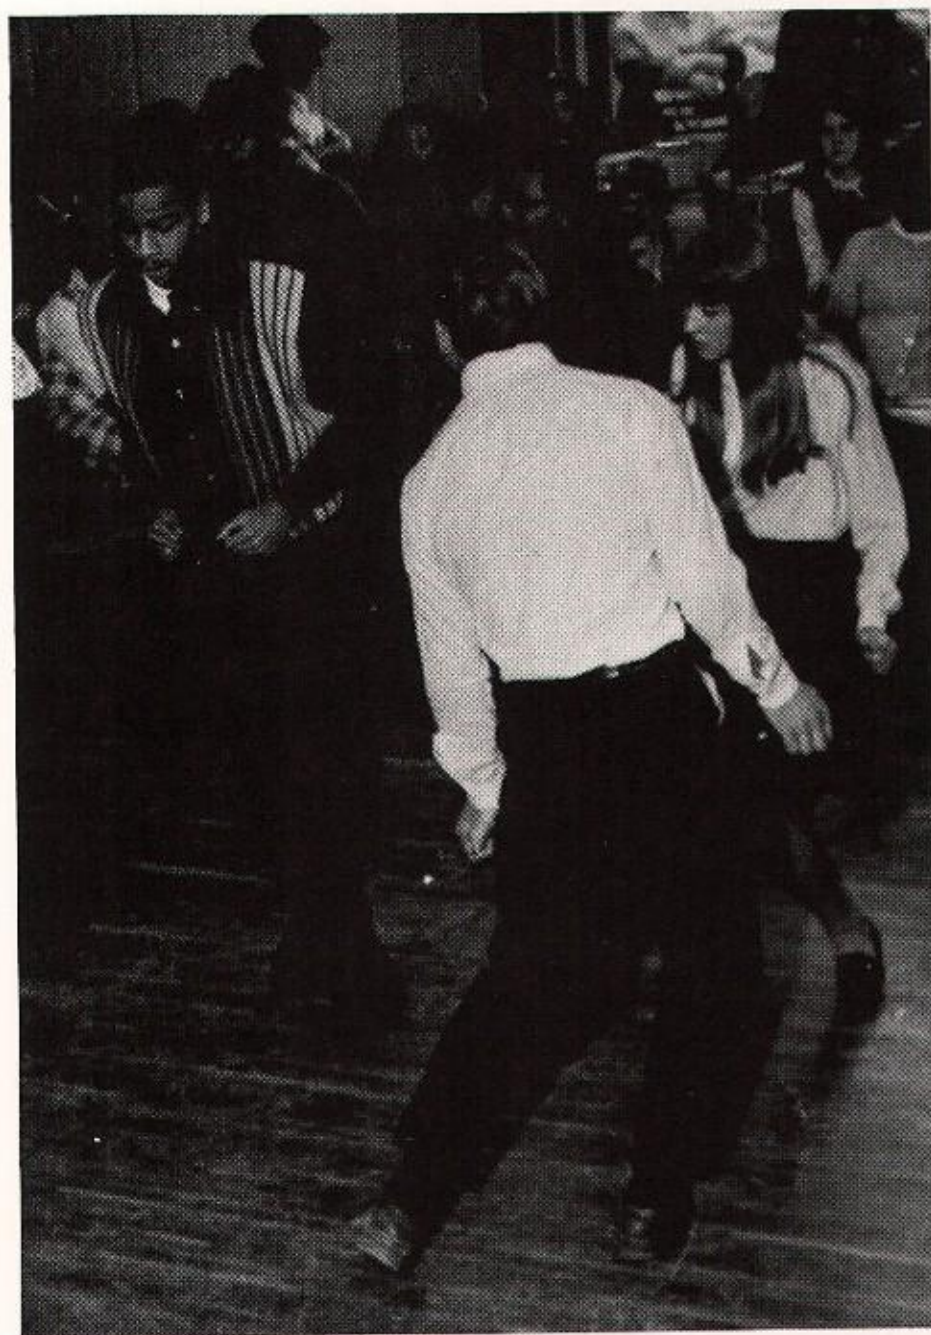

"Bingo!", exclaims Carl Evanoff as other players in Russian Club gleefully check their cards.

To complete the gay Hootenanny "Luv In" was the performance of the Checkmate.

Hootenanny Club swings with the sign of the times

The Hootenanny Club, with advisor Miss Powell, displayed the musical talents of students. "To have fun with music through making music," was the general aim of the club. Throughout the year, students participated in singing ensembles, instrumental groups, and "soul" dancing. Live combos, such as the Soul Brothers of Sexton, the Balloon-Farm, and the Checkmate performed for the club. The Hootenanny Club also sponsored a dance in which the theme "The Luv In" was arranged in the order of a psychedelic circus. Featured at the dance were the "Luv In" guys and gals, with special guests, the Checkmate. Though the Hootenanny Club was still fairly new at Eastern, the membership proved its position as Eastern's largest and most active club.

Demonstrating the "in" thing of soul dancing, the shingaling is just part of Hootenanny Club's weekly activity.

Excellent performance shown by all choral groups

The Music Department's director, Miss Powell, has one of the most valued and busiest tasks at Eastern—directing the vocal groups in programs in and out of school. The vocal courses offered are the Mixed Chorus, the Concert Choir, the Quakerettes, the Girls Glee Club, and a new group, the "Quaker Singers", which consisted of advanced vocal students from the Concert Choir. They have been a great asset to our school with their performance in school functions. The music department has presented a number of programs for the student body, the Christmas concert, the Easter assembly, and the Spring concert, in which all the choral groups participated.

With the aid of accompanist Lynn Palmer, the choir has breezed through many hours of long, hard rehearsals during the year.

Miner, Iruth Gladney, and Martha Hayward. Third row: Linda Dodson, Carla Lee, Janie Fritz, Myrl Carr, Frances Williams, Laura Proctor, Linda Woods, Mary Hazelton and Dianne Wisner.

“Oklahoma” captivates an enthusiastic audience

Many hours of long preparation gave Eastern its rebel-rousing smash, “Oklahoma.” Lively music and vivid colors made this presentation one of the best in Eastern’s history. “Oklahoma,” an American folk story, took place just after the turn of the century during the New Oklahoma Frontier. The hero, Curly (Dave Herron), and the heroine Laurey (Cassie Bandy), are deeply in love with each other, but are too proud to admit it. Laurey’s Aunt Eller (DeElda Doerr) tries to help them realize how much they love each other but she soon decides to let them work things out for themselves. Curly tries to ask Laurey to the Box Social but she has already promised to let Jud Fry (Sam Davis) escort her. Attempting to arouse jealousy in Laurey, Curly goes to the Box Social with the new girl in town, Gertie Cummings (Pat Carr), widely known as “Giggles Gertie.” When Laurey discovers Jud’s true feelings toward her, she becomes frightened, and turns to Curly. At last they realize their love for each other, and Curly asks Laurey to marry him and she accepts.

Running through the play is a humorous sub-plot involving the experience of Ado Annie (Bonnie Kowatch). Annie just can’t resist masculine advances and is very anxious to land a husband. Her choice wavers between Will Parker (David Hackney), a happy-go-lucky cowboy who loves her, and Ali Hakim (Kevin Hogan), a fast-talking Persian peddler who has everything but marriage on his mind. In the end Will Parker wins the love of Ado Annie.

At last Curly and Laurey are married and the neighbors are gathered before Aunt Eller’s farmhouse to celebrate. The fun is about to start when Jud (Sam Davis) comes in and insists that he must get to kiss the bride. As he attempts, Curly pulls him away. Jud draws a knife and they struggle. In the fight, Jud dies, falling on his knife. Curly is charged with murder, but the neighbors set themselves up as a jury and promptly find him not guilty. All ends well for everyone, except Ali Hakim (Kevin Hogan) who was unhappily forced to marry “Giddy Gertie” at gunpoint.

Under the direction of Miss Frances Powell and student director, Stephanie Tisheff, the fall musical was a great success.

Providing musical accompaniment were organist Kenneth Medema and pianists Jane Medema and Lynne Palmer.

Laurey (Cassie Bandy) and Curly (Dave Herron) finally realize their love for each other.

Laurey (Cassie Bandy) pleads with Ali Hakim (Kevin Hogan) for a special love potion to lure Curly.

Will Parker (David Hackney) tells Ado Annie (Bonnie Kowatch) it's either "All 'Er Nothing," while Ado Annie says, "But I Can't Say No!"

As Laurey (Cassie Bandy) and Ado Annie (Bonnie Kowatch) use a bucket of feminine charm on Curly (Dave Herron) and Ali Hakim (Kevin Hogan), Eddie Thorpe is all ears.

Looks like Jud (Sam Davis) didn't get his last chance to kiss the bride. Jud and Curly (Dave Herron) struggle over a knife. In the fight, Jud is killed, while the crowd gathered around is all eyes.

Skilled performances reward hours of practice

Laurey (Cassie Bandy) and Curly (Dave Herron) are finally married. Aunt Eller and all the neighbors join in to help celebrate the happy occasion.

Finally, Laurey (Cassie Bandy) wins her love Curly (Dave Herron) while the horses point out that the "end" justifies the means.

Orchestra performs at concerts, Baccalaureate

Todd Colthorp's appreciation of the music differs from Jill Scott's as can be seen by their facial expressions as they pluck their cellos.

Accompanying the fourteen string players in the Orchestra were wind and percussion instrument players from the Concert Band. With two concerts to perform, the Orchestra kept busy learning new music and choosing the material to be performed. Certain members prepared solos and ensembles for the District Solo and Ensemble Festival. A few members played in the Lansing Junior Symphony. The Orchestra also participated in the Instrumental Music Department spring candy sale. They sold tickets, along with the Band, for a pancake supper sponsored by the Band and Orchestra Parents Organization. At Baccalaureate, the Orchestra gave its final performance of the year for the graduating seniors.

Members of the 1967-68 orchestra were: first row: Peter Martinat, Jim Wang, Kelvin St. John, Linda Brown, Lynne Palmer. Second row: Kathy Engelhardt, Danny Wilkins, Toni Ross, Todd Colthorp, Debbie Drew, Jill Scott. Third row: Gary McLellen, Terri Colthorp, Director Dwight W. Smith.

Band has a variety of musical activities

For Eastern's band, practice began before school did. Getting pre-game and half-time shows ready for football season meant not only getting the band organized before school, but also having day and occasional night marching practices. The marching band also participated in Band Day at MSU and two downtown parades, Veterans' Day and Memorial Day.

Concerts were given both in the winter and in the spring. The entire band participated in the District Band Festival, while individual members and groups competed in the District Solo and Ensemble Festival. Those achieving a high score in the district festival proceeded to the more difficult state-wide competition.

Band officers this year were: Mike Skinner, president; Mark Lange, vice-president; Barb Chamberlain, secretary-treasurer; and Kevin Bates, historian. Eastern High School Band and Orchestra Parents, an organization which aided the instrumental music program by raising funds for trips, for uniforms, and for scholarships to summer music camps, were very active and helpful.

Doug King, Lamar Curtis, and Dennis Miller precede the band on the field at pre-game practice during third hour.

Eyes follow Mr. Smith's direction of a spirited march during the Homecoming assembly in the auditorium.

Practice, main element of a successful band

Assistant Drum Major, Mike Skinner, and Drum Major, Mike Grinwis, led the band on the field with spirit that could only be envied by other schools.

Concerts, parades, and music contests all require one main element—many hours devoted to practice at home and at school.

Band members demonstrate the supreme test of a musician—to march and play at the same time.

sports, a time for winning or losing, making the team joyous or depressed. Participants in sports spend worthwhile time practicing, getting in shape, and acquiring those skills which are utilized in tense and exciting contests. Often the skills need an extra effort or special desire to gain a victory. Pushing forward to make another touchdown, sinking the winning basket as the buzzer sounds, blasting a homerun in the ninth inning, stroking a little harder to win the meet, and fighting back from a pin hold, all require an extra effort and desire. The desire is sparked by coaches, cheerleaders, and students, all of whom find the time to participate in ...

place finish in city

If anyone chances to see a cross country team member after a hard practice or meet, he is likely to find a mentally and physically exhausted guy. The hours these boys practiced diligently should not go unnoticed or unmentioned. An abundance of interest and effort allowed the Quaker cross country team to finish the 1967 year with reason to be proud of themselves. The harriers provided Eastern with a fine season, with the varsity and junior varsity teams finishing second and first, respectively, in the city. At the Eastern Invitational Cross Country Meet, all seven Quakers won medals, an extraordinary feat. Because of their extreme effort, Duane Spitz, Julio Guzman, and Jon Williams proved to be the outstanding members of the squad. Coach Townsend said that the '67 squad was one of the most loyal and hard working group of boys he had ever coached.

Eastern's cheerleaders resound with spirit

Brustling with enthusiasm, Debbie Barratt, Sandy Nichols, Captain Karen Oakes and Jill Tyler inspire and applaud Eastern's team.

What does it take to be a cheerleader? This year's spirit rousers certainly exceeded the requirements of grades, skill, personality, appearance, plus plenty of spirit! Besides participation at every game, many hours were spent in practice, signmaking, and money raising activities. This year, the Junior Varsity Cheerleaders, Pat Cushion, Janet Degener, Nancy Gilbert, Sue Grounds, Captain Sandi Gregg, Marta Olson, and Ellen Shelberg proudly wore new uniforms obtained from the proceeds of victory ribbons and bake sales. The male voices of Randy Bennett, Bob Dubois, Basil Ellis, and Greg Cummings boosted the performance of the Varsity Cheerleaders, Debbie Barratt, Charlotte Isham, Sandy Nichols, Jill Lareau, Jill Tyler, and Captain Karen Oakes during football season. Eastern's cheerleaders with the help of Miss Engel, their advisor, inspired enthusiasm at each game and promoted school spirit and pride throughout the year.

Victory over Lansing Sexton concludes

Pride in the football team at Eastern High School and respect and trust among the players were the main factors that brought a highly successful season this year. Led by captain Bob Hollern, who was named most valuable player by his teammates, Eastern swept to a 5-2-1 season, beating Ann Arbor, Waverly, Kalamazoo Central, Sexton, and Everett, while losing to East Lansing and Battle Creek Central, and tying Jackson. Eastern finished second in the 6A League to Battle Creek Central and second in the city to East Lansing.

Besides Bob Hollern, stand-outs for the QUAKERS were senior linebackers Charlie Armour and Kevin Hogan, defensive middle guard Charlie Cross, and tackle Steve Mercer. Stand-outs on offense were senior guards Jan Burnett and Ross Rapaport, tackle Ron Williams, end Gary Malec, senior backs Gary Patterson and Mike Moody, junior quarterback Tom Ley, and junior wingback Sam Davis. With Tom Ley and Sam Davis returning in the backfield, along with Dan Olivett, offensive ends Mike Haley and Craig Wiese, and linemen Charlie Cross, Jack Stein, Bill Held, Roger Rapaport, Charlie Bushman, Dave Tinney, Marty Hollern, Paul Schmidt, and Ken Sellen, the coaches look forward to another great year.

Quakers capture city, Six-A, and state titles

Ron Miller sinks his half nelson deeper to secure his pin.

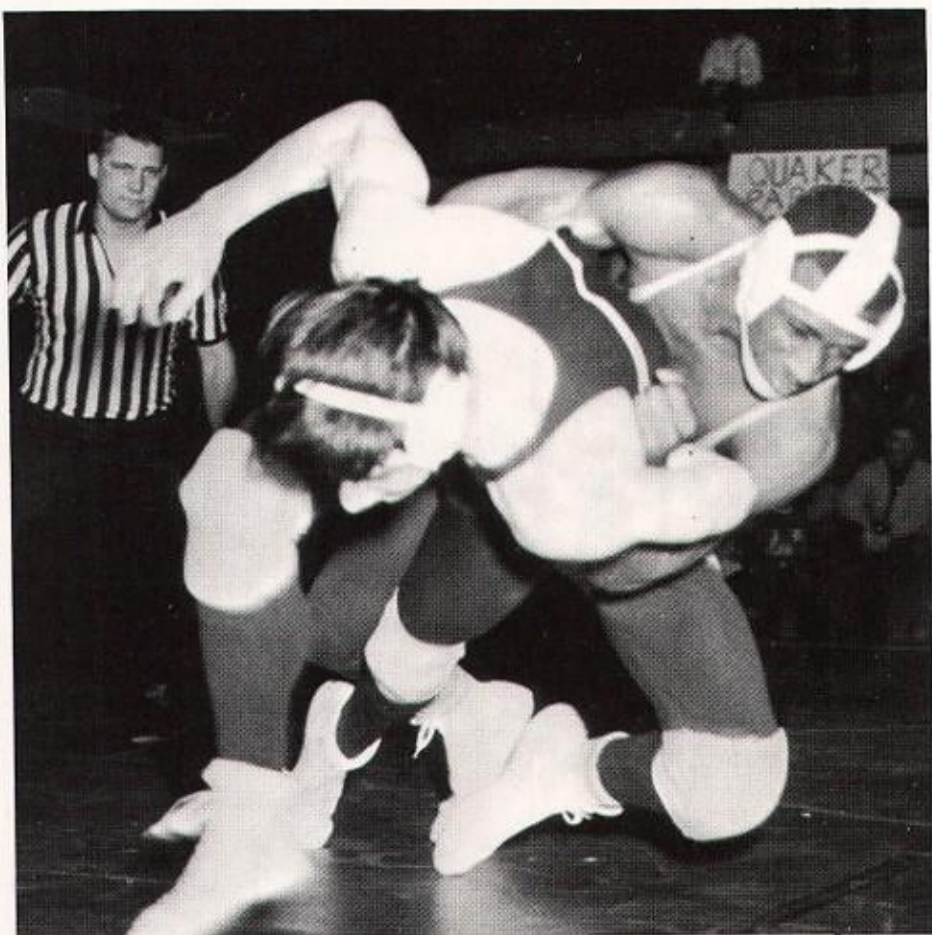

From the opening day of practice, the only thing the wrestlers thought of was winning the State Championship. Through hard work and desire, the 1968 wrestling team achieved its goal, and reigned as the 1968 State Wrestling Champions. Under the leadership of the fine co-captains, Ross Rapaport and Sam Davis, the Quakers swept to a record of 11-2 in the dual meets, captured the city and Six-A crowns, as well as the state. Leading the charge to the state meet were Sam Davis, Ron Miller, Bobby Jo Cash, Rick Dines, Basil Ellis, and Charlie Cross. In the final standings, sophomore Ron Miller and senior Bobby Jo Cash were first place champions, while Sam Davis placed third. Throughout the season, the Quakers were rated either first, second, or third in the State Wrestling Polls.

Wrestling takes both a strong body and a strong mind. Both of these traits were instilled by Coach Bill Allen and his assistant Jim Walker. Coach Allen was chosen by his fellow coaches as Coach of the Year.

With Sam Davis, Charlie Cross, Ron Miller, Charles Bushman, Roger Rapaport, Mike LaFrance, Fred Hollingsworth, Ruben Castillo, Daryl Lamb, and Ed Brayton returning next season, the Quakers will be ready to defend their title.

Along the way to a disappointing season, the Quakers learned a lot about sportsmanship and the fundamentals of basketball. The Quakers should be a strong team next season with eight juniors and three sophomores returning. The Quakers dropped their first eight games, then put together a four game winning streak which included victories over Everett, Sexton, Ann Arbor, and Jackson. High scorer for the team was Pat Welch. Those returning next year will be Pat Welch, Don Bates, Don Johnson, Jerry Smalley, Tom Ley, Dan Olivett, Gary Hunt, Jack Stein, Mark McClain, Harry Brown, and Mike Medlock. The work accomplished this year should begin to show next year.

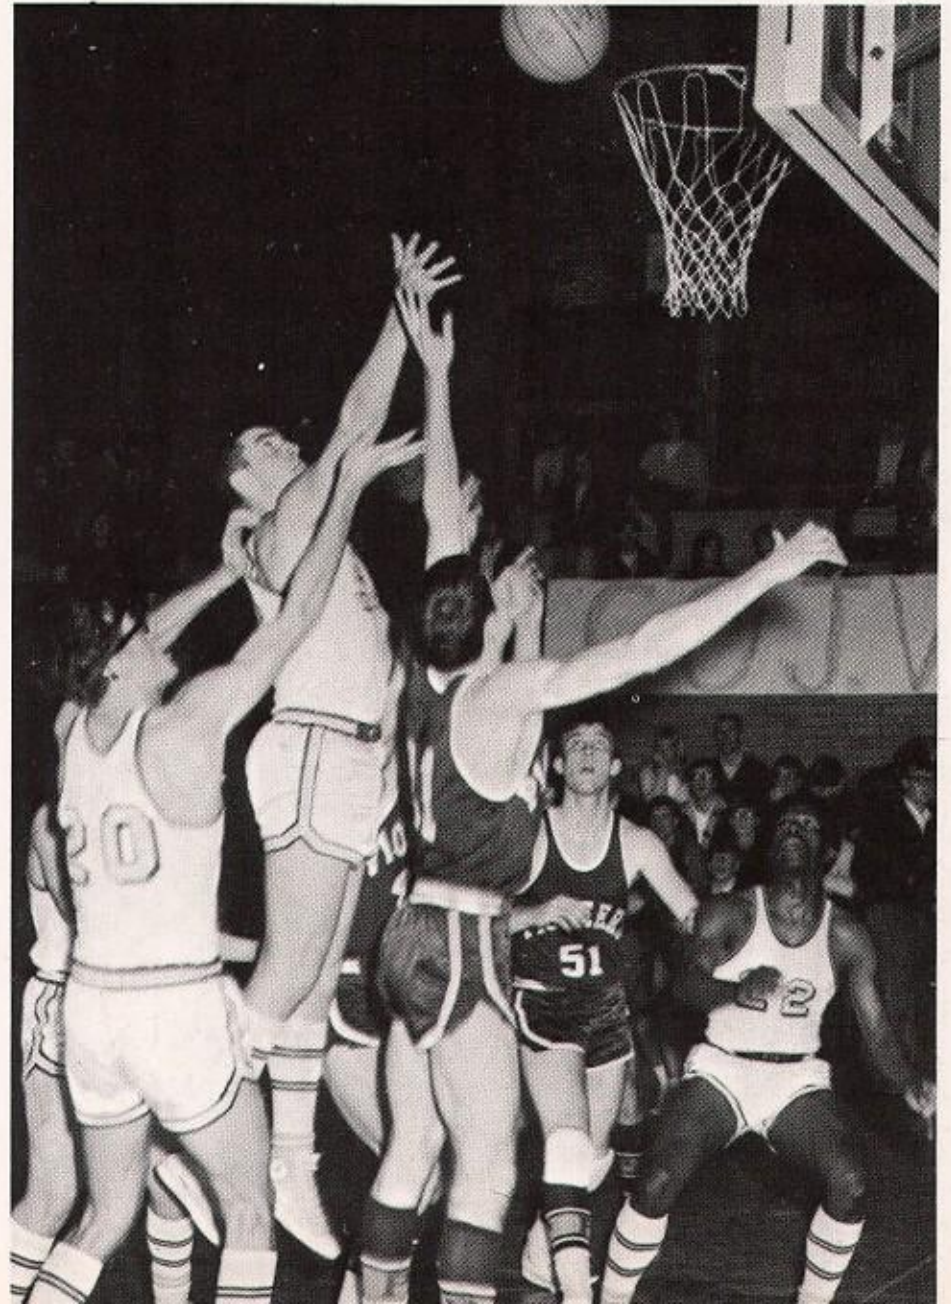

Eastern's team spirit is tops. Spectators and team members alike scream for more points to add to the Quaker score.

Pat Welch has no one to stop him as he drives to the basket for an easy layup.

Seniors Gary McCauley and Roy Waller anticipate the possibility of a rebound on Robin Batchelor's shot, but there wasn't one.

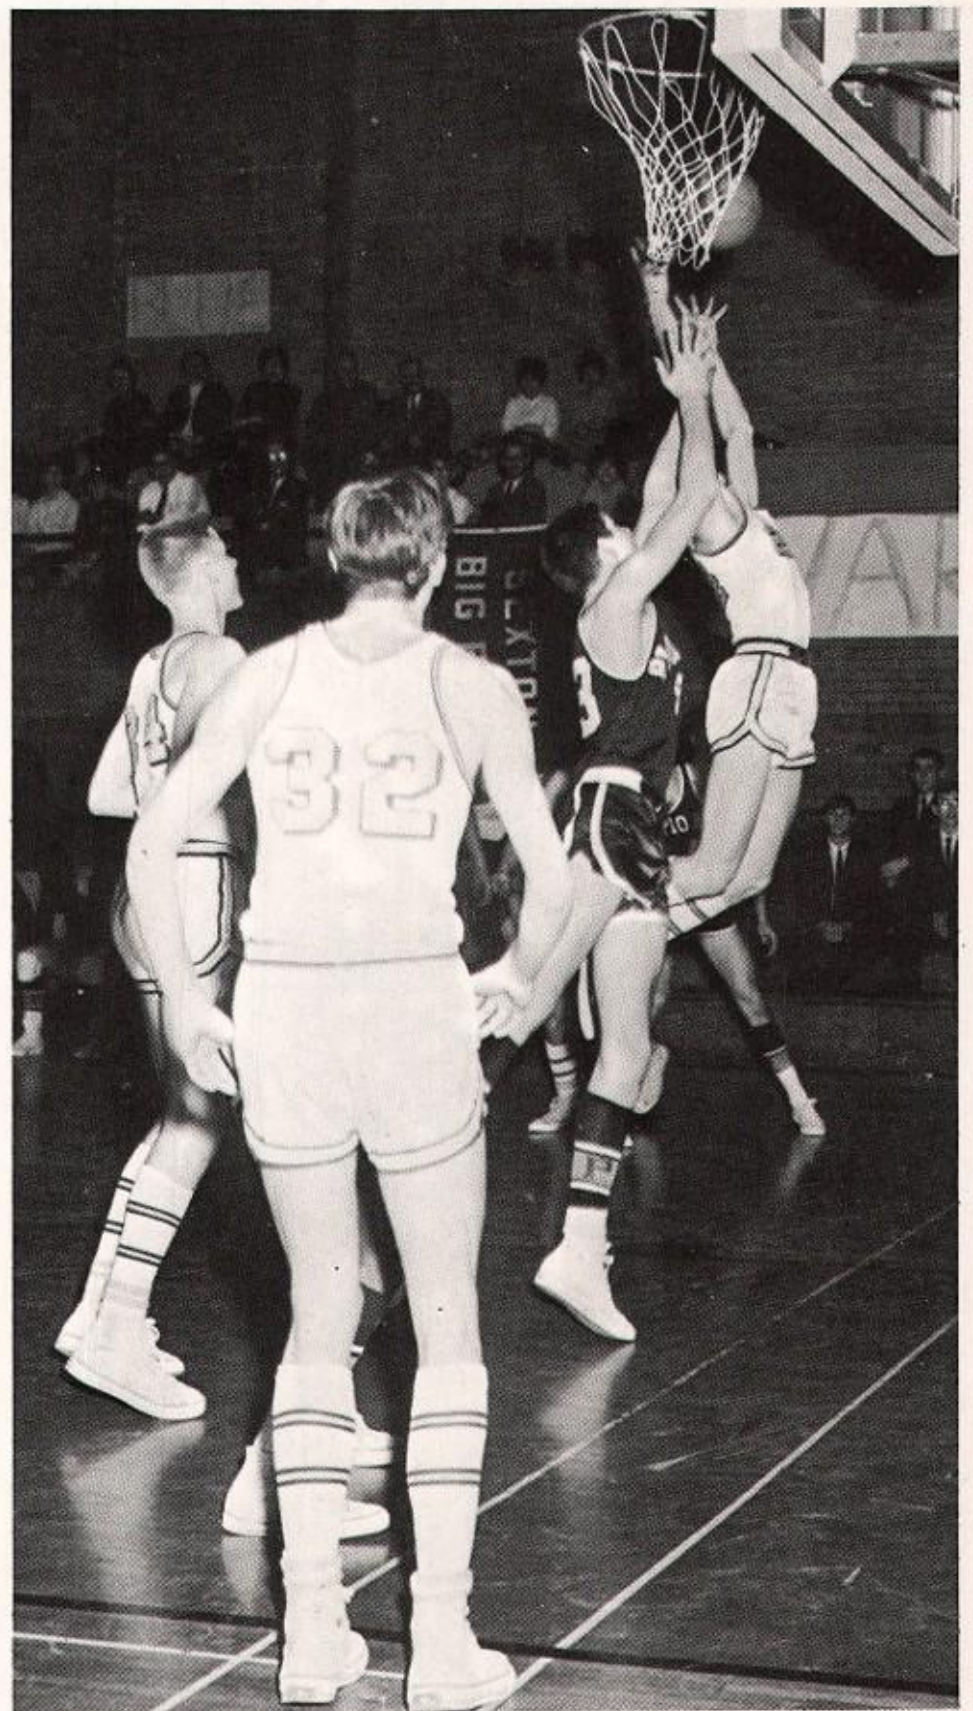

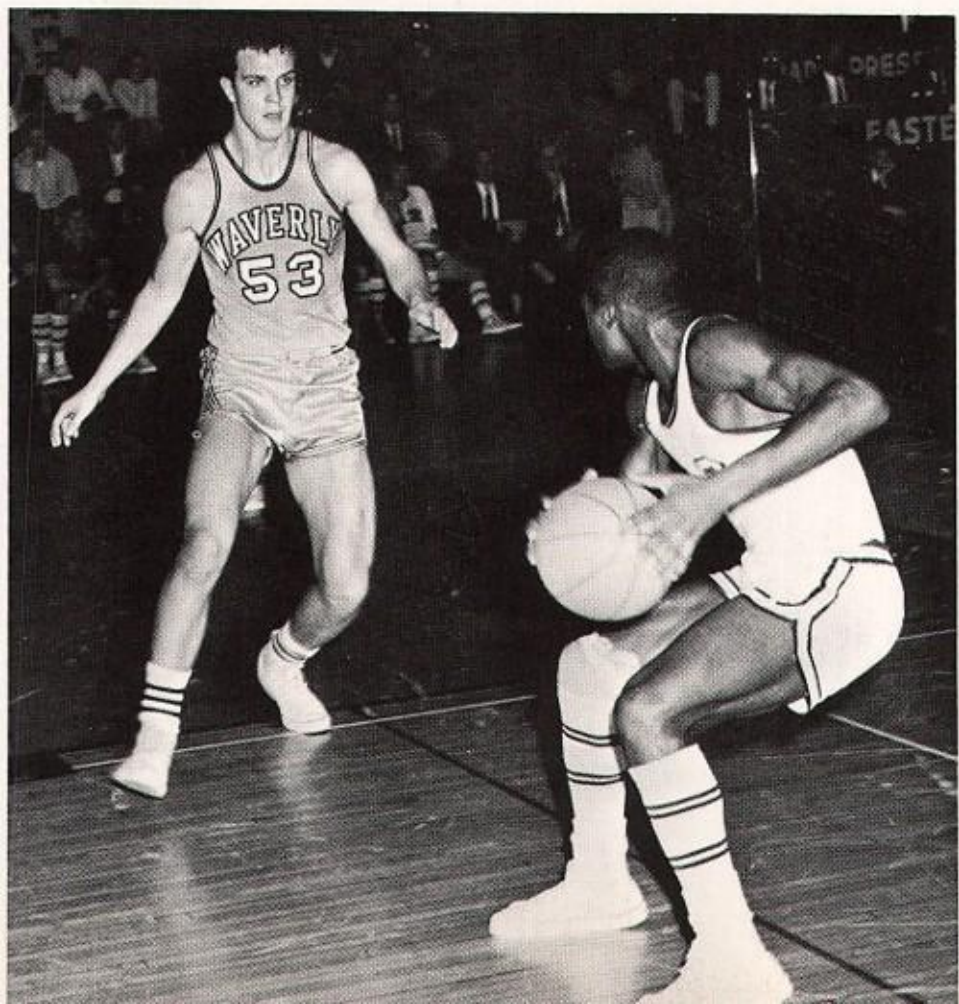

Upset victory over Sexton helps brighten season

Don Bates and Tom Ley leap high in order to pull another rebound off the backboard, as Jack Stein and Pat Welch ready themselves for a fast-break play.

Harry Brown throws a Waverly player off balance to make room for a drive to the basket.

Don Bates and Jerry Smalley look on as Don Johnson jumps high to pull a rebound off the board.

Losing season does not defeat Quaker spirit

Despite the long hours of hard practice and the great desire of the swimming team, the Quakers had a losing season, winning three meets and losing ten. The swimmers had the misfortune of placing last in the 6-A League Meet.

During the season, the record for the 100 yard breaststroke was broken twice. The original time of 1:08.7 was broken by Ed Belles with a time of 1:08.6. Later in the season, Rick Edwards set the new standing school record in the stroke of 1:08.1.

At the swimming team banquet, the following awards were presented: Most Improved Swimmer, Ray Leyrer and Scott Leavitt; Most Loyal Swimmer, John Bullock; and Most Valuable Swimmer, Rick Edwards.

Coach Howard said that there were many promising sophomores who showed great potential of developing into a winning team for the next year's swimming team.

Mark Kruger. Third row: Assistant Coach R. Schaubel, Jim Peterson, Steve Slater, Steve Ploehn, John Bullock, Kirk Slater, Ed Belles, Rick Edwards, and Coach Carrol Howard.

The rest of the Quaker swimming team works as hard as those swimming, through endless yells and screeches for extra effort and victory.

John Bullock gasps for breath on one of the legs of the individual medley.

Bob Colwell floats in mid-air momentarily before breaking his perfect form and taking the cold plunge into the water.

Eastern's girls compete in city volleyball

Hidden behind the doors of Eastern's Gym, thirty enthusiastic girls, under the guidance of Miss Anderson, participated and competed in volleyball skills. Initiating the first dual meets, though not official in city ranking, all of Eastern's teams tromped Sexton, while only the Juniors triumphed over Everett. Fate loomed over Eastern in the official eight minute individual games as Eastern saw the darker side, placing third in the city. The outlook for next year remains bright for Eastern's girls with the hope that incoming Sophomores will aid in returning the city trophy to its rightful position at Eastern High School.

Janet Doerr gracefully taps the ball as Sophie Ebright and Lorie Preidis gaze wide-eyed waiting for the ball to return from the rafters.

Eastern's girls first in city swim meet

Eastern's Girls' Competitive Swim Team left memories of an exceptional season with much individual effort in dual and city meets. In the first year dual meets were held, Eastern defeated Sexton by a score of 60 to 52 and Everett squeezed by with a one point margin of 70 to 69. At the city meet, Eastern received a first, scoring 52.5 points; Everett came in second, scoring 50.0; and Sexton placed third with 41.5 points. Two city records emerged during the meet; Paula Keeler in the 50 yard freestyle with a time of 29.4 and Ellen Shelberg in the 50 yard backstroke at 34.5. Form events in the breaststroke, side stroke, and front crawl, plus diving competition, were also judged at each meet. Becky Kruger placed first and Gloria Mays second in the breast stroke. Chris Rice was judged third in the side-stroke and Lori Preides tied for third in the front crawl. In diving, Char Messenger rated second and Paula Keeler third.

Char Messenger soars through the air light as a feather; actually, she was successfully executing a forward twist-layout position.

Baseball season results in close games

An 8-6 victory over Owosso High initiated Eastern's 1967 baseball season, with the debut of Bob Schrader as Head Coach. Eastern received its ups and downs with several extremely close games, but resulted with a season of seven wins, twelve losses, placing fifth in the 6A league.

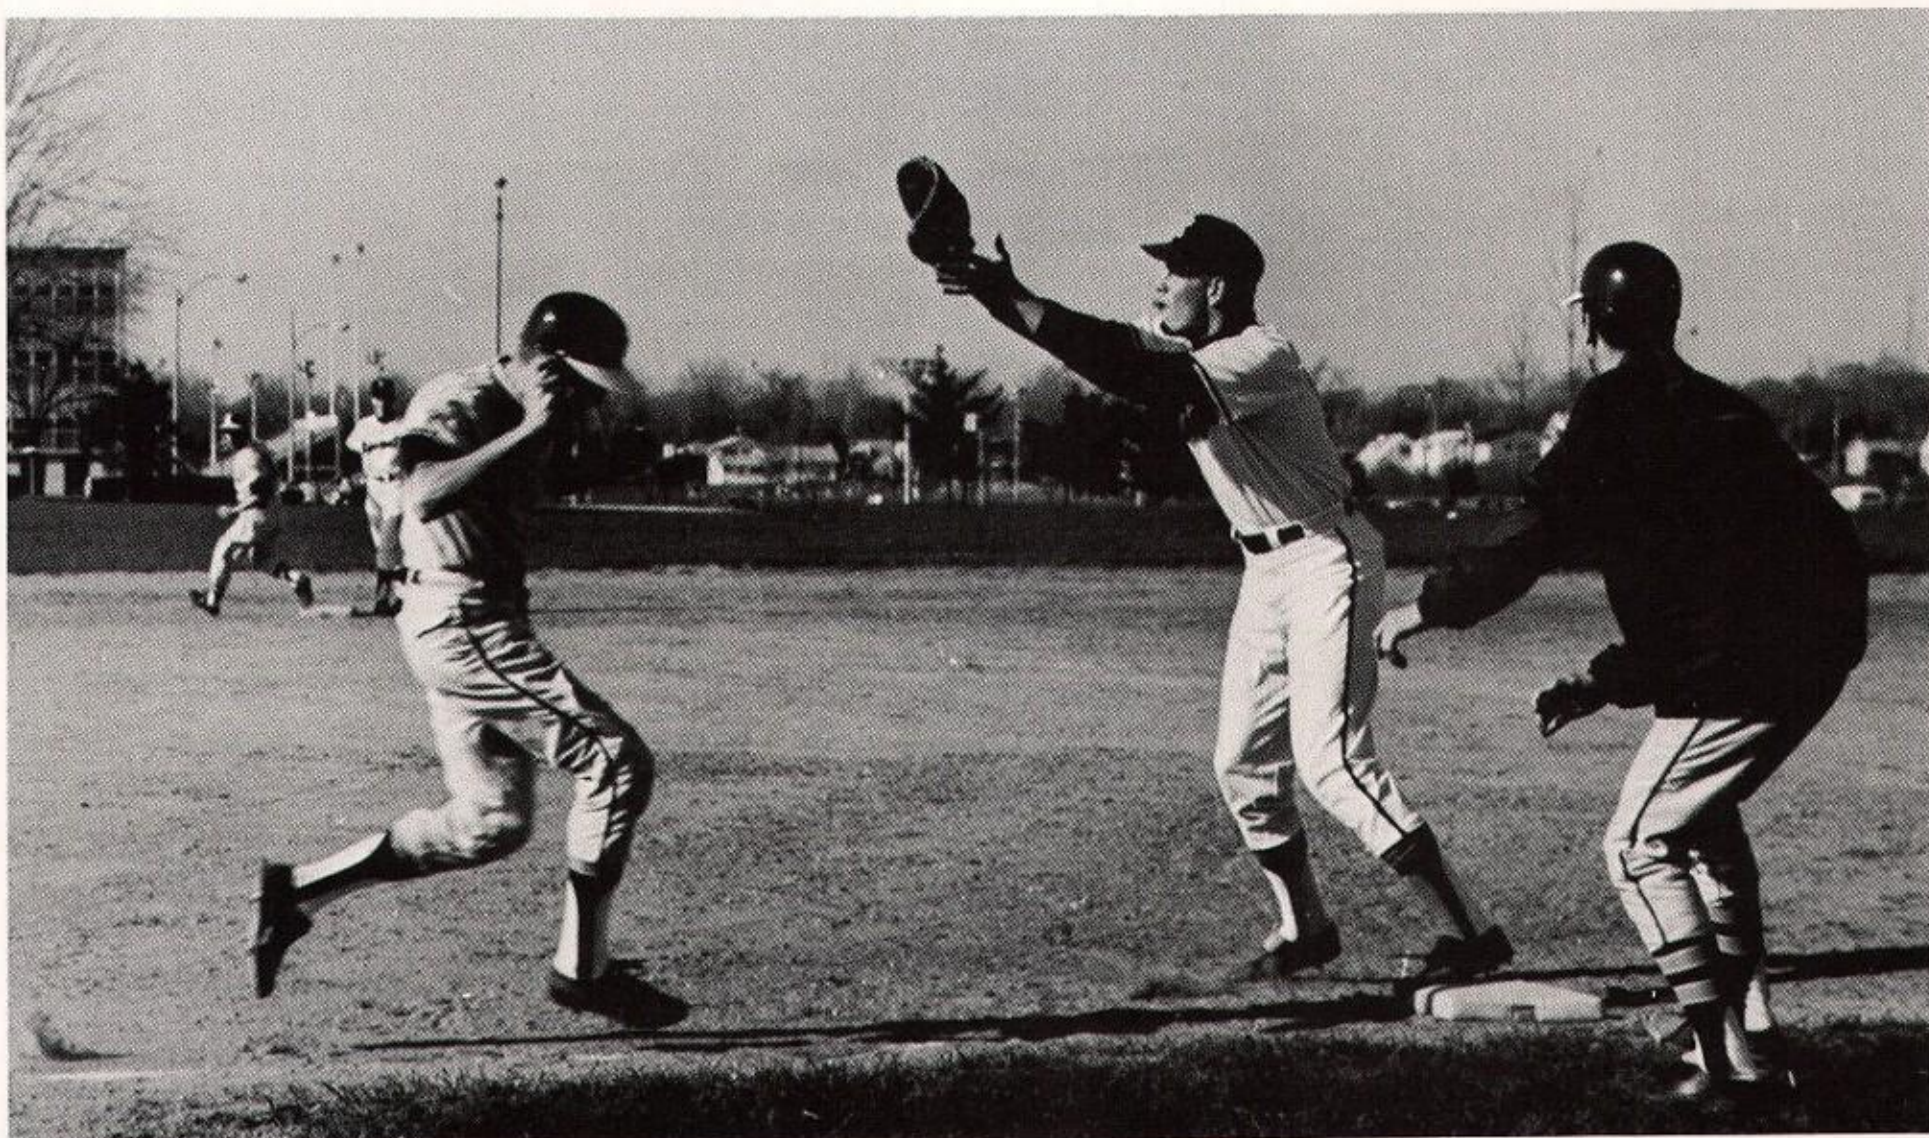

Dave Shroeger presented Eastern with its lone homerun and led the hitting with an average of .325. He was awarded the title of Most Improved Player. Ron Stearns and Dave Kienholz, co-captains of Eastern's team, each received recognition for their fine efforts during the season. Ron Stearns became the recipient of the Leadership Award, while Dave Keinholtz, also catcher for the All City team, was awarded the Most Valuable Player.

Quakers were hampered by the loss of nine seniors and placed the responsibility of rebuilding a successful team on the '68 seniors, juniors, and incoming sophomores.

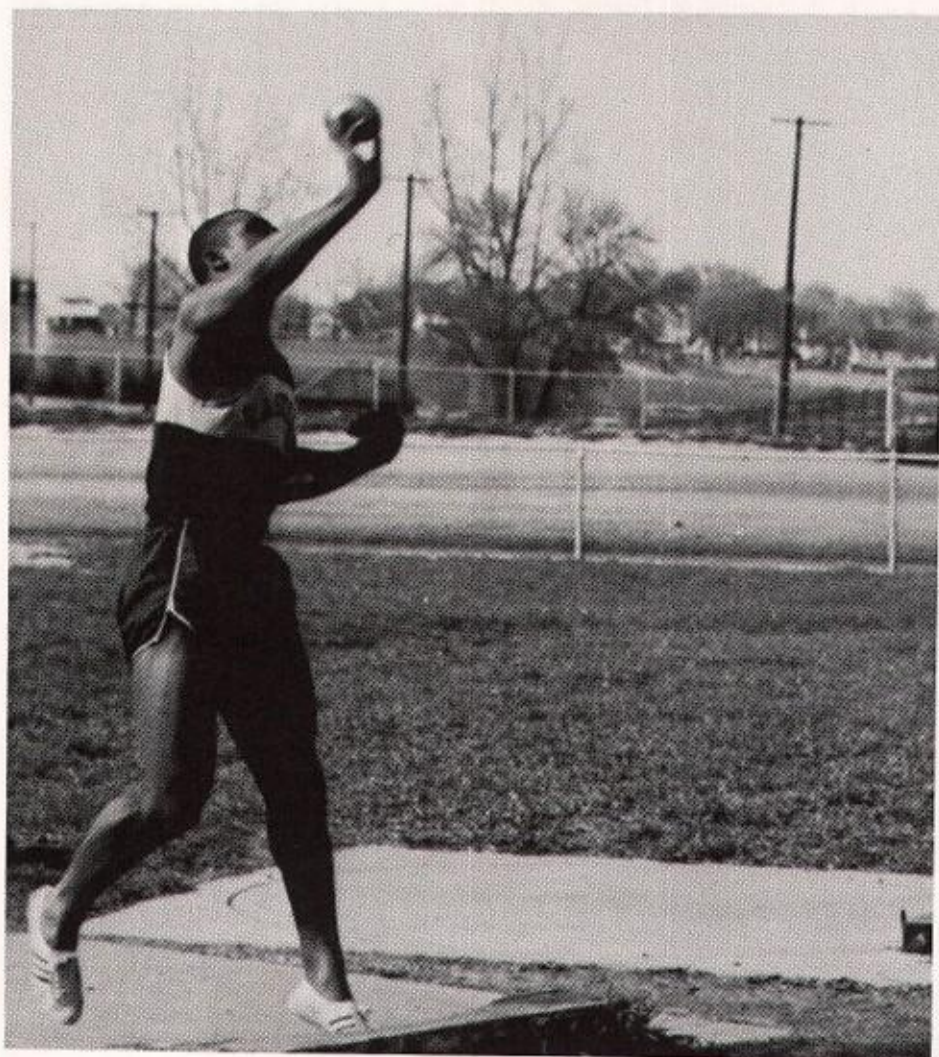

Ron Stearns races back to first base, coming in far ahead of the ball.

Mike Ramsey dashes into base as Dave Kienholz, first base coach, urges him on.

Runners place second in city, fourth in 6A

Agility and split second timing are needed in the shot-put event, as well as brute strength; Sam Davis fits the description well.

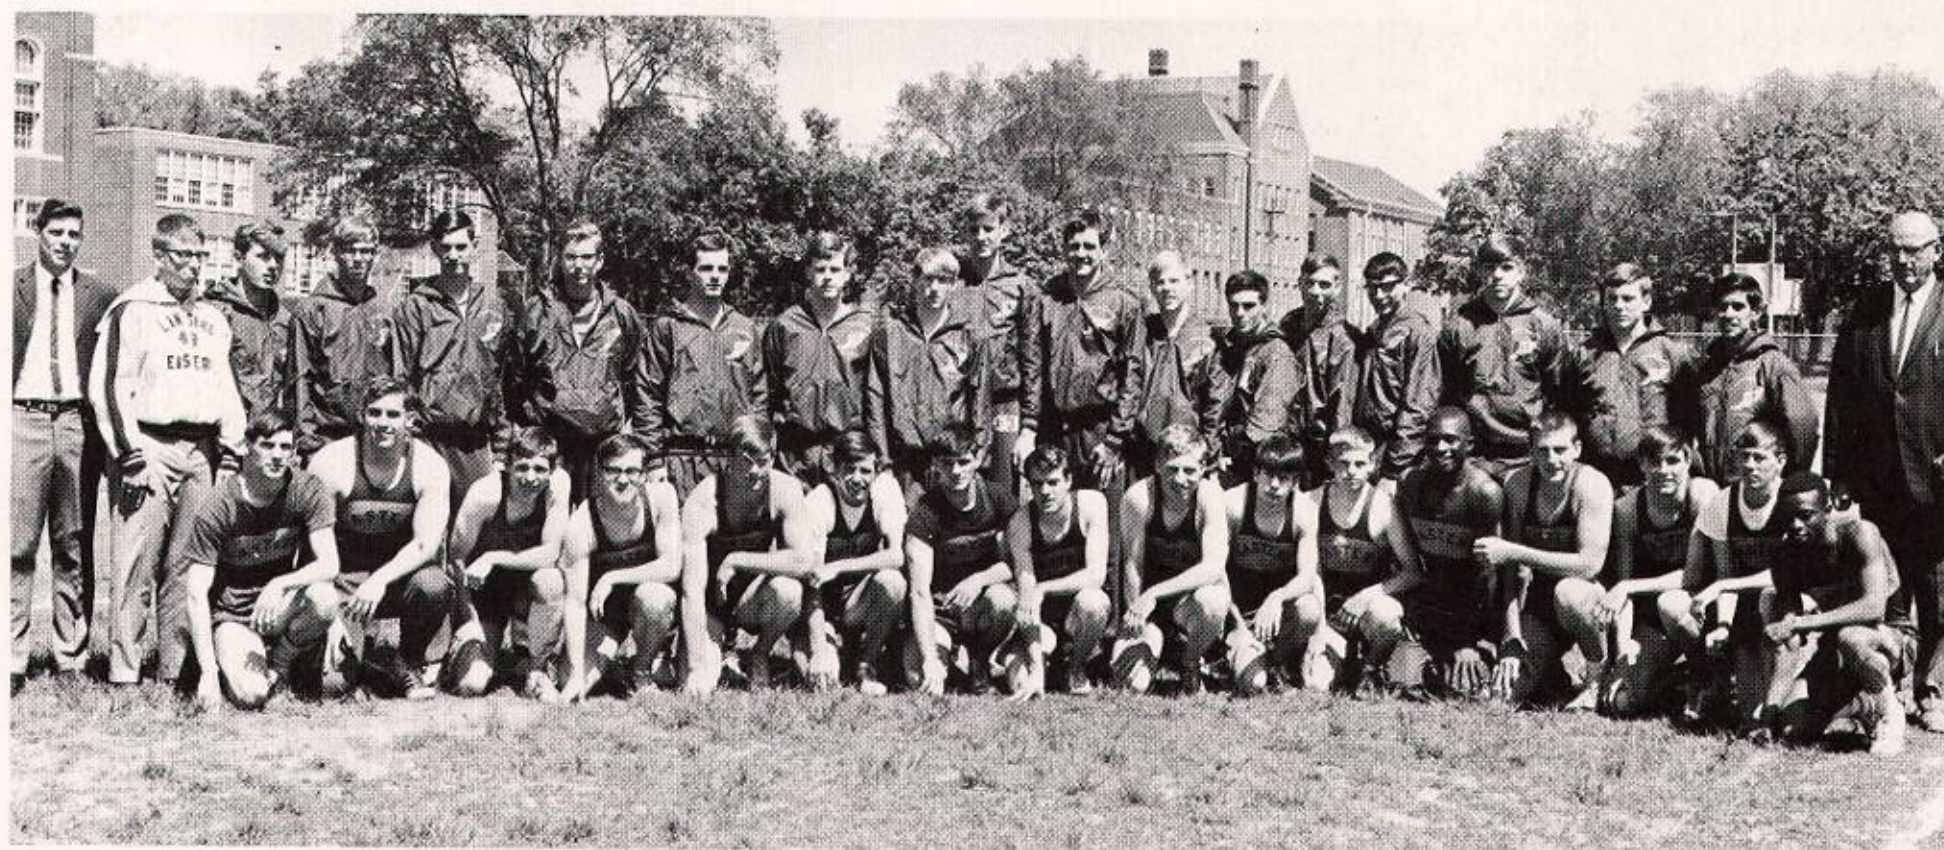

The track team again boasted a fine season and barely missed taking the city title from East Lansing. On their way to a seven win, four loss record, and a fourth place finish in the 6A league, many records were broken. Chris Marin broke the school two mile run record with a time of 9:50.1 and Ken Waterman set a record time of 22.3 seconds in the 220 yard run.

It seemed to be the year for relay teams as both of the Quaker relays set records. The 880 yard relay consisted of Jeff Fritz, Jon Hayden, Ralph Janz, and Ken Waterman. They set a new time of 1:29.5 for their half mile event. The mile relay team of Bob Killips, Mike Skinner, George McClain and Tom Allen set a time of 3:27.6. Earlier in the year, at the Huron and State Journal Relays, Eastern's two mile relay team anchored by fantastic comebacks by Martins Ande, took first place at both relays. Martins Ande was considered one of the best runners in the state.

Coach Sweeney said he expected another good year with four of the record setters returning as seniors, along with the help of some promising juniors and sophomores.

Duane Spitz and Martins Ande run true to form as they hold an ample lead over the Sexton runner in the background.

One of the many relay teams to set records consisted of Jeff Fritz, Bob St. Clair, Jon Haydn, and Ken Waterman.

participation blamed

Anticipating a slam from his opponent, Mike Welch prepares for a hard return.

With only two returning lettermen, the many losses of the 1967 tennis team were attributed to lack of experience; the Quakers did not have the material necessary for a winning season. Some fine individual performances were given by seniors Mike Welch and Rick Floria, and juniors Gary Wilcox and Tom Bernitt, otherwise the netters tallied a losing season.

This year's tennis team will depend mainly on the incoming sophomores. Having more boys out for the sport may provide a way for the tennis team to improve. More participation would create a greater incentive and greater individual competitive attitude. Perhaps the underclassmen will pull through, enabling the Quakers to have a winning tennis season in 1968.

Golf team has best season in history

The 1967 Golf Squad showed considerable improvement over the two previous seasons by winning 7 and losing 9 contests.

Their performance was the best in the history of Eastern High School as the team led by Craig Bowman, Dave Zdybel, Doug Feher, Greg Reed, and Mike Wesley tied the existing school record with a 308 total. They scored totals of 309, 310, 311, 312, and 315 during the season. Dave Zdybel shot a one under par in the city meet as Eastern took second in the city. Sophomore Gary Hunt, averaging in the low eighties, together with Doug Feher and Greg Reed, make the 1968 squad look promising.

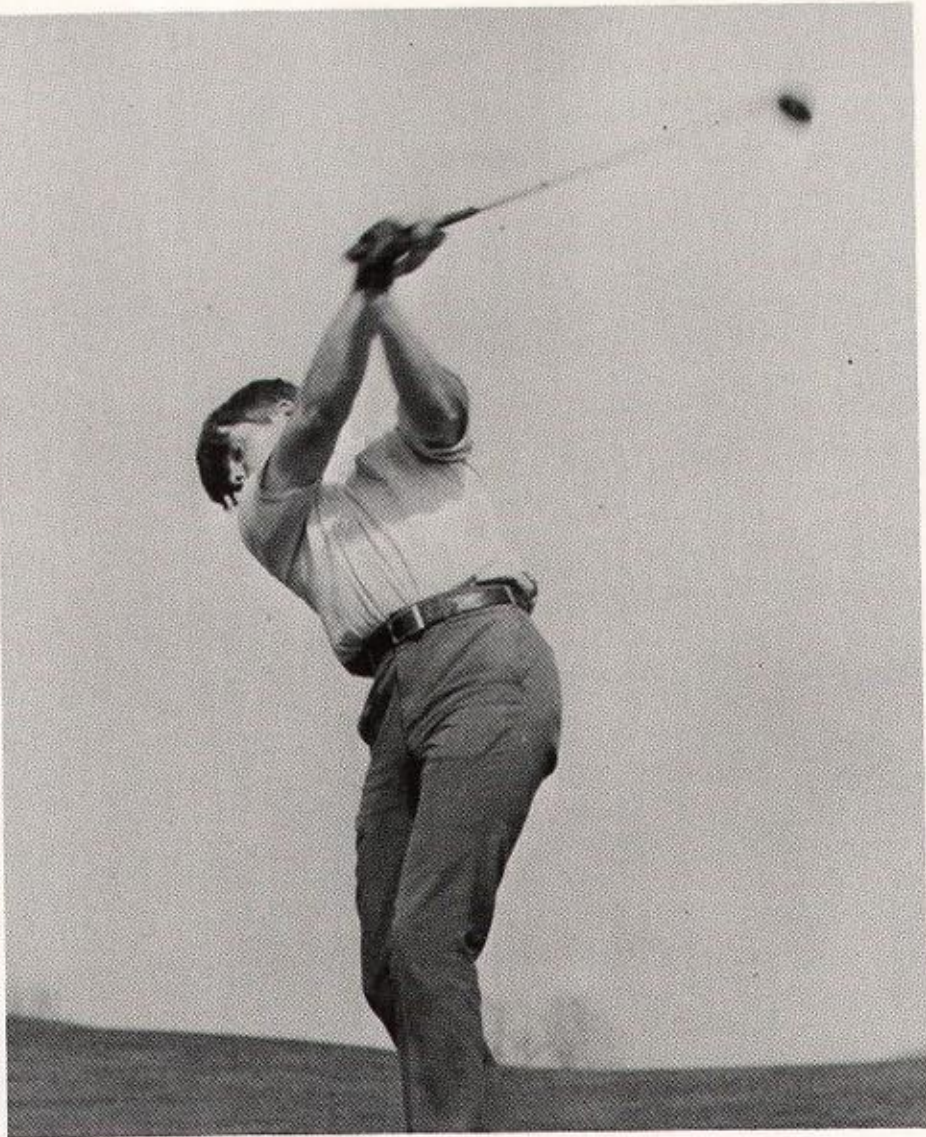

The "67" squad prepares to tee off.

Walking nonchalantly to class ...

Cheering for the senior team ...

Planning class projects . . .

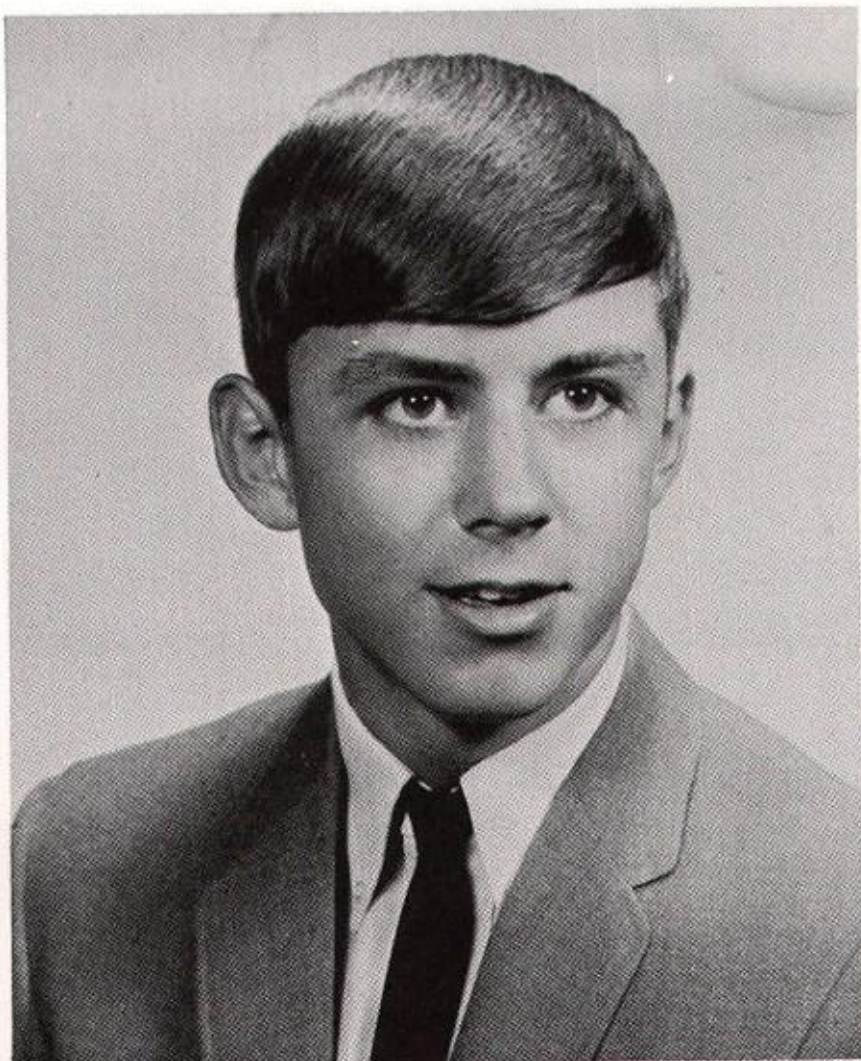

There's a time for . . .

seniors. They are the leaders and deserve to be after twelve years of waiting. Memories of this last year, both joyous and sad, remain in seniors' minds; the last football game, the almost unfinished term paper, the exchange of senior pictures, the friendly lunch hours, and finally, the last few weeks. The anticipation mounts as they are fitted for caps and gowns and practice for Baccalaureate and commencement, not realizing that they are reaching the end of an era. Many have reached the end of their education and will go out into the world to work; others will go on to college to receive higher education. But twelve years of waiting come to an abrupt end with a handshake and a diploma. Now only memories linger to remind them of the time when they were . . .

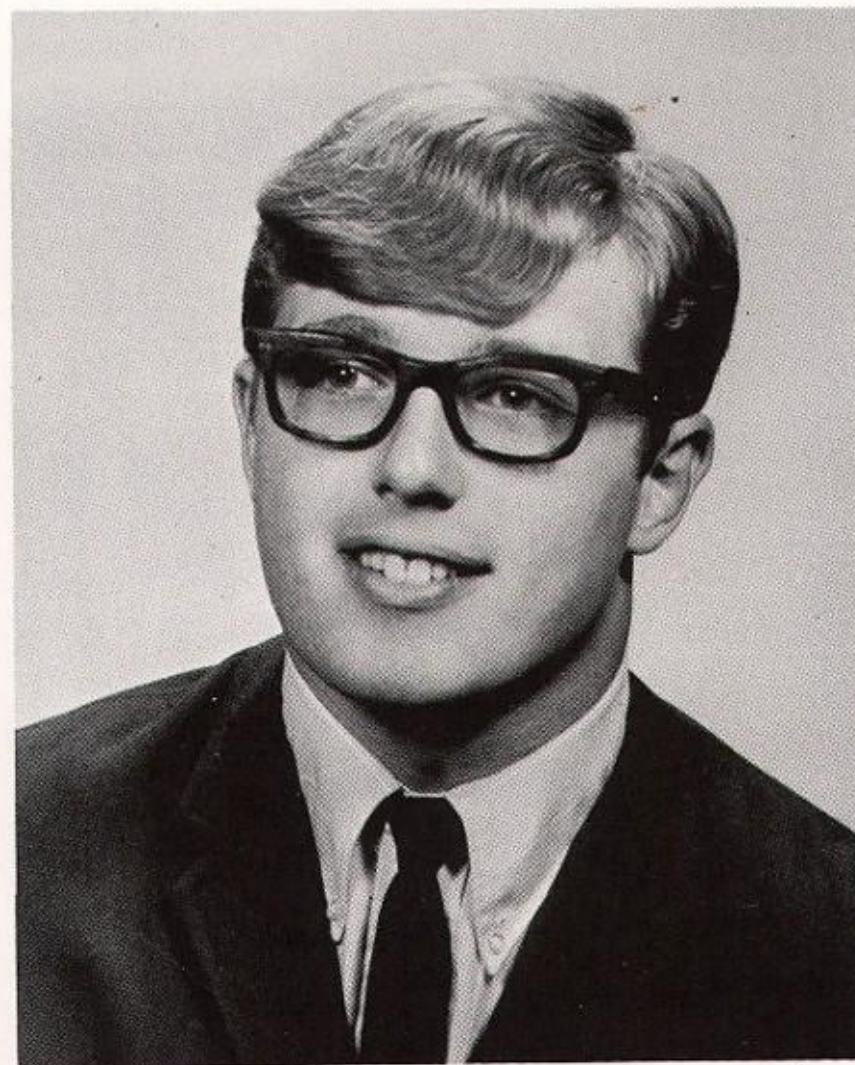

Hurrying, not to be late . . .

Seniors.

Spirit ... study ... anticipation ...

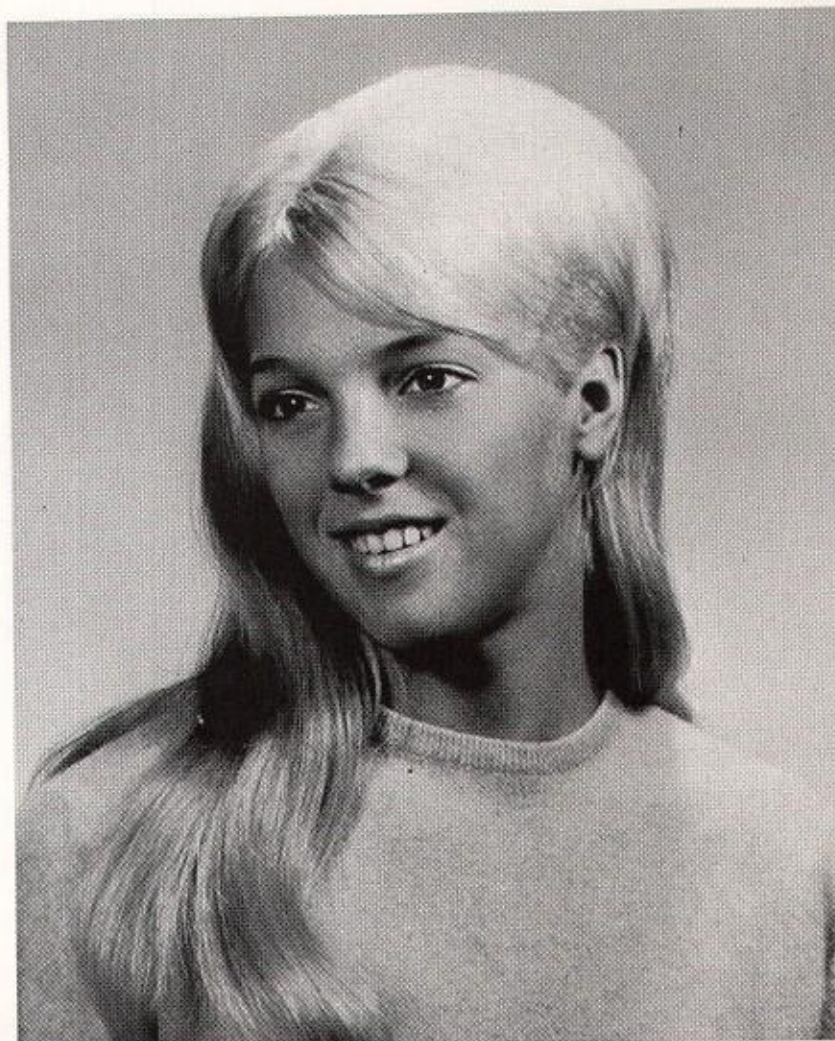

Flames ignited the Senior's final year, but while burning, glimpses of its glory escaped through the light. Senior pictures sparked the realization that, at last, the culmination of years of learning had arrived. In the fall, heated competition for the Spirit Jug inspired the Senior Class to a roaring football season, climaxed by the powderpuff football game. Homecoming flamed brightly for an instant, then melted into warm memories, while the Senior Prom, with bubbling enthusiasm, held the light ... void of long terms and project worries.

Flames dwindled slowly as Seniors, in their final and most important step, marched across the stage to receive their diplomas. No longer will they arrive early to squeeze into the last parking space, struggle to finish Miss Lowrey's theme, or argue with Mr. Asumaa in Humanities. Now, time has run out, for a candle's life is short. There is no turning back, but rich memories of the Class of '68 never fade away ... because there was a time ...

Junior Class united in spirit and in strength

Active participation in several Junior events takes place under the guidance of Sheila Webb, Treasurer; Jo Snellenberger, Secretary; Sam Davis, President; and Tom Ley, Vice President.

United in spirit and in strength, the Junior class built the ladder upon which they climbed to a productive 1967-68 school year. Led by their elected officers, Juniors actively combined to bring about an effective union of scholastic and extracurricular talents. Participation was highlighted in the Student Council and activities such as the Powder Puff Football game and the Junior Prom. Junior ideas aided Junior ability, and the Class of '69 enjoyed a truly abundant and memorable year.

The Junior Class built

the ladder upon which they climbed to a year

abundant and memorable

Sophomore Class "a vital and active part"

The Class of '70 possesses capable leadership in its officers Nancy Gilbert, Vice President; Kurt Nelson, President; Pat Cushion, Secretary; and Ellen Shelberg, Treasurer.

The newness of strange surroundings gradually dimmed with the meeting of fellow students and the acquisition of respect for Eastern High School as the Sophomore class of 1970 became a vital and active part of the student body. Forces such as Student Council and Activity Day served to bring Sophomores to an ever-increasing unity. Honor rolls lengthened as class members filled their openings. Pride as well as spirit found expression as the Sophomore class realized the successful completion of a year so meaningful to all.

at completion of a year

Towering over Lansing . . .

Signs of Advertising . . .

Learning to use a copying machine . . .

The capital of business . . .

There's a time for . . .

advertising. Students use advertising the entire year, even though they very often don't realize it. In September, they use it to help them decide on the right back-to-school clothes. The new shoes to match the J-Hop formal are easily located through ads. Around Christmas time, ads will help find the perfect gift for a special boy or girl. A mid-winter shopping spree, with the help of ads, can break the monotony of February. Spring brings a new array of clothes and accessories, again with the aid of advertising. June brings the senior prom, with new formals, corsages, and pre-prom parties. A new suit for graduation or a dress for the senior banquet all come from places of business that invest money in advertising. Many people rely on it daily and realize they can live an easier life with . . .

Picking out just the right ones . . .

Advertising.

 It's finally our turn.
 The road has been a long one covered with empties and many fun times. But from this on out it's gonna be wild.
 Go Hawks!

The members of the Lantern staff have tried to make an accurate account of the 1968 school year. We hope we have sufficiently covered times which can easily be erased from the mind, by binding them between the covers of this book.

We would like to express our appreciation to Mr. William Potter and LeClear Studios for spending numerous hours snapping pictures, Mr. Ken Drake from Taylor Publishing Company for being patient through the "dark hours," and especially our advisor, Miss Letha Aspgren for spending many hours correcting pages and standing behind us through a multitude of decisions. Without her, the 1968 Lantern may not have been a reality. . .

We found ourselves in the middle of mass confusion at times, but we struggled through and tried our best to overcome the traumatic experience of being Editor-in-Chief and Assistant Editor. All in all, the year has been very eventful and we would like to thank the staff members who spent much time and put forth their every effort to make this a successful yearbook.

Save Kris

Lee,
Don't ever forget all the fine times
we've had at Horsehead Lake, Gay Drakes party, Grand Sledge, school, my parties + Gregs going away party. Boy I could write a book on all the fun, good + bad times we've had together.
And of course how could you forget Seneca night. Well I left time you got a party. Be sure you know how to run from the cops at 2:00 AM Ralphs Gas.
Don't stay out of jail, that's what you in a lot of trouble by drinking apple Cider.

Don't forget I want you to come + stay with me this summer + be around in Sept. at our new house!

Remember all the good times in
Mrs. Woods class + all our field trips + parties.

Hope you + Bob make it thru the year happy. Like Greg + I. Be sure to make it June 26, 1968.

You had a hard time getting to know Greg + his ways. Hope you're pleased now.

Be good + don't you mean we forget all our the world. Fine times, fights + happy to me. Don't turn me. Best friend disappoint me. Please!

Justin Martin
+ BARRY-SMITH

See, our Co-op class is something else. It took us awhile to break Clark + Fowler in but then it was ok!

Senior night will be hell! (If not we'll have to raise some.) Be good to Bob, + best of luck in the future. Peggy Edwards
